

PUTTING 165 LBS. AGAINST 185 IN FOOTBALL IS LIKE COMPARING $1.65 TO $1.85, SAYS METZGER

YOUNGEST AND LIGHTEST TEAM IN EAST AT W. AND J., BUT COACH METZGER IS GETTING RESULTS

Sol's Eleven Has Triumphed in Early Games and Will Give Yale Her First Real Battle in the Bowl Next Saturday

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL

Next Saturday afternoon at the conventional hour Yale will play a football game with the team from Washington and Jefferson College, and it will have an important bearing on the future destiny of Old Eli on the gridiron.

Two weeks ago the game was regarded as a positive cinch; but since five members of the Yale squad, including Captain Black and "Chub" Sheldon, have been laid low by injuries, the outlook is not so rosy.

Also, it might be added, the expert dops on all matters pertaining to the well-known fall sport have tended to add and turn completely over when least expected, and the coaches at New Haven are trembling in their boots—shaking with the fear that the might be the next to be pinned under the wreckage.

Last year the little college in the western part of the State selected a team from her 100 students, sent it to that mammoth concrete bowl to play a routine and departed before nightfall, leaving a fringe of somber blue around the stadium and with the scowls of Old Eli's sons dangling from their belts.

That was last year, and now the men of Yale are thirsting for revenge. Sweet Revenge The thoughts of the massagers are not pleasant; the intruders will be met at the gleams, led on to the field and eleven of the bravest warriors of the tribe will meet out the same punishment that was suffered last year.

Some Scores As an example, take a look at the scores. Last year Geneva was beaten 6 to 0 but this year the score was 53 to 0. West Virginia Wesleyan was defeated 31 to 0 against 3 in 1915, and Marietta, one of the strongest teams in Ohio, was smothered 47 to 6. It can be seen that Yale will not get lost if an opportunity presents itself to wander north the goal posts and depart.

Last year, last you forget, Bob Feltwell was the big name at Washington, Pa., and it was he who dragged the team from the depths of obscurity to the glaring spotlight of popularity. It was "Feltwell's team" then, but since the noted coach headed the team, it has since another has taken his place. It was like the team which numbered after Caruso, or a rookie relieving the great Alexander, but the new man did not falter. Instead he collected the remaining nine, and he did it with a bang. He said machine working just as good as Metzger. Allow us to introduce Sol Metzger, coach of the Washington and Jefferson College team.

Sol Metzger took charge of the eleven on August 28 and found but five veterans with which to build a team. They were Captain Wimberly, guard; Henry, tackle; Stobba, quarter; Nuss, halfback; and McCright, fullback.

There were any number of scrubs left over from the previous season, however, and soon practice was under way, with the squad numbering forty.

Lightest and Youngest Team It was not a husky flock of athletes, nor would it take many prizes in a contest for the aged. It was the lightest and the youngest bunch of players that ever represented the college, and the team now looks like a high school organization—in appearance, but not when in play. The backs average below 155 and the line about 172. It is said that the team is very fast, and we hope such is the case. A puny crowd like that must be fast for self-preservation.

Clay, a new man, has been selected to play center, and Captain Wimberly and Drew the guards. Wimberly is the heaviest of the trio, tipping the beam at 186. Guy weighs 175 and Drew 172. Henry, the left tackle, is said to be the best in the East, and Carroll, who plays on the other side, is fast and aggressive, despite his 168 pounds.

ends are Tressel, 160; Moore, 160; Whitehill, 158, and Wickerman, 156. In't that a formidable rush line to send against Yale!

In the backfield Stobbs, 152, takes care of quarter, and McCright, 158, is fullback. The halfback positions are being fought for by Ruble, 157; Gurley, 155; Crawford, 150, and Nuss, 152. Nuss has not been used very much because of injuries, and is not in shape for scrimmage.

Big Job for Metzger Metzger had quite a task on his hands at the beginning of the season, first, because he was a new man, and, second, because he had very poor material to mold into a team. It was prophesied on all sides that he would meet with disaster in one of the early games; but nothing like that occurred. Now they are pulling for a successful season, despite the fact that Yale and Pitt are on the schedule. But the senior followers of the Red and Blue do not look for a victory over these teams. All they want is a small score.

Sol played on Penn and once coached the team, he was at the University of West Virginia during the last two years and had quite a little success in 1913. His first year was unlucky for Metzger, as he broke his leg early in the season and was weak last year, but he took charge of the team and had such success that he was asked to coach Washington and Jefferson when Feltwell resigned.

Metzger is a good coach. He knows football and can teach it to the men. His system is different from that of Feltwell's, it being more open and football, but he varies his passing attack with many end runs and trick plays. McCright, at fullback, is one of the best forward passers in the intercollegiate game, but I don't see where he is back on punt formation on the opponents do not know whether he will pass, kick or punt, all of which tends to strengthen the attack.

Sol is Philosophical Sol was at the Syracuse-Pitt game last Saturday, and we asked him what chance he had to beat Yale and Pitt.

"The team is awfully light and young," he said, "but I never saw a bunch of players with so much nerve. They are fighting hard to beat Yale and Pitt. If they had more weight I would stack them against any eleven in the country, but as things are now, it can't be expected as a human possibility that my team will do better than Yale and Pitt. I have found that you can't get any better results with 165 pounds against 185 than you can with 185, and as we haven't had a string of wins, we haven't been licked yet, and won't be until the final whistle blows."

"And when we think of how Tufts beat Harvard, Swarthmore triumphed over Penn and Georgetown walloped Dartmouth, we can see that Sol's team is not yet out of the running. Anything is likely to happen in football, and as we haven't had a surprise for a week it's about time for one to occur."

Scholastic Fumbles Reports that Rosemary, of South Philadelphia High School, captain and fullback, had suffered badly from a sprain of the right knee in the football game were moved untried. The Southern Pines and the Southern Pines were moved untried.

The postponed date for the St. Joseph's College and Atlantic City High School contest is yet to be announced, and when the Philadelphia contest is resumed, it may be pretty stiff tilt. Atlantic City opened its season last Saturday evening with a victory against Millville High School. Farrell, tackle, was the star of the game, and he was the only player to be named in the game.

Central High School, possessor of the Intercollegiate football trophy, was defeated by the Philadelphia team in the game played on Saturday. The Philadelphia team, under the leadership of Coach Metzger, defeated the Central team by a score of 14-0.

Catholic High School won the Catholic football championship in the district. The team, under the leadership of Coach Metzger, defeated the other schools in the district by a score of 14-0.

Cynnamon, a line man and one of the best in local ranks, is captain of Catholic High School. He is a very fast and strong player, and he is the only player to be named in the game.

McManamin has been holding down McParland's position in the team. He is a very fast and strong player, and he is the only player to be named in the game.

Temple University has one of the best prep school backfield men in recent years. He is a very fast and strong player, and he is the only player to be named in the game.
