MY DEARS, have you seen the members of the First City Troop at 8:59 a. m., tearing to the armory to report, for you see they are not mustered out yet and are obliged to appear every morn at 9 e'clock. Thursday morning I saw two arriving in their touring car, and on Twenty-first street I met Harry Drayton on a brisk sprint. buttoning his coat as he burried, while yesterday Ben Frazier was racing up back ways to reach there in time and Flo Rivinus arrived just shead of him, armed with extra overcoats and bags. Home is demeralizing is it not, after months of being on the minute for everything, so when one does relax a bit one is apt to have to catch up, so to speak. I wonder when they will be mustered out. One man I was talking to yesterday seemed to think that affairs were, if anything, In a worse mess down there than any one dreams and it would not surprise him if there were trouble and the stay of the troops at home mighty short and sweet. I sincerely hope not, though I am no pacifist If henor is assailed, and it seems to me and to most persons with whom I have talked as if honor had been assailed right smartly down that way in the last few years. If things can be settled peacefully and honerably no one will be happier than little Society's interest in the concert to be given by Madame Louise Homer in the Academy of Music, January 31, for the Hahnemann Hospital and College, is evidenced by the list of patronesses who have have subscribed to the charitable affair. It will be extremely smart, and of course Louise Homer is incomparable.

Nancy; but let it be honorably, please!

Among these are Mrs. J. Lewis Crozer. Baroness von Hiller, Countess Santa Eulalia, Mrs. Charles D. Barney, Mrs. John Gribbel, Mrs. Dilwyn Wistar, Mrs. Jay Gates, Mrs. George C.
