WEST VIRGINIA REPUBLICANS FEAR OUSTING PETITIONS

Special Session of Legislature to Amend Election Laws

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 14.—Announcement was made by James A. Strother, State Senator from McDowell County, following a conference with Governor H. H. Hatfield, that a tentative agreement had been reached to call an extraordinary session of the State Legislature next Monday to enact amendments to the State election laws and to pass a bill placing the appointive power now held by the Governor into the hands of the Board of Public Works.

The claim is made that under the present laws all Republicans elected Tuesday to State offices can be ousted through petitions for contest from their Democratic opponents and an amendment to this statute is desired.

TRAINMEN WON'T BROOK TRIFLING WITH 8-HOUR LAW, GOMPERS SAYS

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 14. SAMUEL GOMPERS, president of the American Federation of Labor, believes that the railroad strike averted on September 4 by the passage of the Adamson eight-hour law will take place on January 1 "if entrenched wealth" succeeds in delaying enforcement of the law through injunction proceedings.

The following question was put to Mr. Gompers after the adjournment of the first session of the A. F. of L. convention.

"If operation of the eight-hour law does not begin on January 1, as provided in the Adamson bill, will the railroad trainmen strike?"

"And why not? Why not? Why shouldn't they? Why not? Why shouldn't they? Mr. Gompers demanded very promptly and very emphatically. "If entrenched wealth, through the railroad magnates, should go against the action of Congress last summer, and against the expressed will of the American people at the polls last Tuesday—if entrenched wealth should go against the law, then why shouldn't the railroad trainmen strike?"

"But there will be no strike. The railroad magnates will not dare interfere with the operation of the law. It was provided in the bill that the bill becomes operative on January 1. There may be court proceedings (though I don't believe that there will be), but the courts will not restrain the law's becoming effective on the date provided."

"The people of this country expressed last Tuesday their approval of President Wilson and of the labor legislation passed during his first Administration. Entrenched wealth, Democratic and Republican, bitterly opposed Mr. Wilson's re-election and did all that their wealth and influence could to bring about the election of the candidate of their choice, Mr. Hughes. This was no secret. Everybody knew it. The whole American people knew it and they re-elected Woodrow Wilson President of the United States."

DEADLOCK IN PARLEY ON EIGHT-HOUR DAY

Managers and Brotherhood Men May Meet Again Next Saturday in Washington

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—With the railroad situation again growing ominous, another meeting of the officials of the "Big Four" brotherhoods and the railway managers' committee has been set provisionally for next Sunday in Washington. It may be held sooner.

"No power on earth can prevent a national strike if the Adamson law is held unconstitutional," declared G. H. Stone, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen before leaving New York today.

"This attitude has been taken by us because by means of injunctions the railroads can defeat the purpose of the commission appointed by the President to see that the eight-hour law is given a fair trial."

FREDERICK, Md., Nov. 14.—While trying to save her elder sister, Edith Hutchins, Ridgeville, from being run down by a frightened horse last night, Bessie Hutchins was run down by a horse driven by J. Howard Kain, of Ridgeville, and killed almost instantly.

The animal, according to the version given by Kain, was frightened at a passing automobile, the team being headed in the direction the two girls were walking.

"The end of a shaft struck the right side of the girl's head, causing concussion of the brain. Kain did not know that he had run down the girls until a negro, who was in the buggy, said 'I believe we have run down somebody.'" Kain stopped the animal and investigated.

BANKERS' INSURANCE COMPANY REPUDIATES PART IN WOOD'S PLAN

Never Considered Scheme for Grand Consolidation, Representative of Chicago Concern Declares

PROMOTER REMAINS MUTE

The American Bankers' Insurance Company of Chicago, Ill., through its Philadelphia representatives, today denied that it would be a party to any sort of a merger—the kind Lyndon D. Wood, president of the Pension Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Pittsburgh, Pa., had hoped to create.

"The reputation and integrity of the American Bankers' Insurance Company," reads the statement issued by Jones, Launt & Barrett, Inc., of 411-413 Walnut street, which represents the Bankers' Insurance Company, "would not allow it to be a party of any such scheme or proposition, and in order that the atmosphere may be cleared the Eastern managers emphatically state that at no time will the company be a party to any such scheme."

Insurance Commissioner J. Denny O'Neill is expected to take action on the insurance examiners' report relating to the affairs of the Pension Mutual Life Insurance Company this week. Arguments on the application of receivership for the company will be heard next Thursday.

Wood refused to say much after the report of the insurance examiners was made public. He has headquarters in the offices of the Consolidated Investment Company, which has a suite of rooms on the eighth floor of the Finance Building. This company is closely identified with the Pension Mutual Life Insurance Company, and some of its former directors represented the Penrose-McNehol wing of the Republican organization in different parts of Pennsylvania.

Wood, who is the dominating power in the Consolidated Investment Company, refused to answer any questions when asked why the bonds valued at $971,500 were still being carried on the company's books, although such bonds were no longer in the company's property.

Wood merely stood erect and looked at the blood mahogany furniture in the office and remained silent.

During the interview the insurance wizard maintained his usual accustomed poise. His clear eyes betrayed no curiosity and his mobile face no feeling.

RAILWAY LABOR UNION BARS READING CLERKS FROM ORGANIZATION

Independent Order of Employees, in Annual Session at Reading, Refuses to Extend Eligibility Rule

MEN WILL RENEW FIGHT

READING, Pa., Nov. 14.—Efforts to have the eligibility clause extended to admit clerks and signal department employees to membership precipitated strong debate at today's sessions of the annual convention of the Independent Order of Railway Employees, comprising telegraphers and other attaches of the Reading Railway.

The plan would have made every clerk in the employ of the company eligible to membership, and in view of the benefits in wage increases and improved working conditions it is likely that nearly all of the thousands of clerks, now unorganized, would have flocked to the ranks of the order.

Representatives of the clerks and signal department employees from many cities were on hand to plead their cause, but they were not admitted to the meeting.

A general system of organization was mapped out to include every office and division on the Reading system, and President Tallow, of Philadelphia, was authorized to engage an organizer from within the ranks for the purpose of going among the men and explaining to them the advantages of the order.

It was learned that a movement was on foot by promoters to effect a merger with the Independent Order of Railway Employees, but prominent officials of the latter said that any attempt in this direction would be vigorously fought and was bound to result in failure.
