DR. O'MALLY SCORES IMMODEST RAIMENT

TALCUM AND ROUGE MODE

DK. AUSTIN O'MALLEY

By M'LISS

Do Catholic girls dress modestly? The answer, according to Dr. Austin C'Malley, depends on what part of Africa you come from.

Doctor O'Malley, physician, professor and writer, who lives at 2228 South Broad street, believes that we are living in an at pallingly decadent age and that the decadence is spreading so rapidly that if somebody doesn't do something right quick, something is going to happen.

In a scathing article in "America," a Jesuit publication, he flays the Catholics, good Catholic that he is, for their part in bringing about this decadence. Mixed marriages and fashions are chiefly benonmarriages and finations are chiefly responsible. That Protestant O'Gradys and Melevoys and O'Donnells exist in this land, he declares, shows which way the wind blows. In an interview at his home, Doctor O'Malley expatiated on his article, some of the material for which, particularly that part about Catholic girls dressing immodestly, was gleaned in Philadelphia.

"Our Church," he said indignantly, "is losing thousands of her people through mixed marriages. It is no unusual thing to take up a paper and read of the mar-riage of Miss Gladys Murphy to Mr. Fran-cis Burke in a Baptist or Presbyterian church by the Rev. Peter Doyle, and every one in the group from parson to flower-girl had grandmothers who took their beads to bed with them.

"Our people are pulled down into disbe-f also," he continued, "by the rapid decadence of the American public conscience. Walk along Chestnut street today and you can see indecent pictures on the boardings that twenty years ago would have put some one behind the bars. In the theatres you can see 'actorines' that in former three would have been wrapped in horse blankets by the police and carried away in the patrol wagons. Unclean plays are presented, brugen dames flop about in what are called esthetic dances, university professors preach ethical slush, without protest, yet a generation ago these crimes would open the doors of the penitentiary. The worse quality of this paganism is that it has become a matter of course.

"Our women strut about the streets cadence of the American public conscience

Christmas Day, when all the world was forful, Law the old man sitting silent behind the bars, and the new year sees him in the same place.

Thomas Green, for that is his name, one moment last April forgot the burden of his sevensy-six years and in a fit of anger killed James McDermitt, an orderly, in the poorhouse at Blackwood, N. J. Ever since the time that Green had entered the home, McDermitt, other immates said, took an especial delight in bullying him, a practice that was continued until the orderly was beaten to death by Green in a fight. Green, stunned at what he had done, was arrested and put on trial. He was freed by the jury whon it was testified that he acted in self defonse. But now he wants to be tried over again and convicted, so he can remain in jail.

"I don't want to leave," he said. "I have no place to go. I am friendless and panniless and I don't was best frem set have to the leave of I don't was best frem set have to be tried over again and convicted, and he can remain in jail.

"I don't want to leave," he said. "I have no place to go. I am friendless and penniless and I don't see how I can get back to Blackwood again. I am afraid to go out into the world because I am too old to battle with it. My cell is stug and besides I like to play checkers with myself."

"The other day I was passing a Catholic school—one of our most fashlonable. A number of firls were coming out. There was a basement window near the gate which made an effectual mirror, and every blessed damsel that appeared took a powder out from her roticule, or whatover you call their ammunition boxes, struck her budding nose into it, and pattered off down the street looking like the white rabbit in a Christmas pantomine. Powder puffs are not criminal, but were these girls dressed modestly?"

Dector O'Malley paused and smiled and consulted his article.

"Well, as I have written, it depends on what part of Africa you come from."

But Doctor O'Malley would go no further. He would not be specific in regard to the details or lack of details which made the dress of the girls from the Catholic school immodest. He saw them and that was enough for him. Doctor O'Malley has enough for him. Poctor O'Malley has enough for him. Poctor O'Malley has enou

Enormous Growth of the Leading Patriotic Order in the State

The office at the State headquarters is busier now than ever before in its history. The annual reports from the 900 camps in the State are now coming in. All of the camps that have reported so far lave shown great gains in the last four months and the new State executive committee is elated at the splendid showing of the camps. Most of this is due to the efforts of the State President and State secretary, who have been unceasing in their efforts of the smaller camps have doubled their membership, and some of the larger ones, like Camp 50, of Rox borough; Camp 163, of Reading; Camp 254, of Lebanon, and Camp 485, of Philadelphia, are reporting increases of more than 100 new members. The reports also show that not only the membership is growing, but that the camps are also increasing their financial value. The P. O.

S. of A. in this State ranks as one of the leading fraternal societies in membership, and in patriotic principles, it is claimed, is the foremost. The official colinion is that "with all the camps wideawake and enthused, the outlook for the coming six months is still brighter, and there are chances that the 20,000 increase asked by State President Clark may be made 25,000, or even more."

The time is approaching for the big 2000 class initiation of the camps of Publishelphia and all of the representatives are ready and on edge for the basner event. The last meeting of the committee in charge will be held on Priday evening. January 6, at the State brademarters, 1317 North Breast street. In configuration with the County Convention Association which feel the County Convention Association which feel the County Convention Association with the County County held the County County had been admitted by the County of the Market of the Moore auditorium, opposite the State brademarters, where the avent will be held. The chief marshis of the parade will be Hiram Wonne, of Camp 50, as all-stay degrees team, selected from the best talent in the city. There will be two adverses by State President Ernest E. Clark and Judge Charles N. Brumm, of Schuylkill County, Members of the order in Publishelphia are urged to procure admission tickets from camp delegates, as no one will be admitted without a ticket. The officers, both State and national, with the past presidents and prominent members of the order, will be scated on the stage. The chief unhare will be Robert Thompson, of Camp 533.
