JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

The World and His Wife Attend the Bal Masque in Horticultural Hall-Smaller Affairs Given at Mask and Wig and Ritz-Carlton

Din any one say Bal Masque? Was I] just dreaming it, or rather did any ane say anything in the world but Bal fasque today? If not, there must be mething strange the matter, for no one n the swim stays home from this marvious ball, for which hundreds of people om New York, Baltimore, Washington, Boston, Cincinnati and goodness knows ere else come and fill the hotels to overtowing that they may dance and gambol their heart's content in the midst of he tinkling bells and flowered decorations which transpose Horticultural Hall into a perfect bower of loveliness. And to think this Mardi Gras party started in the Roosevelt on Chestnut street above Twentieth not so very many years ago, nd the perpetrators thereof being orignal young men let loose some white mice at the same time they threw confetti all over the place, and straightway their methods became famous and the ball rrew and grew until now Joe Norris, who was the prime originator, is obliged to fuse invitations to petitioners right and left, for the ballroom can hold no more. and it is the largest in the city. The men on the committee this year are Walter Douglas, Joe Norris, May Easby, Quincy Gilmore, Edward Grant, Henry Hatfield, Ledyard Heckscher, Edward Hopkinson, Ir. Saunders Meade and Howard Rhoads.

T.THE Ritz-Carlton the Joe Wideners. A whose costume dinners were famous sefore their period of mourning, will give large affair, some of the guests, who will be the sumstest of the sugart, going afterward to the ball, but many remaining to dance at the flitz.

THERE are many mothers of debu tantes and fathers too, for that matter, who greatly object to having their daughters attend the bal masque, for it is generally acknowledged it is not quite the place for a timid deb. "There do be happenings there," you know. Remember the lady who confided to one of her friends that she had no idea who she at out a dance with in the balcony, but he certainly was "some lover." And, strange though it may seem, the mere whisper of naughtiness makes the debbles wild to go and see all there is to be sen, but the Adolph Rosengartens have stepped into the breach this year and will give a perfectly delightful costume party in the Mask and Wig clubhouse for Elisabeth McMichael, the memory of whose father, the late Clayton McMichael, is held in such affection by the members of the club. The Rosengartens did the same thing last year, in that they gave a party for their niece, Sarah Neilson. on Shrove Tuesday, and the debbies were satisfied as well as those of this year. for they had their costume party and a delightful time as well and were not crowded and crushed off the floor in a great, huge crowd of dancers.

The Edwin Eldon Grahams will, enter tain at dinner before the Rosengarten lance for their daughter Lorraine, and Marion Wurts will be given a dinner by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kennedy Wurts.

VOU will not believe me, of course, but what I have to say is perfectly true. I actually heard a young man boasting the other day that he did not have to entertain a girl or ask her if he might take her to walk or any of the usual polite things men are supposed to do. for, said he: "They call me up all the time, you see, and if I don't feel like walk-

HERE TO HERALD LENT

Forerunner of Penitential Season Brings Pancake and the Doughnut With Hole in It

Pancakes and doughnuts apart frequently are forerunners of indigestion, but when they come together, as they did this morning, they are symbolic of the arrival of Shrove Tuesday,

English customs and traditions of the Pennsylvania Dutch both are used in this culinary combination. In old England, before the days of the Protestant Reforma-tion, strict adherence to the doctrine of stationer from meat during Lent was the rule. As Shrove Tuesday precedes the forty-day fast, in fact, gains its name from the fact that persons are shriven for their sins before the start of Lent, it was cus-temary to use up all the lard and such in English households to make pancakes. The doughnut was added later. But as

The doughnut was added later. But, as a matter of fact, the correct term by which the edible with a holo in it is known among the up-State folks is "Fastmacht." Whence the title "Fastmacht Day," instead of Shrove Tuesday. In the Scottish and English dialect the word is "Fasten-e'en," indicating the eve of Lent.

ng over to see them they send the car This is the life" Now is it not a strange state of affairs that mothers do not seem to know that their daughters spend a great part of their time calling up boys and asking them to go skating with them or walking or riding and all the other sorts of pastimes which "since time im; memorial" have been man's privilege to offer. And then one hears of the awful bie rudeness of the young man of the present day! Isn't it, after all, sometimes a good deal the fault of the girl, who so far forgets her dignity and gives a man a chance to speak of her and her doings in the ne in which the young man I cite did. To be sure, there is no excuse for the men being made rude, but somehow, this kind of thing takes a bit from the heinousness of their behavior.
