

PENN FACULTY'S COMMITTEE'S RULING BARRING BIG GUARD HARD BLOW TO 'QUAKER ELEVEN'

LOSS OF NEILL, PENN'S STAR GUARD, WILL BE FELT IN GAME AGAINST HARLOW'S STATE TEAM

Action of Faculty in Declaring Big Lineman Ineligible, Combined With Henning's Absence Through Illness, Handicaps Folwell

THE loss of Billy Neill, who was declared ineligible by the Penn faculty yesterday, is a severe blow to the Red and Blue football team, and the first effects will be felt in the battle with State College tomorrow.

Henning's loss crippled the team considerably, but the coaches felt that Neill would lend some aid to his substitute, Manny Wirkman. Neill helped the new man and probably would have been of more assistance had he remained in the game.

The guard positions are the most important on the team. They flank the center, protect him while passing the ball, and it is up to them to put up a stone-wall defense against the attacks that are hurled at the center of the line.

Penn State Uses Line-Smashing Attack

DICK HARLOW has a terrific line-smashing attack which is directed at the center and tackles. Most of the gains are made through these plays. Larry Whitney, the famous pile-driving Dartmouth fullback, is assisting Harlow, and some of the old Hanover tricks have been taught the players.

Mathews and Little are two of the best tackles in the East, and no doubt will smash the plays directed at them. That being the case, Ewing, the State quarterback, soon will find the weakness in the line and shoot the plays at the guards instead.

Princeton and Harvard Will Have Easy Time

PRINCETON and Harvard will have a nice, easy time with their opponents tomorrow, the former meeting Lafayette and the Crimson mingling with the Massachusetts Aggies.

There is one game which probably will be buried among the others, but it looks like one of the best of the day. The strong Navy team meets West Virginia at Annapolis, and some real football will be shown.

But the REAL combat will be staged in Syracuse, N. Y., where Large William Hollenback is laboring with a gang of steam rollers on the Syracuse football team.

The players seem to be of a higher standard—and a bigger standard—which is more important. Pitt went through the season last year with a clean string of victories, and Syracuse lost only one game—Princeton winning, 3 to 0.

Look for Action When Tennis Solos Meet

A FINE young scrap is scheduled to be staged at the annual meeting of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association this winter in New York.

The edict of the executive committee barring all players engaged in selling sporting goods from competing as amateurs will come up before the delegates to be acted upon, and a rousing time is expected.

Miss Cassell happened to become a professional skater by the merest accident. One night at a roof-garden rink in New York her remarkable gracefulness and skating ability attracted the attention of the manager of the place, and he immediately engaged her to give exhibitions.

The ineligibility of Billy Neill probably will cause the Penn coaches to rush Bill Henning into the line-up sooner than was expected. It is hoped that Doctor Hancock makes sure that Henning has recovered entirely from his operation for appendicitis before he is allowed to do any scrimmaging work, as he will be needed more against Michigan and Cornell than against Lafayette and Dartmouth.

Penn coaches declare that Johnny Weldon, the Lafayette halfback, is the best all-around back in the East. They contend that he is the ideal combination man and the most dangerous individual back who will oppose Penn this season.

CAPTAIN MATHEWS TELLS WHY BILLY NEILL WAS DECLARED INELIGIBLE BY THE FACULTY

By NEIL MATHEWS

Penn appears to be getting lots of tough breaks this season. Just when we thought our line-up was settled and the team had at last struck its stride, a ruling by the faculty deprived us of the services of our best guard, the veteran Billy Neill.

State may beat us, but Harlow's team will have to fight all the way, and you can bet we will fight just as hard if the score is 20 to 0 against us as we would if we were leading in a close game.

Swann was with the scrubs only two days when his strength and aggressiveness attracted the attention of Coach Wharton, who took him in hand and brought him along fast. Swan is an all-round athlete and was a member of the swimming team last year as well as captain of the water polo team.

Neill played two years at Whittman when it was considered a college and while he was taking a college course, but he did not consider that his first year should be counted against him. He did not try to deceive the faculty committee in any way, and it passed him without question, which made him eligible for our early games.

According to the rules, a player is not permitted to play more than four years of college football altogether, and cannot represent a large college for more than three years. As last season was Neill's first on the Penn team and we did not consider that the first year at Whittman should be counted against him, we believed that he was eligible for another year of college football, and so did the faculty committee until two days ago.

The coach of one of the teams on our schedule writes to a member of the faculty committee asking that Neill be withdrawn, and in order to assure other colleges and the public that Penn was aboveboard so far as its eligibility code is concerned, the heavy guard was declared ineligible, though the faculty committee really believes that Neill should be allowed to play.

While the eleventh-hour disqualification of Neill has weakened the team a great deal, it served to put more fighting spirit into our players, and you can rest assured that there will be a battle royal staged tomorrow against State. Harlow's team is reputed to be the strongest State ever has sent to this city, and it is anticipating an easy victory, but it may be very much surprised.

"JOE" ARMSTRONG MOST VERSATILE RACQUET WIELDER

By WILLIAM T. TILDEN, 2D

Following closely on the heels of Harold A. Throckmorton, and, in fact, in the minds of many students of tennis quite on a par with him, is a Philadelphia, Joseph J. Armstrong, 1915 Pennsylvania State champion.

Armstrong went to the third round of the Pennsylvania State, in which he was the playing-through titleholder, when he went down in defeat in straight sets before Tilden.

Then came the Delaware State, in which he was challenger. He defeated Stanley W. Pearson, our 1914 Philadelphia champion, two sets to one, in the semifinals, and won from Tilden in the finals, 1-6, 3-6, 3-6, 4-4 in the fourth set went out with a pulled tendon and a case of cramps.

Then came Longwood, where he made his greatest record of the year. He defeated E. E. Ingram, H. V. D. Johns and Billy McElroy in the first three rounds with the loss of only one set, that to McElroy.

Then he met "Peck" Griffin, who had previously defeated in turn R. N. Williams, 2d, and T. R. Fell. He defeated Griffin in five sets, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4. He followed this by crushing Irving Wright in straight sets and capped the climax of his triumphs by putting out Ichihya Kumagata in straight sets in the semifinal.

Armstrong did not play at Seabright. At Newport he fell badly and was smeared by P. T. Hunter in the second round after he had defeated Fred Higgs in the first. At Southampton, Armstrong again struck

SALE OF SPEAKER GAINS $117,000 FOR LANNIN, OF SOX

COMMENT BY GRANT RICE

By GRANTLAND RICE

Not to Forget

In addition to which Speaker brought in or was responsible for more than $10,000 extra at the Cleveland sale.

So Cleveland has Speaker and a profit of the sale, while Lannin has $117,000. Considerable institution, Mr. Speaker.

"Is Speaker," queries a fan, "any greater outfielder than Jimmy McAleer used to be at his best?" Jimmy in his prime was a "true before our eyes" specimen, so we are in no position to render an official diagnosis. Speaker is certainly the greatest outfielder of the last twenty years.

Force of Habit

Sir—You recently made note of the work of the "force of habit." Well, Cornell now has the habit. Which is merely going side by side to Harvard, Michigan and Team Sorry, but it can't be helped. EZRA II.
