

WATCH YOUR GASOLINE MEASURE
Automobilists are said to be losing thousands of dollars through incorrect or dishonest measuring. In this picture an expert points to an improved gauge by which fractional portions are registered in plain view of the purchaser. See the article on an inner page.

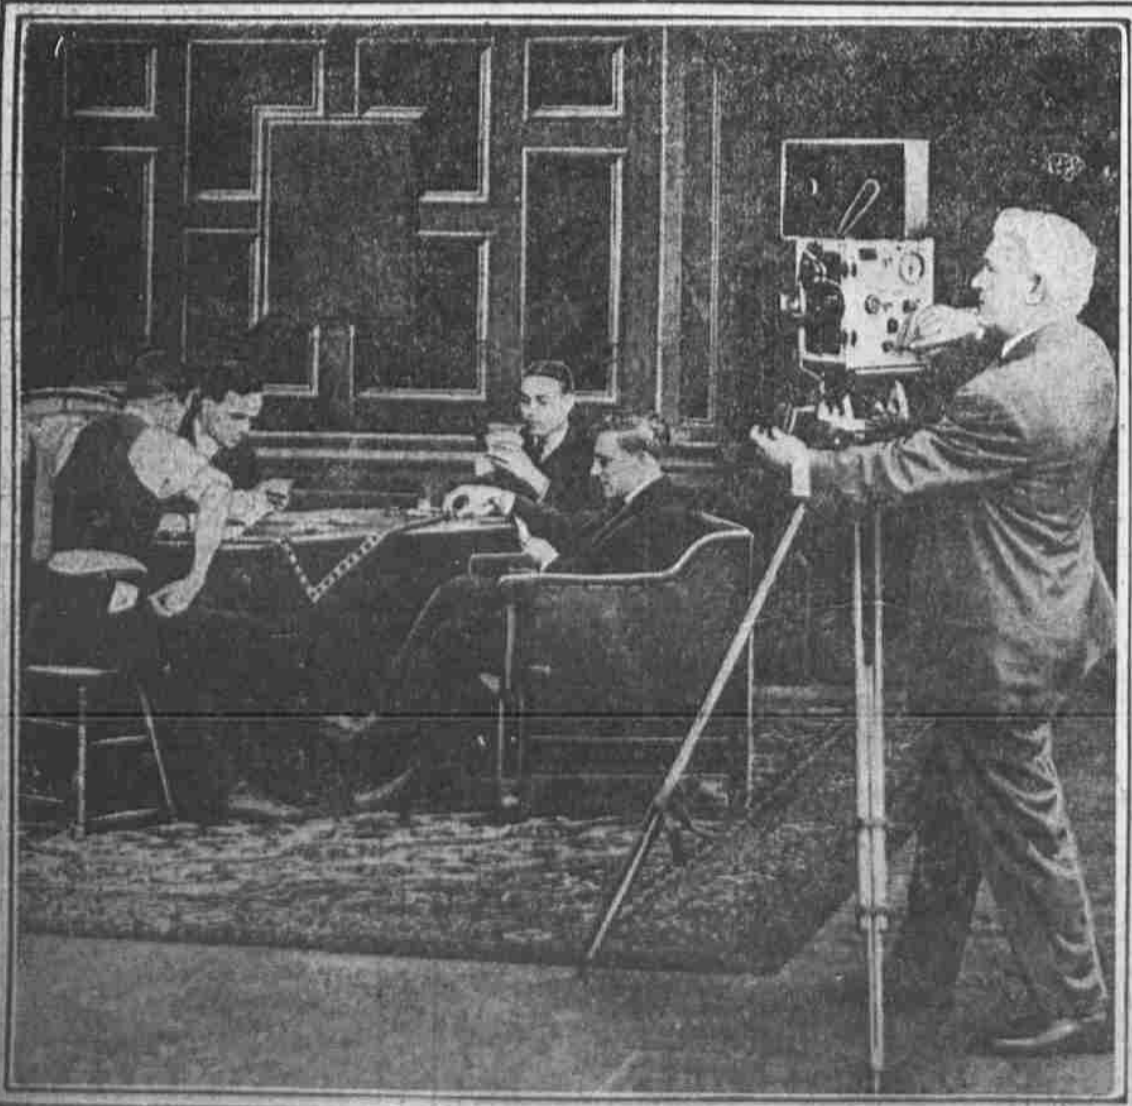

"BABY JIM'S" COAT FITS FOUR MEN
The 792-pound Rodman street resident has had himself fitted for new apparel. The four tailors building the coat are shown inside of it.

GETTING ALL THE "GAS" DUE YOU
The better sort of pumps automatically drain the hose after each filling.

WAR IS A WEARING OCCUPATION
Here are some Bulgarian soldiers, glad to rest after their capture by Serbs. They are wearing the tape-wound leggings characteristic of the Bulgar fighting man.

ALL PHILADELPHIA PHOTOPLAY NOW BEING FILMED
Showing one of the interior settings of "Phil and Delphina," the scenario and cast of which were selected by EVENING LEDGER readers by vote. The work of production will be completed shortly.

DEMOCRAT, AND GLAD OF IT
Thomas J. McGinnis, Select Councilman from the Sixth Ward, carried it for Wilson and feels well pleased thereat.

LOTTIE CLEARS A TWELVE-FOOT FENCE
She's a German sheepdog of high degree, being valued by her owner, Herman Kunze, at $10,000.

THE NEW FRANKLIN BANK BUILDING
Its looming columns impart a new aspect to the south side of Chestnut street west of Broad.

(Note: Of seventy guesses received by the first mail, sixty were correct in naming Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh as the owner of the eyebrow which appeared on this page on Tuesday. This is strong testimony for EVENING LEDGER readers' powers of observation. Among the guesses that missed the mark, three named William Penn, two W. J. Bryan, one Woodrow Wilson, and two Charles Chaflin. John O'Connell, fifteen years old, giving his business address as the Phoenix Building, wrote: "I believe the above eyebrow is that of Charles Evans Hughes, the Republican candidate for the recent presidential election." Referring to the Governor's eye, he wrote: "I saw them at school five years ago and I have never forgotten them." So many replies are still coming in, even from distant parts of the state, an attempt will be made to give "where" names this time. Other "guess what" pictures will appear on this page from time to time.)