

PALMISTRY HELD AID TO STUDENTS

Expert at Schaff Carnival Says It Helps Choose Right Vocations

FAMOUS HANDS SHOWN

Lecturer Says World's Leaders Would Lag if Engaged in Other Fields of Activity

Reading hands and palms in the public schools to help children choose their proper vocation and thus avoid "scores of round holes in square holes" was advocated today at the Schaff Carnival in Horticultural Hall, Broad street below Locust, by Mrs. Pearl J. Parker, vocational expert.

During her lecture Mrs. Parker showed pictures of hands of famous persons, explained the characteristics of their hands and said they were successful because they had chosen their proper vocation. Some of the successes would have been glaring failures, she said, if they had gone into other lines of work.

She said "vocational" hand reading was established in public schools there would be more success and greater efficiency in the world.

"The hand is the only book we bring with us when we come in the world," she said with emphasis in addressing a large audience, "and it should be the first one we learn to read. It is our history written in advance, telling us what we are, what we can do best, and shows us many of the main events in life. Also it shows us our weak points, which are like danger signals that we must know and avoid if we wish to make a success. If we do not like what is written in our hands we can change it. Knowledge is power."

FEW SUCCEEDED
Mrs. Parker said but five per cent of the people in the world are successful, according to statistics. People are not successful because they do not know what they can do best, she said. She emphasized the fact that the lines of hand and the shape of the fingers are the same to the history of a human life as the geological formations are to the history of the world.

The left hand never changes. The right hand records the things of one's life. In connection with this, Mrs. Parker showed the impression of Sousa's hand, and told how she noticed in reading the hand impression that the left hand showed a reticent, retiring disposition, and that she remarked about this to Sousa because he did not have the same lines in the right hand. She said the great musician told her he had overcome it to a certain degree, but still dreaded getting up before an audience.

She showed the hand of a man who had been an idiot until he was twenty years old, when his mind became normal. She said in reading his hand she noticed he had a head line for a long period and asked him about it. He then told her about having been an idiot all those years.

HAND OF A BABY
The youngest person Mrs. Parker has ever taken an impression of was a baby, fifteen minutes old; the oldest, a person of 115 years. Mrs. Parker has been studying the relation of vocation and vocation persons by their hands for eighteen years.

Mrs. Parker is one of the attractions at the bazaar of the Schaff Memorial Week Carnival. The object of the carnival is to raise money to erect a building in memory of the Rev. Dr. Schaff, the founder of the reunion of Christendom idea. Civic organizations, churches of more than a score of denominations, charitable and civic organizations are co-operating in this week's carnival, which is open to the public. There is a different attraction for each hour of the day, ranging from lectures to moving pictures.

The bazaar itself will prove a boon to the rushed at this Christmas season. Fancy articles, dolls, perfumes, home-made articles and hand embroidery are all there in grand array.

PENN STUDENTS CHARGE TICKET FAVORITISM

Privileged Members of A. A. Get Pastboards, While Year-Round Routers Must Wait, is Accusation

Students at the University of Pennsylvania continued today to voice their denunciation of the system of allotting tickets for the Penn-Cornell game. The wave of protest even reached the sanctum of the Pennsylvania student daily, and uttered its criticism in an article that appeared in the issue this morning.

The students are angry over the manner in which A. A. Pickering, of the Athletic Association, is handling the tickets. Although Pickering himself would say nothing this morning, it became known that before any requests from members of the Athletic Association are honored, tickets are first granted to trustees, coaches, varsity club members and players.

All through the season, the students say, the loyal members of the A. A., who pay $10 dues, go out to Franklin Field and root for the team, even though it be a poor Penn team. The students declare that none of the favored trustees and others to whom is given the preference in the ticket quota, waste their time in going to the minor games.

Then when the tickets for the Penn-Cornell game are handed out, the trustees and favored friends get tickets by the score, while the student who has been out all fall is allowed the honor of watching the game from behind the goalposts. "This is just the slogan the students are using on the campus."

The undergraduates also charge that the large majority of the tickets in the hands of speculators are sold through the hands of the favored few. Scaplers were treated roughly yesterday when the sale opened at the University because the students had this in mind.

MR. AND MRS. ATKINSON FIFTY YEARS MARRIED

Celebrate Their Golden Wedding in Presence of a Large Company of Relatives

Their golden wedding anniversary is being celebrated today by Wilmer Atkinson, president of the Pennsylvania Men's League for Women's Suffrage, and his wife, Mrs. Atkinson, in the presence and editor of the Farm Journal.

More than eighty relatives and friends, including five of the original six members of the bridal party, have assembled at the Atkinson residence, 4106 Locust street, in honor of the occasion.

Hundreds of congratulatory messages from all parts of the country have been received by Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson in addition to many presents, including a golden basket, filled with yellow chrysanthemums, a gift of the Philadelphia women members of the Suffrage party.

Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson are lifelong members of the Friends' Church and were married in this city. Mrs. Atkinson is the daughter of the late ex-High Sheriff of Philadelphia, Samuel Allen, and a sister to the late Dr. Harrison Allen, of the University of Pennsylvania.

Following the dinner, which will be given tonight at the Atkinson home, the relatives, who represent three generations, and friends will view an exhibition of the original wedding gifts and register. The original marriage certificate will be read to the assemblage.

While being congratulated today Mr. Atkinson cheerfully said:

"We expect to have a diamond anniversary. Both the parents of my wife and my parents celebrated golden wedding anniversaries, which is rather unusual."

Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson have three daughters.

DOPE VENDER TRAPPED BY DISGUISED "FIENDS"

John Henderson, Himself a Hopeless Addict, Arrested as Trader

TRAFFIC IN LITTLE ITALY

Detectives disguised as dope addicts arrested John Henderson today after buying three packages of heroin from him in the southern section of the city.

Henderson, who deplored the fact that he, too, was hopelessly in the grasp of heroin and other drugs, was trailed from the Italian district to Tenth and Race streets, where he was captured. He made no resistance, and, in fact, appeared to welcome arrest when he saw that the evidence against him was complete.

The prisoner, who showed traces of refinement, smiled slightly when he was held in $2000 bail for a further hearing by Magistrate Imber at the Second and Christian streets station.

Henderson's arrest was due to exceptionally clever work on the part of District Detectives Comedo, Martinelli and Isola. They knew that considerable dope was being sold in Little Italy. Finally they got on the trail of Henderson because of his suspicious actions.

"QUICK CLEAN-UP"
The sleuths donned old clothes and waited about the neighborhood of Ninth and Christian streets much after the fashion of the dope user. A "quick clean-up" was in a doorway. Saying that he was desperately in need of heroin, he asked where it could be purchased. Henderson said he had some for $150 a package. When Comedo pleaded to sell him a smaller amount, Henderson refused.

"There's not enough money in small amounts," he said, "and business is bad. I want to make a quick clean-up."

Comedo then handed Henderson the sum required. The three one-dollar bills which he gave the alleged dope peddler were marked and also the silver, half dollar.

At intervals of about an hour, the other detectives who kept on the trail of Henderson also bought similar amounts. They followed Henderson to Race street, where it is believed he intended to get another supply and then arrested him.

PRISONER CONFESSIONS
At the station house Henderson, in the presence of Magistrate Imber and Lieutenant Schermer, made a complete confession.

Behind his arrest is the story of failure and misery through fondness of drugs. The prisoner said that Henderson was not his right name.

"I was a prosperous druggist in a town in Illinois," he said, "I had heard a great deal about the effect of drugs on persons and out of pure curiosity I decided to try what effect it would have on me. I started to use it in generous quantities and practically defied it. Suddenly, one day like a flash, I found out that I no longer craved the drug through curiosity and that it was as necessary as my meals."

Here the prisoner tried to stifle a sob. Continuing he added, "I went to my father and told them I was no longer fit to bear their name."

"At my own request they disowned me. That was several years ago. I have wandered about the country earning just enough now and then to get the drug."

Seeing a Bible on the Magistrate's desk, Henderson opened it by chance at Psalm 104: "I will sing of mercy in judgment."

"That's a coincidence," he remarked, "for now I only ask for mercy."

When the police searched Henderson they found thirteen packages of heroin in his suitcase. Each package was worth from twenty-five cents to $3.50.

Ancient and Modern Chinese Rugs

Make Wonderful Wedding and Holiday Gifts

We invite your attention to our selection of these exquisite masterpieces of oriental art, which are the essential floor coverings for use with Sheraton, Adam and Chippendale furniture, having always been identified with those period furnishings for more than one hundred years prior to their introduction into this country.

Our Chinese Rugs, in small, medium, and room sizes, in the various unapproachable shades of blue, Imperial yellow, peach-blow, etc., must not be confused with the ordinary Chinese rugs which are but poor imitations of these classic rugs, and have no lasting qualities.

There can be no more lovely or enduring gift than one of these beautiful rugs. The bride-to-be or other recipient will find never ending pleasure and satisfaction in such a remembrance, and addition to her home.

CIGARETTE VENDOR SCOLDED

Severe Reprimand for Dealer Who Sold to Minors

Policeman "Bobby" Kelm, of the Thirty-first District, had a suspicion which developed into a hunch that Henry Arap, who conducts a cigar and candy store across from the Rudolph Walton Public School, at Twenty-eighth and Huntington streets, was selling cigarettes to small boys. The officer did a little "detective" and on the evidence he gathered arrested Arap. At a hearing this morning before Magistrate Meccary in Central Station, he produced three boys under fourteen who testified that they bought "smokes" in the store. Magistrate Meccary asked them where they got the money, and they said in a chorus, "Bobby gave it to us."

Arp was discharged with a severe reprimand, and the policeman went back to his station house.

NEW "GREAT COAT" MODEL 912

Big comfortable Ulster-coat cut on stylish lines for men of bone and muscle. Regular pockets and muf pockets; loose half belt with buttons. The storm coat of excellence.

He had just bought a Suit of Clothes, and at the end of the transaction he told the salesman who had waited on him that the Suit he was wearing had come from Perry's several years ago. He took a special pride in telling how his liking for that Suit had seemed to grow on him—"The best Suit I ever wore! And do you know, all I have to do is get it pressed today, and it looks mighty presentable after all these years!"

Such daily testimony makes us happier than many dollars in the till ever could—at the same time being the reason why men are glad to exchange their dollars for clothes that give such satisfaction.
