LANDSLIDE FOR WILSON OR CRUSHING DEFEAT, MARSHALL PREDICTS

"Simply a Question of Whether People Like the Adminstration or Not," the Vice President Says

NEVER BET ON ELECTION

This Is the President's Busy Day in New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.

THE following was the program of President Wilson's activities in this city today.

9 a. m.—Arrived from Buffalo and goes on board Mayflower, anchored in Hudson River, to pass morning.

1 p. m.—Attends luncheon of business men at Waldorf.

8:30 p. m.—Makes address at Madison Square Garden.

9:30 p. m.—Leaves Garden to address five overflow meetings.

10 p. m.—Addresses nonvoters at Cooper Union.

Midnight — Leaves for Atlantic Highlands on Mayflower.

Thomas R. Marshall, the Vice President, has never bet on an election. He declared so himself before he left Philadelphia at 10:20 o'clock this morning for Wilmington, where he will urge the voters of Delaware to re-elect Woodrow Wilson and himself.

The Vice President also bitterly attacked Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, for making public a "cursory conversation alleged to have been had with Mr. Breckenridge, who was not a member of the Cabinet." He "hedged" on the result in his own State, Indiana, and predicted that the result of the election will be either an overwhelming victory or an overwhelming defeat for Wilson.

"I never have believed in betting on elections," said Mr. Marshall, "and as for betting odds being any indication of the situation, straw votes, polls and other guesses are just as good weathervanes."

He appeared to be optimistic over President Wilson's chances for re-election, although he said he was just as "cocksure" that if Wilson is beaten it will be a landslide for Hughes.

"I FEEL CONFIDENT"

"I have been all over the country," he said, "and I do not believe for one minute that the criticisms that have been leveled against Mr. Wilson are having any weight with the voters. I feel confident that he will be re-elected by an overwhelming majority.

"But I am just as 'cocksure' that if he is defeated, he will be beaten overwhelmingly. It is not a question of parties this year, or of issues. It is simply a question whether the people like Mr. Wilson's administration or not. If they do like it, they will return him to the White House by a tremendous majority. If they don't like him, they will beat him by just as large a majority."

"Last night you referred to the Breckinridge matter—," his interviewer began.

"I most certainly did not refer to any Breckinridge matter," broke in the Vice President. He was emphatic. "I discussed the Lodge matter."

"You are speaking as a Democrat when you call it the Lodge matter, are you not?"

"I most certainly am," he declared. "I don't often criticise, but it is almost a crime to have men in public office spreading broadcast cursory conversations without verifying them.

"One thing seems to have been forgotten, and that is that Mr. Breckinridge was never a member of the Cabinet. He could not speak with any authority, and it is preposterous to suppose that he could have knowledge of anything discused by the Cabinet.

"I am surprised that Senator Lodge should have retailed vague conversations which had been told to him by some one else who in turn had been told them by a man who did not know. Senator Lodge stood on the floor of Congress and argued in favor of the President's foreign policy, and I cannot understand why he should now be telling on the stump the conversations attributed to Mr. Breckinridge."

Mr. Marshall pleaded complete ignorance of how the campaign is progressing in his home State of Indiana.

"I have not been there since September 25, and I have not been in touch with the situation in Indiana since I left the State to speak in the campaign.

"As a matter of fact, I do not believe that it does much good to do what they call 'building fences.' All a man can do is to say what he has to say, present his arguments in the best way he can, and then wait for the result of the vote. It all depends upon the voters, and they know what they are doing. It won't change the result a bit to know whether you are going to win or lose before the votes are counted."

USES A M'CORMICK PHRASE

The Vice President borrowed Vance McCormick's phrase, "on fire," in describing Wilson's chances in Illinois and Ohio.

"I have been all through Ohio and Illinois," he said, "and they are both on fire for Wilson. You can't tell me that the flames for Wilson will go to the eastern border of Indiana, stop there, and then start again on the western border.

"But I am not making any predictions about Indiana. In 1896 I was a member of the State Committee. We made what we thought was a thorough poll of the State. The votes were cast honestly, too. We felt certain that Bryan would carry Indiana by 75,000. But when the votes were counted we found that he had lost it by almost that many votes. You never can tell how it's going to come out until the votes are counted."

THOMPSON ASKS NEW TRIAL

Accomplice in Jailkeeper's Murder Dissatisfied With Second-Degree Verdict

A new trial will be asked for George E. Thompson, who yesterday was convicted of murder in the second degree in the Camden County Courthouse. According to his attorney, Thompson himself feels that the jury was prejudiced and that he did not "get a square deal."

Application for the new trial will be made tomorrow to Justice Garrison, of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, by Joseph Beck Tyler, Thompson's attorney. The motion will be made on the grounds that there was no evidence to warrant a conviction for murder in any degree. "At worst it should have been manslaughter," Mr. Tyler said.

Mr. Tyler also believes that the jury was prejudiced. He notified Prosecutor Kraft today that the application would be made tomorrow.

Thompson was the accomplice of Wilson C. Ashbridge in the killing of Isaac Hibbs, a guard of the Camden jail, on July 17, when both escaped. The maximum penalty for second-degree murder in New Jersey is thirty years at hard labor in the State penitentiary.

Justice Garrison tomorrow will fix the date for the execution of Wilson C. Ashbridge, who was convicted of murder in the first degree in the Camden Courthouse on October 25. Ashbridge killed Elizabeth Dunaker, an actress, at Ninth and Market streets, Camden. He shot her five times.

NEW YORK CITY ROARS GREETINGS TO WILSON; TO SPEAK AT 'GARDEN'

3000 Extra Seats Installed for Mammoth Demonstration Tonight—Four Speeches on Schedule

TAMMANY WILL PARADE

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—President Wilson, arriving today for his first campaign drive in New York city, was greeted with a roar of enthusiasm such as promised to make his Madison Square Garden appearance tonight a rival of the political meeting in the Garden four years ago, when he was cheered for more than an hour.

The President reached here from Buffalo at 9 o'clock, cheered by a great demonstration there last night and by reports of his lieutenants there that the State will go Democratic.

His schedule called for three big speeches, in which he hoped to hammer home a telling political argument, with perhaps some added speeches at overflow meetings.

Democratic managers predicted he would have the greatest political audience of the present campaign, and made plans accordingly. Three thousand extra seats were placed in the Madison Square Garden, making the capacity 14,000.

The President's plans were to board the presidential yacht Mayflower, remain there until 12:30; then he had a speech before the Wilson Business Men's League. Tonight he speaks at Madison Square Garden and Cooper Union.

As part of the night demonstration, Tammany will turn out thousands of its followers in a parade.

MAY SPEND $2,000,000 ON NAVY YARD HERE

High Officials Believe League Island Will Be Put in Shape for Battleship Building

Practical assurance that the Philadelphia Navy Yard would be given orders to build battle cruisers was voiced by high navy officials today in Washington in considering the expenditure of $2,000,000 on League Island immediately so that when bids are opened on December 5 for the building of battleships work can be started without delay.

Admiral Benson, chief of operations, and Admiral Taylor, chief of construction, both hold the opinion that it would be advisable to equip the yard here at once for the big work that must soon be transferred from private to Government plants, as indications so far point to the reluctance of private yards to enter bids.

Congressman William S. Vare held a conference today in Washington with Admiral Benson in regard to the construction of the ways at League Island for building battleships and said after the talk that the Philadelphia yard would be the biggest in the United States. There is also under consideration the proposition of spending all of the $6,000,000 available on the Philadelphia Navy Yard, instead of spending but $2,000,000 here.

PHILADELPHIA HOUSES REFUSE TO BE LURED FROM HOME SHIP LINE

More Big Manufacturers Declare for Local Company Despite Foreign Concerns' Low Rate Line

"ROLL OF HONOR" GIVEN

Philadelphia's exporters are rallying to the support of the Philadelphia-South American steamship line, despite the alluring bait of lower rates held out by agents of foreign controlled lines operating from New York.

Patriotic desire for the development of Philadelphia as a port of shipment is overcoming business profit with many important exporting houses of this city, and the latest development in the effort of New York to "pocket" the Philadelphia trade shows that the merchants here are standing resolutely for their home city.

New recruits to the standard of direct shipment from Philadelphia are being reported daily, the latest list being a "Philadelphia Roll of Honor," issued today by the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce. This capitulation contains the names of nineteen firms or corporations that have contracted to ship exports via the Philadelphia-South American Line.

In making public this list Howard B. French, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said:

"Thanks to the very substantial aid of the newspapers and intensive work upon the part of the foreign trade bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, Philadelphia exporters are rapidly contracting for space on the steamship Evelyn, which sails from here this month, and engagements are also being made for the December sailing.

"Reports from Herman Wright, president of the new line, demonstrate that several firms which had not indicated interest in this movement have, under the spur of the newspapers and after personal solicitation by members of the foreign trade committee, decided to use this line in making shipments to South American ports.

The good work will be kept up, and Mr. Wright has promised to supply to the Chamber of Commerce the names of those exporters who have not given him cargo, with full data from his solicitors' reports showing the reasons why those who have refused to use the new line prefer New York to Philadelphia. As soon as this list is received every effort will be made by the officers and members of the Chamber of Commerce to bring every pressure possible to bear so that all exports originating here shall be shipped in the vessels operated from this port by the Philadelphia and South American Steamship Corporation.

The firms included in the list furnished by the Chamber are: J. G. Brill Company, Smythfield Export Company, Union Petroleum Company, Crew-Levick Company, C. J. Webb Company, Dr. Jayne Medicine Company, Henry Disston & Sons, Rohm & Haas, D. C. Andrews & Co., John R. Evans & Co., William H. Lorimer Sons & Co., H. K. Mulford Company, Arthur H. Thomas Company, Pratt Food Company, Quaker City Rubber Company, Standard Supply and Equipment Company, William Simpson Sons & Co., Miller Lock Company and Enterprise Manufacturing Company.

BUGHES MINUS ONE VOTE

Harold Whiteside, on Y. M. C. A. Border Work, Can't Cast Ballot

Opposition to the policies of President Wilson are so strong with Harold C. Whiteside, who is serving the Young Men's Christian Association on the border, that he has made an earnest plea to Mayor Smith to make it possible for him to vote.

"Will you make it possible," his message, received today, said, "for my ballot to be cast for the man who can bring the country out of dishonor and disgrace—Hughes! I am serving the Young Men's Christian Association on the border with North Dakota troops at Mercedes, Tex. My home is at [illegible] avenue, Fifteenth Ward.

Harold Whiteside."

He said he would like to add the one vote to the big Philadelphia majority, but the law is against him.

WHEN A ROBIN IS A BLACKBIRD BLIND GUNNERS MAY GUN UNMOLESTED

Hunter in Lower Merion Admits He Didn't Know the Difference, and It Cost Him Mile Run and $13.50 Imposed by Court

A near-sighted gunner is regarded as a dangerous animal in Lower Merion Township. Men who cannot see what they're shooting or shoot what they're seeing are not tolerated.

It is also possible that all hunters in that neighborhood will be required to take a course in ornithology. Today it was brought to light that some gunners did not know the kind of birds they're looking at.

Now, many experts agree that a robin is somewhat different in complexion and build from a blackbird. Yet John Saraseno, a suburban hunter, shot an innocent robin which was piping a lay of declining autumn and gathered it in his bag. He thought it was a blackbird.

But the shooting was witnessed by William Dayton and his son Jesse. They called upon Saraseno to halt when they saw the bird flutter to the ground. He answered them with an angry growl and fled through the Lower Merion forests. The Daytons pursued him over hill and dale, through meadows and forest, and finally caught the hunted hunter after a run of nearly a mile.

Then, just like the villain in the movies, Saraseno, it is said, offered his captors $2 to let him go.

"I thought the robin was a blackbird," he said. "I didn't know the difference."

But the Daytons demurred. They took the near-sighted hunter before Magistrate Stillwagon, at Ardmore. He looked at Saraseno with contempt when he told of his mistake as to the bird's identity. The Judge couldn't see how a man who called himself a hunter could make such a grievous error. He fined Saraseno $13.50 and complimented the Daytons for their energy in behalf of the law.
