The Young Lady Across the Way

We observed to the young lady across the way that taxation was becoming a great burden, and she said she realized that and there didn't seem to be any excuse for it when it wgs so easy to besue bonds and not have it cost anybody anything.

Suggestions of Both

"I can't quite make up my mind whether young Woggs is trying to be a desperado or a mollycoddie." "Neither. He is conscientiously endeavoring to resemble the hero of the novel his best girl is reading."--

CHRISTMAS IS COMING Dearest Children-I want you to get ready for Christmas NOW. I want you to make a list of ALL those you wish to remember. Then I want you to make a cross mark opposite the names of those who are to receive something which you have made yourself.

I have found out where you can buy a Christmas present for one penny, including the delivery of it. At the postoffice you can buy a postal card for a cent and that will pay for delivering it. On the back of the postal card you can write a nice little verse or just MERRY CHRISTMAS and HAPPY NEW YEAR" and sign your name.

I would rather have one of these homemade presents than an automobile

First of all, put down mother and then on down the list. Find out what mother wants, not by asking her, for that will give the secret away, but she will tell you and it will be something which you can make, I am Let this be the happiest Christmas you have ever had. Make up your which some one went in debt to buy for me.

By ELEANOR GRINNAN Once there lived an old witch in a town alled Yellow Horse. Day after day abe called Yellow Horse. Day after day she sat at the spinning-wheel spinning thread, until one night as she was eating her supper she thought she would go cut and seek her fortune. About haif past ten she started out. It was very cold and as she walked on through the anow she met a small child, so small she could scarcely see her. After asking the child a few questions she took her with her and continued her journey.

She had not gone far when she met a fairy vary prettily dressed in larendar satts. She had a beautiful wand and golden curls. She changed the child into a beautiful woman and left the witch as she was The witch did it get cross, and the second night she decided to go out again. She had not gone far when she came to a little white house, where a large hall was being held. At the door were two farles. They changed her into a young sirt. The king chose her for his bride and they lived happily ever after.
