

CROWDS HEAR RETURNS OF CLOSE RACE BEFORE EVENING LEDGER OFFICE

Fully 4000 Persons Get Latest Reports by Bulletin and Megaphone Service of Paper

CHEERS FILL STREETS

Fully 4000 persons, eager for news of the exciting presidential race, jammed the intersection of Sixth and Chestnut streets today for the returns given by the Evening Ledger's bulletin and megaphone service, while inside the building eight regular employees and thirty extra telephone operators answered thousands of telephone calls bearing requests, plans and demands for information.

Minute by minute, as the reports were passed in from all over the country, the news was megaphoned to the clamorous crowd that almost blocked traffic on the boulevard. At the same time the mechanical records reported that showed theebb and flow in the race for the highest national honor.

It was a responsive crowd. As each succeeding bit of information was shouted or put in print, the closely packed mass of men became all animation and the cheers of the Wilson adherents reverberated down the narrow street. The Wilson rosters and many others who gave vent to their admiration for the "garrison" finish of the pick-making device. Defeated by the unexpected strength displayed by the Democratic party, the Republicans, receiving new life as encouraging reports filtered in, howled themselves hoarse.

During the hockey game the ball was driven out of bounds and landed among some bushes growing on a vacant lot. The boys ran to the spot where the ball landed and were surprised to discover a stack of fifty-cent coins.

A Series of Eye Talks

Write or call for our new and interesting "Book of Looking Into Your Own Eyes."

UCHI has already been said in commendation of the use by many people of the same book—especially in public places.

There are many eye diseases that are contagious, and there is no surer or more direct way of imagining of contracting such diseases than by wiping the face with a towel that has previously been used by an infected person.
