AN AIRMAN PHOTOGRAPHED BY ANOTHER ONE OVER THE DELAWARE AT MARCUS HOOK
The flyer is Walter Johnson, whose machine is pictured in flight by a camera man sitting above in another plane with Robert Glendinning. In the background is Marcus Hook, which is one of the towns on the Delaware growing yearly in importance as shipping points.

THEY ANSWER WHEN D. A. R. DELEGATES CRY "PAGE!"
These are members of the becomingly uniformed corps on duty during the sessions of the State conference. Left to right, back row, are the Misses Margaret Wilson, Helen Strubing, Lois Fornance, Jean Righter and Viola Keyser. Front row—Mary E. Kens, Anna K. Driesbach and Edith Caroline Fisher.

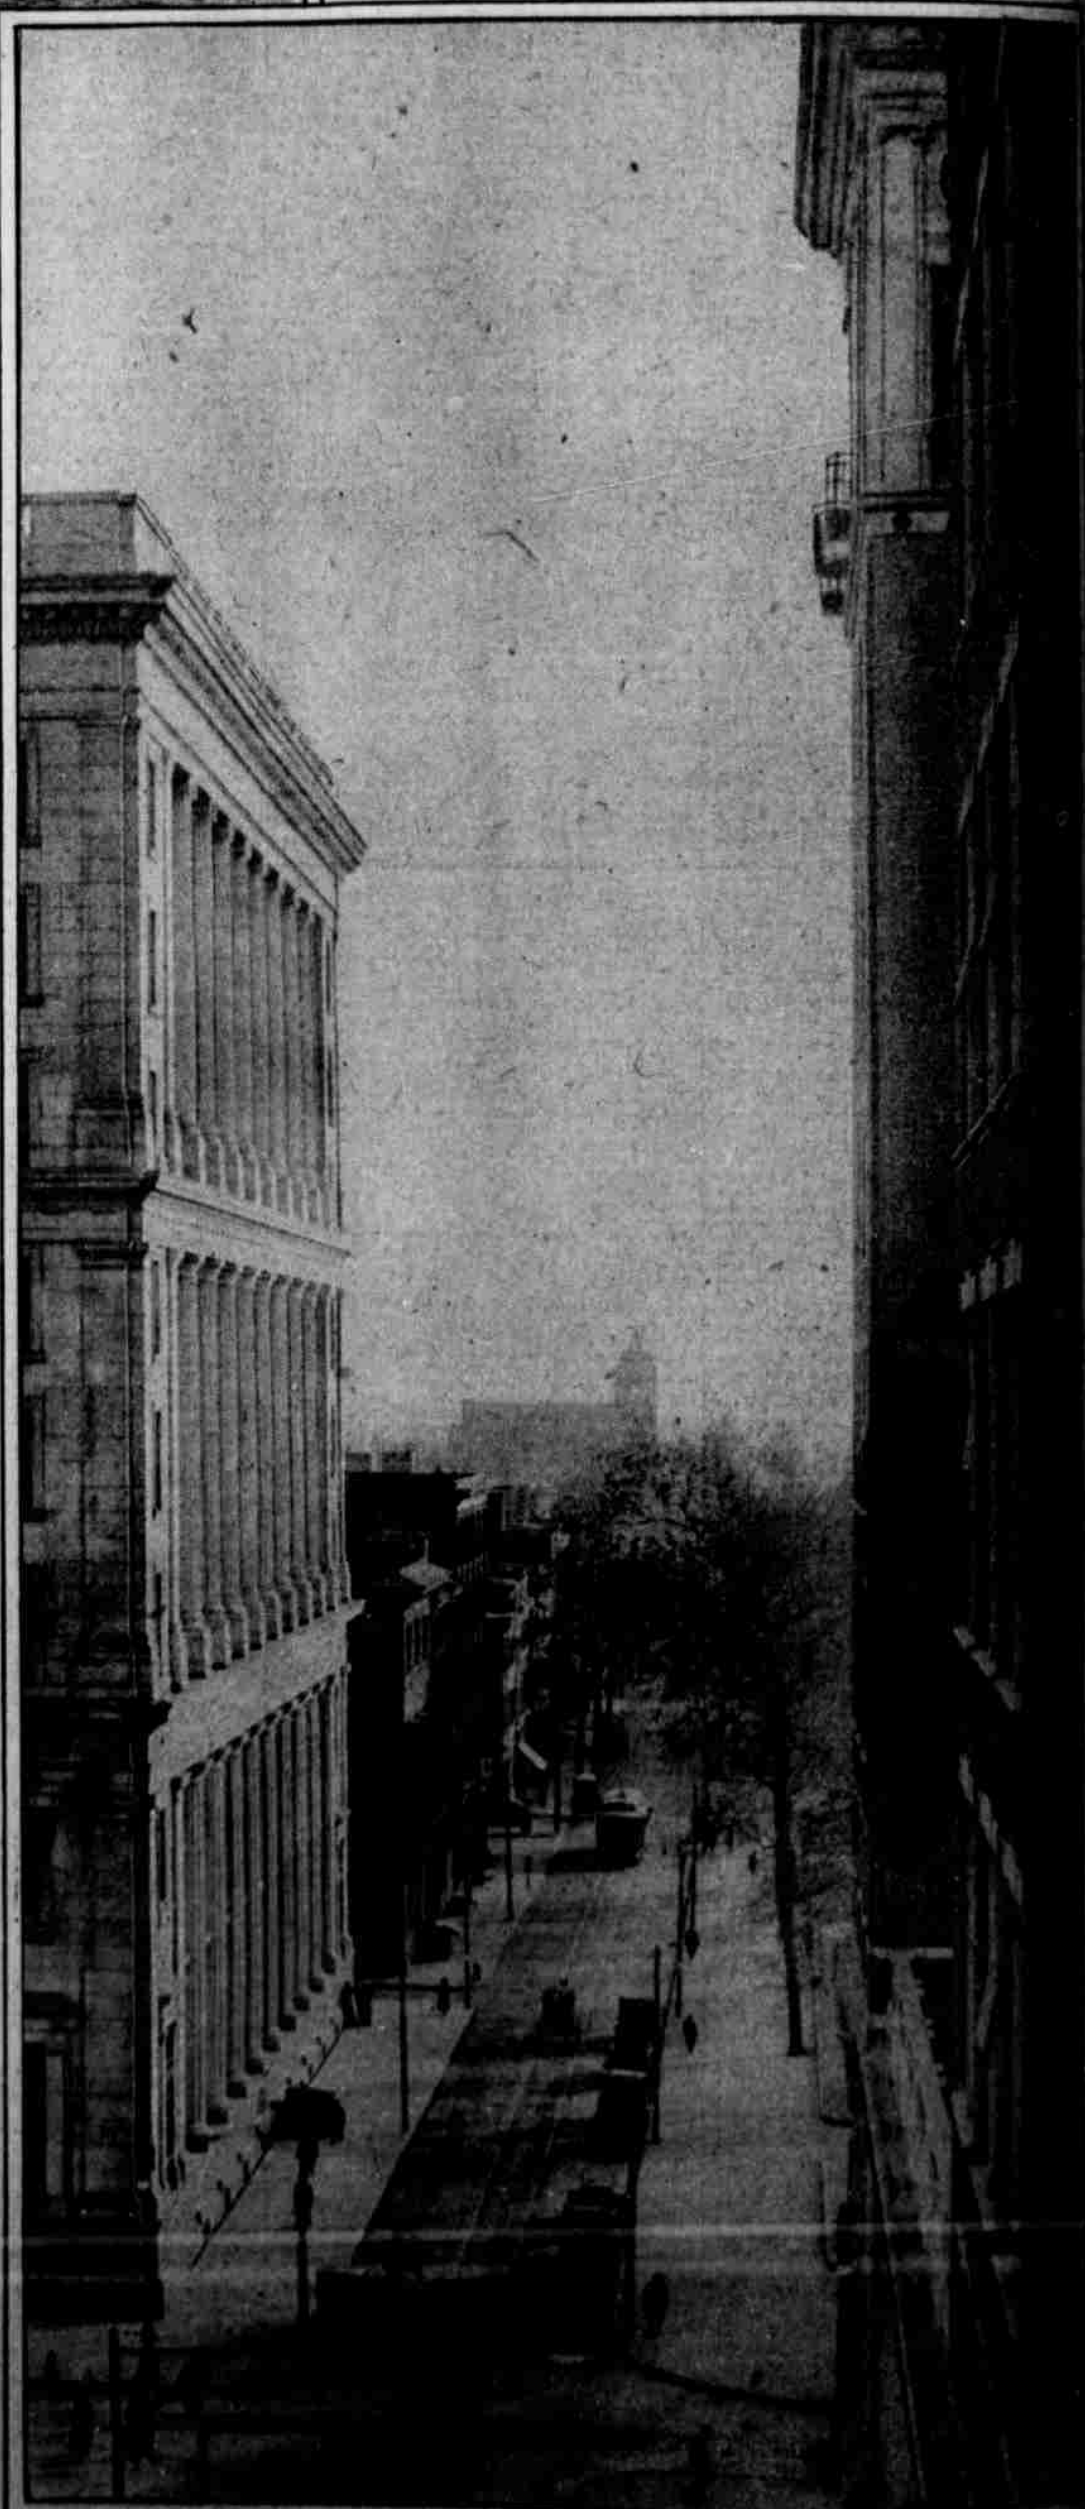

HE HAS A MAGISTERIAL FIGURE
Hence it is not surprising to find that he is Magistrate John Meclary, of Central Court.

AND THIS IS PIERSON M. STACKHOUSE
You've often read his name in connection with mayoralty campaigns, in which he is ever a candidate.

THE SAND ARTIST TRANSFERS HIS ACTIVITIES TO THE TRENCHES
This is a picture brought back from France by Dr. F. C. Abbott, of Jefferson Hospital, showing how artistic instinct triumphs over the horrors of war.

A BUSINESS CANYON IN SEVERE LINES
Looking down Sixth street between the Curtis Building, on the right, and the Penn Mutual Building, on the left, which overshadowing buildings have imparted a new aspect to Independence Square.
