Nancy Wynne Is Interested to Hear Members of Philadelphia's Junior League Will Again Present a Pantomime for Charity

Now this is something worth while, you will doubtless agree with me (that is, those of you who saw the ballet of "Orlando" last year and heard the weird and enticing jig to which Mrs. Francis V. Lloyd tripped gaily on the stage whenever she heard it start), when you hear the Junior League will give another entertainment in February.

You know what the Junior League is, don't you? Well, in case you do not, I'm going to say a bit about it, because it strikes me as rather a good thing, so to speak. Time was when you came out in society you were expected to remain in the butterfly stage for several years, and as to putting the hand to anything serious, well, it was pretty dangerous, for you might get the reputation of being serious-minded, and that was awful and made you a wall flower for sure even in your first year. Well, the Junior League has been started by a number of girls in the leading sets of all the large cities, and its object is no less than to place the girls after they have come out in some social work, connected with hospitals, working girls' clubs and all the many other things which enable them to help those not so well placed as themselves. There are 230 members in Philadelphia and they have their headquarters at the Civic Club, 1300 Spruce street. The president this year is Gertrude Ely, and Eleanor Hopkins is vice president, Harriet Frazier is secretary, Rose Dohlan is assistant secretary and Eugenia Cassatt is treasurer. They give an annual entertainment for charity, and, better than the giving only, they write it, paint their own scenery, compose their own music and dances and design their own costumes. The entertainment is for some charity always; last year it was given for the Emergency Aid, and this year's production will benefit the Visiting Nurse Society and the Pappus Artists.

Now, then, let's hear something about this pantomime. It is to be called "An Evening in Venice" and it will be given in the ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, February 14 and 15. The scene is laid in the fabled, care-free Venice of the eighteenth century, with its masked ladies and cavaliers of the cloak and sword. For one evening at least the young women of Philadelphia will forget their Quaker forebears and, in hoops and patches, will dance to the carnival as gaily as the pretty, audacious, quite un-Quakerish ladies of pleasure-loving Venice. The play itself is to be preceded by an old-time harlequinade, which will bring to life again all the famous characters from Comedians to Scar, Amour and Punchinello.

Among those who will take part this year are Mrs. Francis V. Lloyd, Mrs. O. H. Perry Depper, Eleanor Butler, Emily Fox, Mary Frances Fisher, Mrs. Tom Heath, Jr., Alva Sargent, Mary Mitchell, Valentine Mitchell, Mrs. Ted Paul, Anna Ingerson, Mrs. Jessie Bullitt, Cornelia Lely, Mrs. Olive Bullitt, Jean Thompson, Sylvia Barnes, Frances Scott, Margaret Myers and Sarah Nelson. There will be about fifty members of the league altogether.

The committee in charge of the entertainment includes Katherine Chambers, chairman, Eleanor Depper, treasurer, Harriet Frazier, Gertrude Ely, Marjorie Taylor, Mrs. Arthur E. Newbold, Jr., Mrs. Francis A. Lewis, Ed. Eugenia Cassatt, Charlotte Bush, Molly Thayer, Almee Hutchinson and Mary Frances Fisher.

WELL, if I ever in my life have seen anything so horribly morbid as the first play given by the Plays and Players last night I don't remember it, and at the same time, either on or off the stage, I've seldom seen as good an actress as Mrs. Harlow. She was a wonder! As if "Suppressed Desires" must have had some of Freud's psycho-analytical works. It was one beyond believe me, and the actress and actors were great. Of course, the playroom was packed with members and their friends, and there was great applause. I predict a second crowd tonight.

NANCY WYNNE.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Churchman, of Summit avenue, Germantown, will entertain a number of the boys and girls of the school set at a house party during Easter week, and will give a dance at the Casino on Philadelphia street, in honor of her daughter, Miss Edith Tebert, who is a student at St. Margaret's School, Waterbury, Conn. Miss Robins will bring several school friends home with her.

The next meeting of the Science and Art Club will take place on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Allen on Chestnut street, in Germantown. Mr. Justice will give an interesting talk on the evolution of the horse.

Mrs. Laura D. S. Ladd will be home at her studio in the Greble Building, 1710 Chestnut street, on Monday afternoon after 2 o'clock in February and March. No cards have been sent out.

THE LAW OF THE LAND

"But, doctor, I never felt better in my life!"

"The law is merely for the benefit of the authorities to vote upon. The law assumes every man to be sick until pronounced well."

THE IVORY CHILD

By H. RIDER HAGGARD

There were some of them who were out of brain as spirits but not as men.

"You mean that you will murder them?"

"No. We mean that you are some stronger than us or any man, who will take their lives to ourselves. Not yours, Marit, but yours, Marit, in the desert beyond. They are the lives of the desert, which two have to die."

Farmer Smith's Column

WHEN TO STOP

Dearest "Children," think it was Andrew Carnegie who said, "It is a waste of time to keep on doing a thing when you know you will fail."

Once upon a time there was a little pigeon who was born in a cage. He was very big and very fat, and he had a very long neck.

One day the pigeon was let loose from the cage and started to fly. He flew for some time and then he began to feel a little tired. He flew for some time more and then he began to feel a little more tired. He flew for some time more and then he began to feel a little more tired.

MR. BEAR'S RECOMMENDATION

By Farmer Smith

"Daddy, that story about the Jay Bird you told me last night about his father once, said Nannie Grant yesterday."

"Ah, my dear," I said, "I am indeed getting to be a story teller when I make you think of me. Tell me some more about the wood-lark."

"We often like to hear about the things we know the best about," said Nannie Grant. "Would you like to hear what Mr. Bear told Mr. Jay Bird?"

Weddings

NOON—BAILY

A wedding of much interest socially took place at noon today, when Miss Mary Wood Baily, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Winter Baily, of Roseville, Bradford, became the bride of Mr. R. H. Brewster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. W. Kouns, of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. McLean and Miss Sarah McLean, of West Indian Queen Lane, Germantown, will leave on Monday for St. Augustine, Fla., where they will be the guests of Mrs. William G. Warden at her villa.

HOLY APOSTLES PARISH

FORTY-NINE YEARS OLD

Church and Three Chapels Will Unite in Commemoration Tomorrow

The forty-ninth anniversary of the founding of the parish of the Holy Apostles will be observed at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Apostles, Twenty-first and Christian streets, Sunday night. The choir of the three chapels of the parish, the Chapel of St. Simon, the Chapel of St. Peter and the Chapel of St. Paul will unite in the celebration of the anniversary. The Rev. Dr. William M. McKim, rector of the Holy Apostles, will preside.

The founding of the parish had its beginning in a meeting held in the study of the late Bishop Phillips Brooks, then rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity, at which time the question of evangelizing the southern portion of the city arose. The Rev. Dr. William M. McKim and others organized the work. In the year 1868, the Rev. Dr. McKim and the Rev. Samuel Appleton were chosen by the Convention of the Holy Apostles to take charge of the work. The Rev. Dr. McKim was rector of the parish from 1868 to 1884. On the same day and in the same place, the Rev. Dr. McKim and the Rev. Dr. William M. McKim were chosen by the Convention of the Holy Apostles to take charge of the work. The Rev. Dr. McKim was rector of the parish from 1868 to 1884.

MESSAGE TO ALL LANDS

Interdenominational Appeal for Peace
Enrolls Tenth Churchmen

Bishops, university and college presidents and professors, secretaries of church boards and of social organizations, pastors, editors, business and professional men who are prominent in the churches, with a number of women have issued a "Message to Our Christian Brethren of All Lands" in which they "take open stand with those who labor for the establishment of lasting peace."

Included in the list are Bishops David H. Greer, New York; Ethelbert Talbot, South Bethlehem; and William Wharton, in chairmanship of the Episcopal Church, and Bishop McDowell, Chicago, and E. R. Headrick, Kansas City, of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The message pronounces in favor of a league of nations, the limitation of armaments and a world court, under the Hague Court or a similar tribunal.

Bishop Luther B. Wilson, of New York, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, is chairman of the committee which drafted the message. The other members are Hamilton Holt, George A. Plimpton, Dr. Frederick Lynch and Dr. Charles S. Macfarland.
