AR SHOWS NEED FOR SCHOOLSHIPS

"Old Grad." of Lancaster Declares Public Policy Demands Institution

DISCRIMINATION SHOWN

State Helps in All Other Lines of Instruction Except Seacraft

HENRY B. HOWELL Lancaster man, who points out that the State of Pennsylvania should make an appropriation for the Pennsylvania Nautical School Association to make possible the education of young men in seamanship and navigation just as it appropriates money to educate boys forestry and many other callings.

Many boys in the State who wish to ern the arts of navigation, seamanship nd marine steam engineering are prevented from doing so for lack of a schoolship, acording to Henry B. Howell, of Lancaster. graduate of the Pennsylvania Nautical

"I was graduated from the Saratoga in 1905 after making four cruises, and after that I sailed in several of Arthur Sewall's deep-water sailing ships, and have since ettled down on shore," he said, "I trust the Legislature will speedily pass the Vare bill appropriating $150,000 to our school. for during the last few years I have realized most keenly the need of an adequate merchant marine.

"Pennsylvania, being one of the richest Rates in the Union, with an enormous me of the leading factors in the training froung men for merchant marine service. present great war has demonstrated every one how woefully we lack ships trained men, and the Pennsylvania Legelature should certainly take steps to retiblish the Pennsylvania Nautical School

Many boys in the State wish to learn the arts of navigation, seamanship and marine glesm engineering, and to follow the sea for livelihood, but cannot do so, as no school or their education along these lines is provided. An attractive environment must ex-ist in order that they may be qualified take the positions of quartermaster, catawain, engineer and junior officer.

"The State provides money to maintain chools for the education of boys who wish to become dentists, veterinarians, foresters, professors and school teachers. Just note the contrast: Here is a group of boys who rish to become foresters, for instance, and n order to give them an exceptionally good appropriates a large sum of money; and, on he other hand, here is a group of boys who wish to become navigators, seamen and steam engineers, but they are denied the privilege because the State will not provide nautical school. It is not fair to the ast-named group of boys, nor is it fair to the taxpayers, the exporters, the passengers the travel on ships or to the vessel owners.

"American capital is purchasing new The people all over the land te demanding that Americans be in comnand of these new vessels. It is contrary to public policy to have foreigners in command of our ships. And with for-eign officers in command, it makes it more cult for Americans to go to sea. Let us have great nautical schools in many of the ports of the United States. It should be pparent to everybody that such schools re necessary as a source of supply, and urely Pennsylvania, with the second argest port in the country, should not be backward in providing a nautical school."

50 MAIN LINE TOWNS DARK WHEN POLES FALL

Sudden Gale Leaves One Hundred Square Miles of Suburbs Without Electric Lights

Electric lighting service in nearly fifty towns and villages in 100 square miles of the suburbs was "out" for more than two urs last night, when two poles, bearing heavy feed cables, were blown over at

The darkness, affecting street lights and ndreds of homes, covered the territory rest of Narberth as far as Paoli, the West Chester pike section from Sixty-ninth street terminal to beyond Manoa and the Ardmore trolley line towns of Llanerch, Llanerch lanor, Brookline, South Ardmore and Church meetings, entertainments, moving picture shows and lectures had to be can-celed and large clubs and institutions were The gloom brought into use can and oil lamps. Automobile traffic reduced to a minimum, policemen reporting to their district station houses de-claring that the roads were almost declaring that the roads were almost unserted. Old-time residents said the few gas lamps that supplied feeble light on back them of the old rural days roads reminded them of the old rural days of the section.

The current went off at 7 p. m. and re-mained off until after 9. Theatre crowds were affected and the darkened railroad stations were filled with huddling crowds at towns like Ardmore and Bryn Mawr. A udden and short flerce gust of wind ac-ompanying the rainstorm about 6:30 p. m. caused the trouble. It lasted only a few minutes, but was long enough to sweep down two heavily laden poles along Montnery avenue, Wynnewood. lecture in the Saturday Club, at Wayne. to be called off and numerous small ffairs in various parts of the territory were Bryn Mawr and Haverford Colleges have their own power plants. The Merica Cricket Club lighted gas. The eastern Main Line section, including Narberth, Merica. Bala and Cynwyd, where the light is furnished by another company, escaped the gloom.

Eight Pacifist "Tech" Graduates

BOSTON, March 28.—The Massachusetts stitute of Technology, in canvassing 3,000 graduates to determine their availability for certain work for the Government, has received only eight refusals soons the first 4000 replies. These men, Lighted, field secretary of the Institute of the control of

State Shows Partiality in Training of Its Boys

THE State provides money to maintain schools for the education of boys who wish to master forestry, dentistry, pedagogy and other callings, but denies the privilege of a second other callings. lege of a nautical education to boys who wish to follow the sea," it is pointed out by Henry B. Howell, of Lancaster, Pa., a graduate of the Saratoga in 1905.

"No spheol is marked."

"No school is maintained in which boys who wish to learn the arts of navigation, seamanship and marine steam engineering can study, despite the fact that American capital is purchasing new ships and Ameri-can people are demanding that Americans be placed in command of these new vessels.

"It is contrary to public policy to have foreigners in command of our ships. Pennsylvania, with the second largest port in the country, should not be backward in providing a nautical school."

BRUNNHILDE'S WINGS ARE STILL UNCLIPPED

Matzenauer's Heroine a Triumph of Time and Great Inspirational Singing

'WALKURE" FINELY DONE

Because the mischances of opera are metimes more to be applauded than its planned merits, last night's performance of "Die Walkure" at the Metropolitan was uperior and splendid, if not surprising, was all due to the illness of Melanie Kurt, the scheduled Sigglinde. Her role was taken by Mme. Gadski, an admirable incumbent of the part. Further shifts brought Lila Robeson into the domestic draperies of Fricka, and to Margarete Matzenauer the shield and plumage of Brunnhilde. It was this latter change that made the production memorable. But there was good meat in many other features of the night: Jacques Urlus's sturdy, pliant and understanding Siegmund Ruysdael's imposing and wickedly Hunding; Clarence Whitehill's extraordi narily dignified, intellectual and finely posed Wotan, which made the matter of a not too tremendous voice seem small beside the acting power and trenchance he displayed. Mme Gadski after a shrill beginning turned Sieglinde into a person of appeal. warmth and fine melody. Mme. Robeson did extremely well with the frigid Fricka. extracting from the music allotted her more interest and humanity than usual. And Mme. Matzenauer——! But her we reserve for what is intended as the climax of this There is also to be considered the con ducting of Mr. Bodanzky. Supplanting the ardent and ardently admired Hertz at the Metropolitan, the conductor has had the customary measuring stick of priority applied to him by those who frequent opera sults. That he is a man of decided scho arly bent cannot be denied. Whether he puts into his Wagnerlan work enough fire and vim has furnished the basis for hot and hasty arguments in the lobby before this. To one writer, at least, Mr. Bodanzky has come through the furnace of individual criticism and proved himself the fine gold that he always seemed to be. His "Walkure" may be so may be softer in nore tinged with the essence of poetic intuition than declamatory violence. Does it not justify itself? Under his baton the ernists. music drama literally fits its name. The work has mellowness and light, as well as the gloom of grand thought and somber in a hundred eddies of emotional flow and counter-flow; above the shrilling of the Valkyrs's wings is heard the tenderness of Wotan's farewell to his great daughter, it had roses growing on its little porch judged yet still loved by him. Little points of significance, so often hidden by the clamor of violins, drums and woodwind, peep out, making the listener conscious of the human genuineness of the play as well as the orchestral color of the music itself.

The late Algernon St. John-Brenon, always a penetrating and original critic wh he did not run afoul of some pet bete noire used to cry shame at the alleged godly quality of the Niebelungen characters. Le us have them as people with hearts and bodies, he would say, in effect, and let the sublimity go hang. Something of this is sensed and made audible and visible by Mr. Bodanzky. By giving the intimate touch to the spring song, to the dialogues between Brunnhilde and Wotan, instead of the conventional screamingly impressive touch, he can enthrall one's mind as well as one's senses. You may rebel, but you are Boredom is not a mental condition associable with the Wagner of the Ring, when he is even passably realized. As has been stated, the most recent performance was lifted to the point of superiority in many ways. But with credit liberally given the rest of the cast, it was the evening of Matzenauer. The contralto-soprano, in spite of some mistakes, such as her limited and lamentable Carmen, remains one of the truly wondrous figures of the local operatic stage. None who heard her first Brunnhilde at a matinee here some years ago can forget the impression it instantly ago can forget the impression it instanty communicated of magnificence, of semi-divine awe and strength, coupled with a delicate and enlivening quality of woman hood. The impersonation, vocally and dra-matically, has grown with time. It has gained in supernatural beauty and human credibility. In comprehension of the char-acter, in loveliness of phrasing, in pellucia tonal purity, in propriety of gesture and posture, in high pictorial methods, it is the greatest portrait in the Metropolitan's present Wagner gallery. And her singing in the last act, with its full and sonorous curves of sound, its complete ease and innate mettle, was the best example of the inspired use of the voice heard here this season. Just as important neters, Just as important actors are usually at home in one role more than another, so is this singer fitted to Brunn-hilde. It is no mummery. She is the great over of the Ring.

The production is well staged, for the Metropolitan. If only the imposing flare of fire that surrounded the sleeping Valkyr could have enveloped those persons in the audience who broke the spell of the score with inopportune handelapping, other thoughtless noises and the usual bad man-ners that dog the muse's footsteps!

LENTEN CANTATA SUNG

Maunder's "Olivet to Calvary" Given at Holy Trinity

Maunder's "From Olivet to Calvary" was the appropriate choice for the annual Len-ten cantata by the choir of Holy Trinity, given last evening in the church at Ritten-house Square. Although the Maunder score is not an example of divinely inspired musical genius, it is carefully wearen.

score is not an example of divinely inspired musical genius, it is carefully wrought music of the sacred school and marked by reverential regard-for the dignity and impressiveness of the text and story.

Ralph Kinder, the eminent organist of Holy Trinity, whose musical services have been a feature of the ecclesiastical musical life here for many years, directed the rendition and also was the accompanist at the organ. He had his choral forces drilled thoroughly and they delivered exquisite and impressive tonal effects, Precision of attack and delicacy of shading were admirable traits of their singing.

The solo parts were also excellently were admirable traits of their singing.

The solo parts were also excellently taken. The artists, who did credit to the work by a well proportioned participation which made for unity, were Bessie Kille Maush, sepranc; Helen Hamilton Ackroyd, contraits; John Gwans, tener; George E.

LOVE IN OLD-TIME AND IN MODERN GUISE SHOWS SOME STARTLING VARIATIONS

"Bourgeois!" Protest Exponents of the New Form, Referring to Portraits Drawn by Shakespeare and Other Ancients-But Spring Is Burgeoning and Cupid Is a Sly Rogue Who Mocks at Theory or two people who love to live together s bourgeois. Moreover, it is dangerous.

According to the new theory you imperil your love by seeing too much of the loved pined recently that 'twould be even safer

f husbands and wives had their separate

"Why have the same friends or go to the ame places?" was the burden of her query

Cupld is perverse, and nothing pleases cares for Richard Wagner into the arms to a life spent on the bleachers of a base-ball park? Should he be consigned to an ternal series of symphony tortures? Mrs

The biblical Ruth, whose gweet philosophy was "Thy way shall be my way, thy God my God." showed herself but a spineless

Floyd Dell goes even a step farther than

Mrs. Parsons. He suggests, in a current magazine, marriage as a week-end diver-

"Marriage," says he, "is the nest-build-ing instinct. You feel it, both of you. If you don't now, you will as soon as you are married. If you are fools, you will try to live all your lives ta : love nest, and you will imprison your se is within it.

"Marriage is an iniquitous arrangement devised by the devil himself for driving all love out of the hearts of lovers. They would say "No." emphatically creature, not worthy of modern a man who cares for the more athletic ans. Should she be condemned thereafter ittle circles.

notice

Something is happening to love—someone's wife calling on one debonairly, like a ing insidious, something modern. The old charming stranger.

Ver the modernists have agreed upon it; hing insidious, something modern. The old brand seems no longer to give its former satisfaction, and the conscientious objectors apparently have not yet agreed on a new kind to take its place.

But one glance at the spring magazines ne talk with a real modernist, emphasizes the fact that all of the old experts had the wrong dope. It was their contentionand idealists have always clung to the belief-that love was the bread of They never spoke of it in terms of calories but if they had, the maximum amount, 3000 at least, would have been recommended ands upraised. "Love should be the A whiff, a taste, a soupcon-and you have enough !

It was Billy Shakespeare and, judging from the documents he has left on the sub-ject, he should be entitled to a respectful hearing, who immortalized the quality of "Love is not love," wrote he in one of is most beautiful sonnets. "which alters when it alteration finds; or bends with the "Bosh and nonsense!" said the mod-

LOVE'S EYES WIDE OPEN The old love was blind; the new has its yes wide open, and carries a lorgnette the better to detect flaws, The old recipe was love in a cottage, very small, very compact, very romantic;

MACKAYS MAKE JOINT

HOSPITAL GIFT TO U.S.

Unit of 500 Beds for

Nation

The first important contribution to the United States Government from a private ource to be devoted to the futherance of of the kind, in fact, ever received by the Government-was learned of yesterday

then it was announced at Roosevelt Hospital that Clarence H. Mackay and his mother, Mrs. John W. Mackay, who resides in Paris, have just made a joint gift of a completely equipped hospital base unit of 500 beds for service either in this country

The hospital, which will be known as the Mackay Unit, has already been accepted through the National Red Cross. Through the patriotic generosity of Mr. Mackay and mother provision has been made for a staff of twenty-two surgeons, seventy-five nurses.

150 orderlies and others necessary to operate

Although announcement of the gift was nade at Roosevelt Hospital only yesterday the organization of the Mackay unit has been pushed along with so much speed and thoroughness that it can be placed at the service of the United States as soon as needed. Much work in organization of the unit has been accomplished during the last

The White Star liner Adriatic has also reached an English port in safety, cable reports said today. The Adriatic sailed from America on the same day as the St. Louis. She carried 100 passengers and 18,000 tons of freight. Captain B. F. Hayes was in

Flowers You Should Know

The Century Flower Shop

12th Below Chestnut St.

MANDO

Removes superfluous hair and makes sleeveless gowns and sheer hosiery possible without emparrassment. Fashion and

Sold by Drug and Department

good taste demand it.

or abroad.

such a unit.

two weeks.

If You Love-

NEW YORK, March 28.

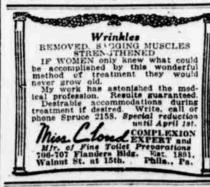

EZEKIEL, FAMOUS U.S. SCULPTOR, IS DEAD

Clarence H. and Mother Equip Pneumonia Causes Death in Rome of Artist, Who Fought for Confederacy

ROME, March 28.-Moses Ezekiei, the American sculptor, died yesterday of pneuhis old Confederate comrades in the National Cemetery at Arlington, Va. wartime efficiency-one of the finest gifts

Moses Ezekiel was one of the most widel; known of American artists, and although his best work remains abroad, yet his influence helped to destroy the classicism of American sculpture forty years ago by introduc-ing German and new Italian methods. His initial exhibit in this country was at the Centennial Exposition in 1876, and his first large work, a group representing "Religious Liberty," completed in 1874, is now in Fairmount Park

The last visit of the sculptor to Philadel phia was in 1913, when he was for a day the guest of his friends of many years' standing, Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Hirsh, or 2215 Green street. On this occasion Ezekiel had come to this country to attend the unveiling of his monument to the Confederate dead in Arlington Cemetery, at which President Wilson made the chief address. In 1911 he spent three weeks as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hirsh and attended a reception given by the Musical Art Club in his honor. On this occasion virtually all the art and musical colony were present to do honor to the distinguished sculptor.

MARS HASTENS WEDDING

agree, but human beings are not built that way. They disagree and life becomes a little hell."

gave him woman. The man, chraptured, lived with the woman five days, five hours or five minutes. I forget which, and then

"Oh. Allah, give her back," was his plea

But presently he was heard to moan

"Oh, Allah, I cannot live with her, and annot without her. What shall I do?"

rate domiciles and recommending as love's safeguard large amounts of absence, tine-tured with a few drops of propinquity spring is burgeoning in the human heart is well as in the new-green trees and pushes, and the park benches, most notably those removed from the vicinity of the park lights, show their usual quota of love-lorn

Showing that even the clever modernists are going to have a hard time teaching an old dog new tricks, and Cupid is nothing if not an old dog-as old as Eve-and as

Sergeant Takes Bride Day Before Set Time, Then Re-enters Regiment

Their wedding set for this evening, First sergeant Joseph S. Ferguson, of the Third Regiment, and Miss Dorothy E. Grant. daughter of Mrs. Ida Grant. were married last night before the bridegroom re-entered the service of the Government. The cere-mony took place at the home of the bride's mother, 3713 North Sixteenth street. S. Burnfield, of the North Presbyterian Church, Instead of a protracted, honey-moon, the bride and her guardsman husband went to their new home, 2632 Lehigh avenue, from which he will report to the armory this morning.

Gets $100 for Breach of Promise

POTTSVILLE, Pa., March 28. — Miss Emily McCool, daughter of Alderman H. B. McCoo!, who sued John Fulmor, master me chanic of the Pennsylvania Italiroad, for $5000 damages for breach of promise to marry, yesterday won a verdict of $100.

Thursday, Friday and Saturday Creditors' Committee

S. Presser, 1531 Locust St. Offer on these three days before closing business full

Ladies' Suits, Coats, Dresses, Skirts and Shirt-waists at Less Than 50% Cost

Shirt Waists as low as $1.00

A STORY FOR SPARE MOMENTS A Test of Endurance

The city editor's tone was final. But young man who had just applied for work as a reporter still lingered.

"I understand Mr. Grimshaw is in rope." he said, "or else I should have $p-

"See here, young man," said the city editor. "Young Mr. Grimshaw is a young cub who knows about as much of running newspaper as that desk does. He's in Europe, squandering his father's moneymoney that we're making for him. I am the News Sentinel and what I say goes. There's no job for you here."

The young man smiled. 'That's the sort of talk every editor puts up," he said. "T want to be a reporter, and I want to learn the husiness. Let me come in and sit around and wait for an assignment."

"All right, you can come in every day and sit around till you're blue in the face," replied the city editor. "Come right in

The young man followed him into the big room and took his place on a chair. At 12 o'clock he went out for his lunch. At 1 in the afternoon he was back. He stayed till Seand then went away. Nobody took the least notice of him.

For nearly a month he repeated this procedure, but he never got an assignment, nor did the city editor seem to recognize his presence. Wistfully he watched other reorters get assignments, and once, when here was nobody in the room to go after a piece of news, Mr. Lake's eyes fell upon m thoughtfully, but he did not call on him. During his month the young man had learned many things. He had learned that Mr. Lake was the best city editor in town; also that he was possessed of a ma-lignant and diabolical humor, which had ied him to encourage the young applicant deliberately, in order to triumph in his eventual discomfiture.

Lake was also a brute. The young man had seen a reporter fired without a moment's notice for a mistake on Lake's part He saw little Miss Norris, the telephone girl, hauled over the coals daily. Miss Nor-ris stood in fear of Lake and, oddly enough, she and the young man used to exchange pathetic glances whenever any uproar oc-curred in the office. Although they had not spoken, there was established a regular telepathic communication between them. One day they met in the lunchroom, and e was emboldened to speak to her. They drifted into conversation. don't they fall out'.
"Now, it may be all right for birds to

've got my sister to take care of, and one can't get ahead in this game. Besides, the newspaper work gets into one's blood some-

Which reminds one of the oriental story of the lonely man who begged Allah to create a companion for him. Allah did, and brute? he asked.

She shrugged her shoulders. all as bad." she answered, "and I don't want to have to hustle round the newspaper offices for another position now. Elsa had an operation last month and I have to pay went wailing back to Allah.

"Ab, Allah," said he, "take back this creature, for I cannot live in peace with five a week to the doctor." The young man left her at the office door with the impression that he had met a girl in the world in whom he could take an Five minutes, five hours, five days or so he was back again—his loneliness having conquered him. They met often in the days that interest. good deal of seriousness. She wore nask with which to look upon the world's battlefield and when the day was over ecame herself again. He called at the littie flat and saw the sister, wat recovering from her serious illness. He was fast drift-ing into love for her, and he believed that In the meantime while the advocates of the new love prate of ideal couples such as Mr. and Mrs. Havelock Ellis, whose his feeling was returned. idealism was retained, it seems, by the

At the office he was learning many things Having become accepted as a part of the establishment, he used his opportunity to discover the workings of the newspaper busi-ness. He made friends with the printers and went into the shop. All the while Lake seemed unconscious of his presence; secretly he was wondering how long the young man would hold out and whether he could afford to spend his days there forever.

The young man made acquaintance with two or three of the reporters.

"You're on the wrong tack," they told "Anybody but Lake would have given assignment weeks ago. But it's you an assignment weeks ago, his way; he'll never give in. He show you that you can't rush him. Give up.

He didn't give up. He came in regularly until three months had passed. Lake was beginning to be annoyed. He had not reckand on this. He was on the point of order-ng him out of the office; but to do that would be a confession of defeat. And then omething happened that put an end to the ituation.

The young man entered the office one norning to find everything in an uproar A rival daily had beaten the News Sentine! with a big story and two men had

And he had jumped on Miss Norris mercilessly over a telephone message which he declared her to have delivered wrong. ow, as it happened, the young man had heard Lake give the message He strode forward. "Miss Norris delivered that message as you gave it to I heard it," he said angrity. Lake glared at him. "What the— the—!" he began.

"That bluster won't go," said the yeman. "You know perfectly well that are making this girl the victim of your error. And you know that Mr. Marston Mr. Jones carried out their orders. you have turned them away. It's who ought to go, not they."

The city editor, paralyzed by the enness of the onslaught, could not at and words.

"Maybe you're Mr. Grimshaw."

"Yes," answered the young man. your first right guess about me and, as said. I was a young cub, and knew a as much of a newspaper as that desk of That's why I've been trying to learn business, as far as you'd let me."

Lake sat down in his chair and turns white. Marston, with a cry of astonish ment, came running up. "By thunder it is Mr. Grimshaw!" he shouted. "I me you at your father's house three years a I thought I knew you."

Lake began gathering his things togethe "Well, it's on me." he muttered. "I'm es-titled to six months' salary in lieu of

"I'm not going to give you notice." answered the other. "I know a good editor when I see one, thanks to what I've learned here. Personally, you are a brute, Mr. Lake. Professionally, you are a good editor. I want you to stay—if you'll take me a little more into your affairs," he added. smiling. "And by the way, Jones and Marston stay. And you owe Miss Norris an apology."

Lake, who was a good fellow at hear but soured by the years he had spent a the most testing of the professions, spran to his feet with outstretched hand. " guess you're right. Mr. Grimshaw," he said warmly. "I apologize, Miss Norris. I'll stay."

"And you'll stay?" asked the young man of Miss Norris a little later.

She looked up with a quick blush. "Yes,

1—I'll stay," she answered meaningly.

Dr. Margaret Ruppert Phila. Pa. Suite 70-72-78. Est. 23 yrs. Phone Walnus 7065

Be Sure to Save This Recipe Coconut Souffle Sauce

Milk from can of coconut. Juice of Sunkist Orange. 4 tablespoons sugar. 2 tablespoons cornstarch. 6 tablespoons cold water. 16 can of coconut. Yolk of one egg.

Mix in order given in saucepan, place on stove, bring to boiling point, remove from fire, beat well, then carefully fold in beaten white of egg, cool and serve.

COST OF COCONUT PUDDING CUPS of milk.
teaspoon of vanilla
tablespoons cornstarch.
cup sugar Will serve 7 to 8 persons.

Complete Recipe Booklet on Request BAKER'S Fresh Grated Coconut in the Original Milk

NOT a Desiccated Coconut Baker's Fresh Coconut Grated contains the juicy meat of selected nuts, grated --use-and packed the original freshness nutty flavor are rich, sweet, moist not a dry, desig-

OCONL 10c At Your Recipe Booklet on Request

FRANKLIN BAKER COMPANY Dept. NP Philadelphia, Pa.

AMARIAMANA SHOP HERE - DRESS SMARTLY - SAVE MONEY AMARIAMAN

CHARGE ACCOUNTS OPENED

A Mammoth Purchase of 2200 Spring Suits Worth up to $25

Has come to us from the largest suit house in N. Y. and goes on sale THURSDAY

Fine Velours, Wool Jerseys, Chiffon Ta fetas, All-wool Poplins, French Serge Gabardines, Velour Plaids and Checks as Worsted Novelties

There are smart-tailored styles, scores the fashionable pleated models, and abundance of swagger sports suits.

Jackets are finger-tip length and much longer and are beautifully fined peau de cygne, Paisley silk or fancy poplin.

Colors include sunset gold, apple green magenta, beige, Chinese blue, mustare Copenhagen, woodland green, navy black, etc.

FRANK & SEDER-SECOND FLOOR

$4 to $5 Ready-to-Wear Hats...... 1000 fashionable Easter Hats of Leghorns, lustre straw, horsehair braids, liseres, etc., with charming flowers, ribbs most effectively employed to lend chie and strate.

