PLAN TO RAISE TRUCKS IN TWO SHORE PARKS Atlantic City Will Observe Saturday, April 21, as Planting Day

ATLANTIC CITY, April 6. Governor Edge's planting day will be generally observed throughout the state. Women are getting in touch with owners of vacant lots, which will be divided into patches for school children to till. Courses on the raising of garden products are being introduced into the public schools and classes are also being arranged for adults.

Each day sees a big increase in the throngs of shore visitors, which were augmented today by a number of college boys and girls who are here for their spring vacation. Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, who is interested in the women's section of the Navy League, arrived here to join her son, Lieutenant Cromwell, and to supervise arrangements for the Navy League concert to be given at the Garden Pier Easter Sunday night.

General George W. Goethals, who has just accepted the position of New Jersey State Engineer, is here. General Goethals is on a tour of inspection of the roads of Atlantic County and will make this resort his headquarters.

SAYS NEGROES ARE LOYAL Head of Hampton Institute Scouts Stories of Disaffection

HAMPTON, Va., April 6.—Dr. Hollis B. Frisell, principal of Hampton Institute, when interviewed on the reported uprisings of negroes of the South, said: "After thirty-six years of labor among the negroes of the South, I feel that I have a fair knowledge of conditions. I have been interested to read some statements that indicate there are a large number of negroes who are disloyal to the government. Should they be called to help the government in the Hampton Institute battalion of 500 cadets could be counted on for service. They are under military training.

KNEISEL QUARTET ENDS DISTINGUISHED CAREER Final Program and Performance of Rare Proportions, Graces and Perfections

The Kneisel Quartet ended its distinguished career last evening in Witherspoon Hall with a program and performance of distinction fitting the climax in the history of a great musical organization. For thirty-two years this classic body of ensemble players has been making the country-wide tours which brought to it national fame and to music lovers of the more intimate quality of chamber music education and delight. Philadelphia has been one of the most appreciative and considerable of its audiences.

The orchestra, chamber music has apparently long been a self-sufficient and self-supporting enterprise, and the appeal of works written in the smaller forms for strings, and occasional supplementing with woodwind or piano in quartet, sextet and even nonets, has dwelled in popularity with the growth of our great orchestras and our expensive opera seasons. Chamber music is not expensive, but it does require money to maintain it at a high level of merit in spirit and substance. The musical times have changed and the public with them. Modernism has won its victories, perhaps of a transient day. It is to be regretted that the Kneisel Quartet, which was founded in conjunction with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and like that organization has contributed notably and pervasively to the growth of musical culture in this country, has a chronology little if any longer than the chronicles of the Boston band and the Kneisel Quartet. Tables showing the dates of foundation of the established or endowed musical enterprises of our cities, the orchestras, conservatories, and the like, would show a preponderating majority of origins subsequent to the inaugural of the Kneisel Quartet thirty-two years ago.

Now comes it the turn of the great Kneisel Quartet, one of the most zealous and spiritual misers of the exchange of the "musical" of the past. It leaves behind it history, not merely musical history which is passed through, but history which it shared in, helped to shape. There was a sense of sorrow last night in the final audience assembly, and it gave goodnight to Franz Kneisel and his associates, Louis Sevenski, Willem Wilkeke and Hans Letz.

Company Distributes Flag Buttons In line with the wave of patriotism which is now sweeping over the country is a miniature American flag button which is being distributed by the Guarantee Trust and Safe Deposit Company. BUILDING OPERATIONS SHOW LARGE INCREASE Many New Structures Are Being Erected—Other Lines of Trade Continue Active Substantial increases in new building operations and improvements in this city during the month are predicted in the weekly review of trade of R. G. Dun & Co. Business in other lines continues to be active and prices are generally reported firm. The review says that contractors and builders are active and a large amount of new business about to be started; it is believed the month of April will fully offset the loss of March which was more than $1,100,000 less than March, 1916.

Buying in the local cotton yarn market has been rather slow during the last week, which is attributed to the high prices of yarns. The advance in raw cotton is regarded as a strong factor. It is the impression among the buyers that yarns will reach a still higher price in sympathy with the advance in raw cotton. Manufacturers, however, are inclined to buy only for immediate requirements. The wool market still maintains a good tone, although there does not appear to be much activity among the buyers. The mill people appear to be buying only for their requirements. Foreign advances are strong and local values are held high.

Manufacturers of cloaks and suits state they have been somewhat rushed to make their deliveries for the season. There is a little more activity among the waist manufacturers, although business is somewhat backward. They anticipate, however, a good season's business. Skin manufacturers have been fairly busy and looking forward to a good season.
