

RED AND BLUE OARSMEN ARE BUSY THESE MARCH DAYS
Coach Joe Wright gives pointers to a green member of the crew.

OUR AMPHIBIOUS ANCESTORS WOULD FEEL RIGHT AT HOME
If they waded out to Fifty-ninth street and Cedar avenue at this period of its muddy affluence.

WILLIAM H. CONNELL
Chief of the Bureau of Highways.

VARSIITY ROWERS "BURN UP" THE SLUGGISH SCHUYLKILL
Candidates for the eight are training hard for permanent places in the boat.

PROGRESS DOOMS FRANKFORD LANDMARK
Chalkley Hall, on Wheatsteeff lane, is to be torn down to give way to a manufacturing plant after an existence dating from the days of William Penn.

THE COSTUME THAT LED TO A BROKEN ENGAGEMENT

Miss Ethel Taylor, a model for a Walnut street clothing shop, has broken her engagement to wed George Gates because he objected to her appearing in forthcoming fashion show in the fishing suit in which she poses here.

CAPTAIN "AD" WOLL OVERLOOKS PENN'S AQUATIC HOPES AT THEIR DAILY PRACTICE

FOUR GENERATIONS IN LEGISLATOR'S FAMILY
Representative James Franklin, 82, stands beside his mother, Mrs. Susan Franklin, 82. She holds Marjorie Phillips, great-grandchild. Mrs. Charles F. Phillips and Mrs. Mae Taylor, granddaughters, to left and right, the latter's husband, Harry Taylor, behind his father, James Franklin Taylor, Florence Louise Taylor and Charles F. Phillips, Jr.

Benjamin Franklin, a diplomat of the Revolution, from his elevated position on the Public Ledger Building, looks past Independence Hall with his right arm raised as if advising patriots to be steadfast in the present crisis.

WIDOWED IRISH PATRIOT AND HER SON
Championing the cause of an independent Ireland, Mrs. Hannah Sheehy Houghton, whose husband was killed in the Irish revolution, is seen here with her son.