STURGKH ASSASSINATO

Il dr. Friedrich Adler, un giornalista radico-socialista di Vienua, che sabato scorso assassino' il presidente del Consiglio austriaco, conte Sturgich, in un albergo dove questi si era recato a pranaare con il fratello del defunto ministro von Achrenthal, ha dichiarato alle autorita' di polizia che egli ha commesso l'assassinio perche' il presidente del Consiglio si era rifiutato di sontocare il Parlamento e perche' era un reasionario, il peggiore nemico del partito progressista e liberale in Affittia. Si dice che a Vienna, in seguito all'as-sascinio, siano scoppiati gravi disordini, ma questo non e' ancora confermato.

RUSSIAN WAR OFFICE SAYS PETROGRAD, Oct. 21.-Austro-German nces opened a new offensive movement n the northeastern frontier of Galicia on unday. The War Office announced today that the attacks were delivered north of loody, but that all failed. LONDON, Oct. 23 .- The sixth day of continuous fighting in the Halics sector of the Galician front saw the Russians give way a little before the forious onelaughts of the enemy. Gorman infantry, accordng to the Barlin War Office, drove a wedge between the villages of Svistelniki and Skomorochy, on the Narayuvka River line, and awept the Can's troops from most of the territory they had held on the west bank of that stream. Petrograd reports that the heights and woods between those two positions changed hands several times in the course of the

WHY NOT PHOTOPLAYS OF ELIZABETH'S DAYS?

Metro's "Romeo and Juliet" Suggests a Good Way to Cut the Movie Royalties

By the Photoplay Editor

In the light of the Victoria Theater's allweek run of Metro's "Romeo and Julist." with Mr. Bushman and Miss Bayne, beginning today, let, us consider the question of tragedy and the movies. Will photoplaygoors accept, as a general thing, unhappy stories, dead heroes and heroines, cadaver out happenings? Undoubtedly they will, if the stories are good enough, and if they are produced with sympathy and art. But the public is beginning to be wary of precalculated minery of the sort that springs from design and not from natural sequence of human events. That is why the direct-ors had better be looking around for ade-quate scenarios in case the "Romeo and Juliet" business starts a furore for dole-ful tales on the screen. If they want to save money usually

In Whitney Colling, produced by Robert Sherman An expose of the white slave traffic in which it is said, there will be an amplitude of cont relief, in addition to the propaganda. ful tales on the screen. If they want to save money usually spint on royatten, we suggest that they take the Metro tip and go in for Eliza-bothan drama. Not necessarily Shakes-peare, but, perhaps, Marlowe and Webster and their spiritaal brothers. Movie people are naturally skeptical and conservative, and the foregoing advice may sound a bit highbrow, but, accept our assurance, there is more glorification of action, more 'pomp of pageantry, rapture of rhyme,'' more dash and gore and vividity in 'The Duchess of Mail' and 'Tameriane' than in half a dozen modern shilling-shockers.

Speaking of "Romeo and Juliet." Speaking of "Romeo and Juliet." Theda Bara, who is to do Juliet in the William Fox version of the play, is out with another of those chirping interviews. Please listen: Theda Bara, who is a firm engenist, has a new theory about the character of Juliet. According to the heautiful actress who portrans the unhappy hersine in the Wil-liam Fox version of Shakenpeare's master-plece, her parents were illy mated. "Jallet's father is sixty years old or more when the play begins." says Miss Bara, "while her mother is twenty-eight. They must have been married fifteen years previous to this. The union was evidently worldly, arranged by Lady Capulet's Theda

Norma Talmadge's first Selznick-made feature will be "Panthea," and not "The Price She Paid." "Panthea," by Monckton Hoffe, acted first in New York city before the "foots" by Oiga Petrova, has an in-volved theatrical history. It was said to have been written for Doris Keane, who, humeror unvertigent to add William however, never played it, and William Faversham was at one time dickering for the rights.

FRANKFORD GARDEN turned to the ranks after a period of con-valencence, no that the enormous difference of 4400.000 men represents the Austro-Hungarian wastage in killed, permanently disabled, prisoners and missing. Austria-Hungary has already locorpo-rated in the fighting 'army all men able to bear arms between the ages of eighteen and fifty, and also has mobilized for auxiliary services all men between fifty-one and fifty-five. Thus today, the Dual Monarchy can only use to miske good her losses the small leavings of repeated medical revi-sions, after which recourse will have to be made either 2h boys of seventeen or men more than fifty-one.
