chief qualifications are his demonstrated skill in political manipulation. The day is coming when we shall demand for the service of the city the same skill that we demand for the preservation of our health or for the direction of the technical branches of our own private business. The dawning of the day will be hastened when successful business men bring the pressure of their great influence to, bear upon the politicians to force the selection of experts to do the work for which expert knowledge is required in the public offices. Such discussions as have been going on at the University yesterday and today ought to Impress on these business men the necessity for action.

A GOLDEN ERA OF PROGRESS

THE independents of this city and State, together with the independently minded Republicans and Democrats, have the chance of their lives to force through the Legislature the greatest progressive measures in a generation.

The Governor, Penrose and the Vares have felt the groundswell of a revolt that is nation-wide. They see-as who cannot see?-that each State has been put on its mettle by the national voice to declare itself progressive or pullback, to write into its laws measures for the upbuilding of its stamina, of its health, commerce, highways and ports. The two factions are rushing to get on the bandwagon with rival programs of reform.

Pennsylvania can no longer hold aloof from the national swing. The State that gave Roosevelt 500,000 plurality because it believed he was more progressive than Parker cut that majority down to a mfnimum because many thousands of its citizena believed Hughes was not so progreasive as either Roosevelt or Wilson. The EVENING LEDGER believes they erred in judgment about Hughes. But it cannot see the heavy Wilson vote-nearly 50,000 above the normal Democratic vote in this city-as anything but the effect of the same moral impulse that elected

Blankenburg, an impulse to repudlate gangism, though it broke the voting traditions of a lifetime to do it.

For the time there are no parties. We are all awaking to the fact that we have been through a revolution. Who will say to the ninety-odd thousand Philadelphians who eligned themselves with the man who declares he has put into law most of the Roosevelt platform of 1912;

who will say to the State that gave its thirty-eight votes to that Progressive platform when it rejected both Taft and Wilson as too conservative, that it is to go backward?

Already two leaders have hastened to accept proposals that have come from the people and not from politicians. Senator Vare and Governor Brumbaugh have

A solid South and a nearly solid West now confront a election-remarkable because of the united Republican Party, as the Republican vote, divided between Taft and Roosevelt, ex-ceeded that cast for Wilson overwhelmingly. The balance against Wilson was over 1,300,000 votes-an apparently handleap for any party. It fell to Wilson to overcome this up-hill handleap and to turn the adverse balance into a credit. The law providing for an experimental eight-hour day with ten hours' pay on railroads did not say anything about the mileage basis for wages. The employe has been paid either for ten hours' work or a 100-mile run. In reducing the hours to eight Congress did not also reduce the mileage day to eighty, nor was it pressed to enforce the mileage hasis, which the brotherhoods declare they will not now surrender. This is only one of many perplexities which made the employes distrustful of the inw as soon as they had forced it through. But the measure was admittedly political and social, and not administrative.
