

ILLUSTRATED Evening Ledger

SATURDAY
November 11, 1916

1

2

3

4

5

6

(1) Chicago Councilmen who have come to Philadelphia to learn some points on transit. Philadelphia, in turn, can learn from them the benefits of a universal free transfer system—free not only from car to car, but soon between surface and "L." (2) Two new Krupp guns captured, loaded, by the Russians fighting in the Champagne, France. (3) James Thompson, in the harness, bet on Hughes, while James McGrann favored the Democracy. (4) You read their names in the papers—Coroner William R. Knight (right) and Coroner's Detective Frank Paul. (5) James S. McLaughlin, chief of the Electrical Bureau, with J. H. Lambert, Jr., at his right. The latter is secretary to Director of Public Safety Wilson. (6) William S. Twining, Director of the Department of City Transit, at the right, and Chairman Gaffney, of Council's Finance Committee, as they appeared at yesterday's public transit discussion.