BE GENEROUS—BY BESTOWING A LITTLE JUDICIOUS PRAISE A Few Words of Encouragement Will Often Stimulate to Fresh Efforts One Who Is Easily Disheartened

CURIOUS! My own thoughts this morning were reflected by a girl who has written to me giving me her idea of generosity. This letter, from M. A. F., reads: "Do we realize we can be just as ungenerous in the withholding of praise and appreciation as by being generous?"

There's nothing in the world awake Except one little star and me, But though the night is large and dark The star's not scared so I won't be.

By LUCREZIA BORI Physical Therapist of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Sit erect, sit on the chair and brace the feet beneath some suitable object. Then place the arms back of the head and bend back as far as possible.

After you have developed the muscles of your back and padded the bones with flesh, examine the skin with critical eyes to see whether it is in need of attention.

And Didst Thou Deem? And didst thou deem all joy was o'er Because the youth was thine no more? Lo, many a blessing Heaven will shed In showers upon thy happy hour!

THINK FINE EXERCISES

One of the most beneficial exercises can be practiced with two ordinary scrubbing brushes. Place one in front of the other and stand with the feet touching the nail nearest you.

SOME CHAIR EXERCISES

The muscles of the back will be greatly strengthened by stretching the body straight out on the floor and going through the following movements:

Place the arms along the sides of the body, hold the feet together, and let the toes point straight ahead. Now arch the back so that the weight is entirely supported by the heels and shoulders.

A chair affords an such opportunity for gymnastic feats as any apparatus in the gymnasium. Try the following exercise, and see if you do not derive a great deal of strength from it.

Place the feet on a chair with the back toward you; then step on the lower rung, lean forward, and grasp the edge of the seat. Raise the left leg and extend the toes.
