PRESS SEES DOOR OPEN FOR MORE PEACE TALK

Editorials Agree Lloyd George Went as Far as Could Be Expected

NEXT MOVE IS BERLIN'S

Germany's Sincerity to Be Shown in Reply, Papers Assert

Following are the editorial comments of New York papers this morning on Premier Llayd George's reply to Germany's peace proposals;

New York Times:

All the portents foreshadowed the nature of the speech Lloyd George would make yesterday. It was inconclusive, it set forth no definite peace terms, but unmistakably it leaves the door open to further exchanges. to actual peace negotiations. That is all-important.

It is devoutly to be hoped that the Allies will not miss their great opportunity, that they will not fall to make it clear to Germany, to the Teutonic Powers, to the people of Germany and Austria and to the whole world, that the enemy over whom they must be victorious before peace, can be made is prussian militarism and the German idea of world domination, of which Prussian militarism is at once the inspiration and the instrument. The man is a bound for from strument. The gain to be hoped for from setting that proclamation of purpose into the minds of the German people will be im-

New York Tribune:

The reply of the British Prime Minister to the German peace proposal was simple and straightforward. It was the only reply and straightforward. It was the only reply that any responsible Minister of an Allied nation could make. It did not make war on the idea of peace, but it did make clear that colly peace was possible, and that was a peace which restored to full vigor that whole structure and body of international law and national right which Germany invaded two years and a half ago.

We shall see now whether the German We shall see now whether the German peace proposal was a maneuver or an earnest seeking after a settlement. The restoration of Belgium and of Serbia, reparation to Serbia and Belgium for crimes committed against them, and through them, against civilization—these must be the minimum conditions, not for peace, but for the discussion of peace.

Instead of closing the door Mr. Lloyd George is careful to hold it open and in effect to invite the German Government to submit its terms. Reducing the Prime Minister's speech to its simplest form. Great Britain will not offer peace conditions to Germany, but it will give due consideration to any peace conditions that Germany proposes. This is quite a different matter from declaring a war of unconditional surrender.

READING. Pa., Dec. 29.—Harry F. Moyer, postmaster at Robesonia, advanced to third class, salary $1000 a year, has been reappointed by President Wilson. Murray D. Zechman, Democrat, has been appointed postmaster at Sinking Spring, succeeding C.W. Steffy, a Republican. He is a nephew of William M. Zechman, Democratic electoral candidate in November.

The speech of Mr. Lloyd George leaves the issue wholly in the hands of the Im-perial Government, which cannot flatly re-fuse to meet the British demands for a definition of terms without confessing that its original proposal was a place of diplo-matic pretenses, designed chiefly to divide the Allies and bedevil neutral sentiment.

New York Sun:

There can be no further doubt in any quarter that the forces arrayed against the aggressor Powers are not in a mood to grasp for peace merely for peace's sake, and the quicker the steadfastness of their intentions is comprehended at Berlin, as somer or later it must be understood, the brighter the prospect of the advent of the day all men desire.

New Yorker Staats-Zeitung:

Lloyd George evaded the real question, in that he glides over the offer made by Germany and sets up pretexts in order to be able to give later a halfway plausible motive for the unwillingness of the Allies. In order to shift from his own shoulders the responsibility in the eyes of the neutral world for the failure of a peace conference to come together, he calls to the attention, very craftily, that his Allies, particularly Bussla and France, have already, and very decidedly, refused to enter into any peace decidedly, refused to enter into any peace Begotintlone Thereby Lloyd George leaves a loophole. As answer will go to Berlin, and this is to be so composed that a response to it will be possible. Time must show what will develop from these events.

German Herold, New York:

Ligyd George's speech in the British Par-llament shows that the way is left open for the opening of negotiations. It is in-deed possible that still more German blows must ensue. But, on the other hand, there is the possibility, if not the probability, that Germany's suggestion of peace is really the first step toward peace. the first step toward peace.

DEMOCRAT MAY FIGHT FOR CONGRESS SEAT

Representative Casey, of Luzerne, Advised to Begin Contest Against Templeton

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 .- Representative John J. Casey, a Democrat, who carried Luxerns County two years ago by 6000 majority, has been advised by national Democratic leaders to begin a contest against the seating of George W Templeton, Republican, who was elected last November by a majority of 2005.

It is charged by friends of Mr. Casey that $25,000 was used by Republican workers in a fraudulent manner.

Six years ago, when C. C. Bowman, a Republican, was elected over George R. McLean, a Democrat, Mr. McLean contested the election. Bowman was unscated by the House, but his seat was not given to McLean.

NATIONAL LIQUOR BAN KEY TO PREPAREDNESS

Crushing of the Saloon Would Help Defense, Says Representative Webb

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—The three big new and more efficient' system of na-tional defense continued their work of testimony taking today. While House and Senate Military Affairs Committees heard from high army and War Department officials and civilians, the House Naval Committee heard more expert ad-vice regarding the alleged defenselessness of the United States because of insufficient of the United States because of insufficient sea forces.

And in the meantime Representative Edwin Y. Webb, of North Carolins, author of the nation-wide dry bill, amounced that he would urge introglate passage of his measure on the ground that no nation can really be prepared against possible attack by a foreign foe, as well as economically and sectatis, until the sale of all intoxicating inquery is stopped.

Webb says he will insist that crushing out of the saloon and the liquer traffic is so bound up with real preparedness is necessarily bound up with preparedness in the individual," said Webb. "The warriors of Europe have ruled that they cannot be successful unifer old conditions. That is, obviously, why France, then Russia, and then England declared against liquer either in absolute prohibition or the most right regulation.

"And, incidentally, I noight add that the right to sell or manufacture injurious intoxicants is not incidenable."

The richest and most beautiful stock ever prepared for Christmas

An Ideal Christmas Gift

that you can give only this Christmas-never again

HAVE you thought of the new Encyclopaedia Britannica, printed on beautiful India paper, as a gift? There are half a dozen persons (including yourself and some of the family) for whom this great library of knowledge would be a superb present.

Consider what a day-after-day source of pleasure and profit the Britannica would be. Realize how wonderfully light and inviting-toread the famous India paper makes it.

This is a gift you must make now-or never. You will not have this chance another Christmas (nor for very much longer) because the few sets of the Britannica still unsold are printed on the last genuine India paper that could be obtained

before the war cut off the supply of raw material (flax) out of which this thin-and-tough paper is manufactured. Not only is this the last India paper which could be procured for the printing of the Britannica, but it will be years after the war ends before India paper can be produced in sizable quantities.

Therefore, the remaining sets are the last printed on India paper that can be offered. They will not last long—you must act quickly to make sure of getting a set.

Here are the facts that you are constantly seeking, to help you in a business way or otherwise. Here is the means of improving your education along general or special lines. Here is insurance against ignorance or lack of interest in the world in which you live.

Think of having a complete library in your own home—in 29 compact volumes, 30,000 pages, 41,000 separate articles, 500,000 indexed facts, 44,000,000 words and 15,000 illustrations and maps.

Now realize how easily you can own a set of the new Britannica, in the popular "Handy Volume" form, printed on genuine India paper—if you act at once. This issue is identically the same as the high-priced Cambridge Issue, except in size and type. Every page, every word, every colored plate, every illustration, every map of the Cambridge issue is reproduced in the "Handy Volume" Issue, of which 75,000 sets were sold in six months.
