KICKED AND BEAT HIM, CLERGYMAN TESTIFIES

Turbulent Domestic Relations Rehearsed in Resumption of Divorce Proceedings Before Master

"WOODBURY TOO SLOW"

TRENTON, Nov. 10.—Hearing was resumed today before Advisory Master in Chancery Joline in the divorce suit of the Rrs. John E. Triplett, pastor of a Presbyterian shurch at Woodbury, from Mrs. Dorterian structure in the grounds of desertion and infidelity. At former hearterians it was brought out that Mrs. Triplett had declared Woodbury was too slow for her, that she preferred Broadway and didn't like the "hen parties" in Woodbury, that she intended to force her husband out of the ministry as she wanted him to go into business.

Mr. Triplett resumed his testimony today.

into business.

Mr. Triplett resumed his testimony today, talding up the thread of the story of his allesed turbulent domestic relations from where he discontinued the tale last Friday. He told how his wife, in a fit of temper, had poured turpentine down his neck and it had run down under his collar into his shoes. On another occasion, when he threatened to correct their little daughter Doris, his wife, the minister said, had clawed and kicked him, had declared the child Doris was not his. She had kicked him on the right shin, he said, and "the scar is there yet."

He told her that he did not approve of such things as he thought them harmful.

things as he thought them harmful.

He then related an incident which had eccurred, he said, at a reception in a railed phia church, when, after he had introduced his wife to the pastor and the latter offered to introduce her to other members of the church, she replied that she didn't like church people, she did not want to meet "codfish aristocrats" and had come to the reception only to please her husband.

She often told me she was a fool to be a wife to me, because I could not make as much money as other men. She would tell of meeting other—handsome—men who had made an impression on her. On the troller, she said, men would give their seats

Mr. Triplett told of the influence Mrs. Margaret Nelson, his wife's mother, had over his wife and how Mrs. Nelson was fre quently abusive to him. He said he told his mother-in-law at their home in Wood-bury that unless she changed her ways must leave the house. She rushed out of the room, he said, waving two letters at him and shouting: "You got to get up early in the morning to get even with the old lady."

He said his wife frequently twitted him ever the fact that a former maid of theirs had married a well-to-do gentleman and the complained that her maid was living ter than she was living

CLOSELY CROSS-EXAMINED

Former Attorney General Henry Wilson k the witness on cross-examination and r severly questioned him on his direct sony in an effort to break down some of his statements. The lawyer took up the incident testified to when Triplett said he saw the corespondent, George E. Cosh, New York broker, with his arm around Mrs.

"You did not take the man to task when you saw this," asked the lawyer of Trip-

"You allowed him to leave the place without calling him to account?"

"Yes." Triplett later had told his wife that if Cosh didn't cease his visits he (Triplett) would lick Cosh or Cosh would lick him. His persistence in his attention to my wife," said Mr. Triplett, "was making a scandal and I felt I owed it to my child, my wife and myself that if my wife did not something to stop this scandal I would to stop it."

Mrs. Triplett, handsomely gowned, was in court and closely followed her husband's lestimony, at time suggesting questions to her course'

OUT in Rensington, perhaps the most thickly settled part of Philadelphia, you have only to mention the Lighthouse to be directed with eagerness and enthusiasm in its direction. At once, from the manner of the reply, you deduce that it must be a most desirable place to visit. It is—there is not a more popular place of assemblage than the Lighthouse, a neighborhood house which is open at all times and to all peoples. It is under the efficient management of Mrs. Robert R. P. Bradford and her able assistants, is located at 152 West Lehigh avenue and gives ample evidence, by its success, of the public spirit and executive ability of this Philadelphia woman.

As for the lantern of this lighthouse on land, it is only a cheery little phamphlet, issued monthly, which tries to throw a bright, encouraging light across the uncertain path of many a storm-tossed wayfarer, steer him past the shoals of the drink habit and pilot him. him at last into the safer harbor where he can always find the secure anchorage of a brotherly, helping hand. In fact, the chief object of the institution, frankly stated by its managers, is to provide a counter-attraction to the 197 saloons and four breweries which are located in the institutions. which are located in the immediate vicin-ity; to do away with corper lounging and other places of vicious interest, and to prove other places of vicious interest, and to prove to the pessimist that human nature is essen-tially good, except when warped by the stress of too great an economic pressure and hardship. With this idea in view, everything possible is done to make the neighborhood, composed mostly of hard-working mill workers, a brighter and hap-niar place in which to like pier place in which to live

The activities of the Lighthouse are varied and numerous. There is a men's club-house, which has many cozy rooms, where checkers, chess, dominoes and billiards are played nightly; a library full of books and comfortable easy chairs; hot and cold baths on tap for the lover of aquatic sports; bowling and quoit alleys, and a roof-garden, where the somnolent breezes of the Dela-ware can be enjoyed.

The Women and Girls' Club offers as many opportunities along distinctly femi-nine lines. Classes in dressmaking and mil-linery have been held for the last ten or eleven years; there is a long waiting list, and the membership is now almost 600, well-known classics are studied. There is a Campfire Chapter for the younger girls, which is provided with the proper regalla for "squaw" demoiselles; while a nurser relieves the tired mother of the still young er ones. Instruction in singing, violin, piano, gymnasium work, basketry, etc., is also given.

As for the boys, they, too, have a splen-did clubhouse, containing a billiard room, swimming pool, library and gymnasium, where they can wrestle, play indoor base-ball, practice woodcarving and work off their boyish exuberance in many delightful

The cosmopolitan character of its membership may be judged from the fact that there are Armenians, Germans, Poles, Italians, Scotch, English and Irish who meet in its halls in fraterhity and friendship. There is also a movie smoker given periodically to relieve the longings of the movie-mad.

POSTMISTRESS ACCUSED

Mrs. Stowman, of Flourtown Office Arraigned on Charge of Embezzling Funds

Mrs. Mary T. Stowman, who has been for many years postmistress of Flourtown, Pa., and the widowed mother of four small children, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Long this morning on a harge of embesziing Government funds and falsifying postal entries. She will be tried before the Federal District Court in De-cember, Commissioner Long having placed her under $1000 bail for her appearance.

John D. Kernan, postoffice inspector, charged that the postmistress had embezzied $894.98 in postoffice money orders and $50.85 in general postal funds. And to cover up the embezziement, he charged, she falsified the entries in reports made to the auditor's department of the Philadelphia Postoffice, of which Flourtown is a correspondent. The shortage, he said, had been found in the records since January.

DEACONESS HOME'S WORK

Splendid Achievements in Behalf Poor and Unfortunate Shown in Institution's Annual Report

The work of the Desconness Home maintained by the Methodist Church at 609-11-13-15 Vine street was shown to be one of the most progressive and serviceable of Philadelphia's institutions in the annual reperts read today at the thirty-third meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Philadelphia Conference, which closed its two-day sessions this afternoon in the Methodist Episcopal Church of the Covenant, Spruce and Eighteenth streets. Covenant, Spruce and Eighteenth streets.

The total receipts of the Missionary Society were $25,909 for the year, $17,420 of which was turned over to the Deaconess Home. After the payment of other missionary contributions and over $6000 to the general treasury of the Philadelphia Con-ference, the treasurer's report showed a balference, the treasurer's report showed a bal-ance of $11.32, indicating the completeness of the use of the funds for charitable pur

The thirteen resident desconess ten missionaries who do the work of this important settlement in the district north of Market and east of Tenth street appeared at the session this afternoon and told in detail of the various departments, the kindergarten, the kitchen school, the boys' trade classes, the night classes, as well as the religious work among the downand-out men and women of the tenderloin.
Miss Winnetta L. Stacks made the principal address and Mrs. E. L. Richards gave the financial report.

The enrollment committee reported ar increase in membership in the Missionary Society of 2717 during the year, making the total membership in the conference of over 17,000 women. Moving-picture ex-posures of the work of various missionary activities were shown and explained this morning by the department secretaries. Mrs. C. W. Bickley presided. More than 200 delegates attended.

SCHOOL LUNCH BOARD PROMISED BY GARBER

Gratz Complaint of System Rouses Officials to Order Inquiry

Immediate investigation of the pennyluncheon system in the elementary schools was promised this morning by Dr. John P. Garber, Superintendent of City Schools, following criticism made by Smion Gratz yes-terday at the meeting of the elementary schools committee of the Board of Educa-Reports will be made by supervisors principals at all buildings where the cheons are sold to school children.

"We expect to have our investigation com pleted so that a report can be furnished to the elementary schools committee at its next meeting. December 13," said Doctor Garber this morning.

Mr. Gratz said in explaining his action that no personal charges were made against Miss Emma Smedley, who supervises the school luncheons, but that many complaints have been made of excessive overhead ex-penses and possible mismanagement.

The members of the Board of Education have not had time to make personal investigations of the school lunchrooms," said Mr. Gratz, "but when we hear criti-clams we are justified in learning the truth. Our chief concern is to provide the best

Our chief concern is to provide the best and most economical service for the children of the elementary schools."

Nothing but the highest praise for Miss Smedley has been given by members of the board, although it is understood that the majority of members are opposed to her requests for a percentage of any profits that may be made in the luncheon service, as they consider her salary of these as they consider her salary of $4000 a year sufficient.

Woman suffrage amendments were evidently beaten in the two States that voted on them Tuesday. In South Dakota, with 200 precincts still to be heard from, the vote stood 22,934 for and 25,248

Estimates of majorities of women for President Wilson are based on the obser-vation of the apparent popularity with the women of the argument that he saved the Dunning, one of the leading suf-fragists of Philadelphia, said that in no instance had the adoption of equal suffrage changed the political complexion of a State. "The women divided evenly with the men, as nearly as I have been able to judge from the returns," added Mrs. Dunning. "What is more, the Women's Party, representing the Congressional Union, was working throughout the West against Wilson, bethroughout the West against Wilson, because he and the Democratic Congress had refused their demands for a national suffrage amendment. Apparently these campaigners, some of whom were from Philadelphia, had little effect," she said.

'I Must Have Been Crazy," Says Woman, Who Will Probably Recover

Mrs. Helen Cover, of 1232 Lafayette street, Baltimore, is sorry that she at-tempted to commit suicide last night by drinking poison with her coffee in the Broad Street Station restaurant. Recovering from the effects in Hahnemann Hospital this morning, she said: "I must have been craxy to do such a thing."

Mrs. Cover seemed anxious to see the orning papers, and on reading accounts becoming violently sick from the polson in the crowded restaurant, she expressed vexation that the story got in print. The polson she took acts slowly, physiclans said, and the seriousness of her condition is not yet definitely decided. It is believed, however, that she will fully re-

Methchorie, or geometrical dancing, is its label, and Mme, Valentine de Saint Point is its exponent. She is now en route to New York on the Monsenat from Barcelons, Spain. The dancing which she will introduce has a "cerebral quality," which is explained thus:

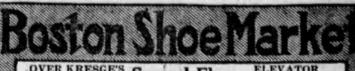

While music, painting and sculpture have changed in form and method, becoming more "cerebral" instead of merely emotional, dancing has remained an art which appeals through the eye, to the sense alone. In the new geometrical dancing all of the elements which fill the house when Mary Garden dances Salome are retained and artistries are introduced giving the movement mean-
