

FERRYBOAT HITS SLIP; PASSENGERS INJURED

Beverly Crashes at Full Speed When Engineer's Signal Cord Breaks

Many persons were injured this morning when the Pennsylvania Railroad ferryboat Beverly crashed at full speed into the slip at the foot of Market street, Camden.

- WILLIAM ROCHE, twenty-six years old, of 2714 Gray's Ferry road. Slight bruises of back, bruises of right knee.
C. E. BOTT, nineteen years old, of 1703 Wallace street, bruises of right hip and ankle.
DAVID POSTINSKY, twenty-eight years old, of 425 McKean street, bruises of left leg.
SAMUEL MILLANA, 1133 Cross street, bruises of both knees.
R. ATKINS, 2001 Olive street, bruises of back and left hip.
D'AMICO CALAGERO, bruises of back and knee.

The accident was the result of a broken bell cord. As the boat neared the slip Captain P. S. Gravenstine, at the wheel, reached for the handle to signal "slow down" in the engine room. As he gave the bell a pull the cord broke, the engineer did not get the signal, and the boat hit the wharf at full speed.

Several hundred people were on the boat on their way to their places of employment in Camden. Those standing were thrown to the deck; many rushed to the stern gate and an automobile broke loose and rolled back upon them. Most of those taken to the Cooper Hospital were crushed against the gate by the runaway motorcar.

As soon as the boat was made fast to the wharf railroad physicians cared for the slightly bruised, and the others were taken to the hospital. It is expected they will all be discharged today, as their injuries are less serious than at first supposed.

Russia Behind U. S., Kerensky Asserts revolution are of immense military importance.

POLES AND FINNS FRIENDLY
Many nationalities subject to Russia, as for example, the Poles and Finns, were openly hostile under the old regime and would have received the Germans with open arms.

The provisional government has now concluded an agreement with the Finns for adequate protection against a possible German advance. Hence, Finland is now a strong spot, instead of weak one, as formerly, in the empire's line of defense.

People abroad must not be misled by peace talk prevalent among Russian Socialists and labor leaders. Peace propaganda under Czarism was ten times more prevalent than now. This however, was not only never permitted to reach the ears of the outside world, but there were actual attempts on the part of the bureaucratic government to conclude separate peace.

Today, with our new-won freedom of speech, we have a healthy discussion which dissolves itself harmlessly into oratory instead of breeding sinister intrigue.

INDEMNITIES AND EXACTIONS
So far as the unaggressive war policies of Russian Socialists are concerned, I may say that we make a clear distinction between necessary indemnities, as in the cases of Belgium and Poland, and irritating penal exactions.

"Do you believe that a social revolution is possible in Germany during the war?" I asked.

"No," said Kerensky. "I am not Marxist in my beliefs, and hence do not agree with the views of the majority that the German Socialists are likely to precipitate a revolution."

"For the first time I am able to speak unreservedly to America. The United States democracy is better understood by the Russian masses than are England and France.

"The Russian masses and the American people are today exhibiting one of the most profound democratic sympathies of history. Speaking for the Russian Socialists, soldiers and workmen who caused the revolution, and whose minister I now am, I can only draw attention to my speech in the Duma at the outbreak of the war, when I said that we would enter a defensive war, but perfunctorily, because of our distrust of the Government. With Russian territory invaded our war is still defensive, but now we wage a war that will be fought firmly to the end, with a vision of free Russia leading us on, which even in its incipient stages ranks among the first democracies of the world."

RUSSIAN CHIEFS PLEAD FOR MORE MUNITIONS

PETROGRAD, April 22.—Demand for more guns and ammunition are being made upon the republican government by the army. These are needed, it is declared, to meet the concentrations of the Germans on the Russian front. Free Russia has reached the critical period of her stormy history. Inspiring addresses are being made to the workmen and soldiers almost daily to lead them to fresh efforts. Prince Lvoff, the Premier, and Deputy Guchkoff, the Minister of War, have issued a proclamation to the workmen in munition factories saying that the fate of Russia is in their hands. An urgent appeal is made for the maximum production of war materials. Unless the workers do their share, it was said, Russia would drift back into "our former slavery."

The council of workmen's and soldiers' delegates has been reorganized, owing to the unwellness of its members, which numbers 3000. A new political party, known as the party of national freedom, has been formed.

VERDUN HERO REPEATS BATTLE AT CITY HALL

Soldier, Believed Deranged, Fights Six Cops When Taken to Cell

Roland Mouton, a French artilleryman, veteran of Verdun, imagined that six Philadelphia policemen were German soldiers attacking Verdun and almost fought them to a standstill in a rough-and-tumble fight in a cell at City Hall today.

Mouton became confused in Broad Street Station last night while en route from Chicago to France to rejoin his regiment. A policeman took him to City Hall, where he was questioned today by Police Surgeon Wanamaker. The man had consular papers showing that he had been wounded at Verdun, had been furloughed and had visited friends in Kansas.

To refresh the soldier's blank memory Doctor Wanamaker mentioned Verdun, whereupon Mouton excitedly began describing the battle. Suddenly he became so violent that Doctor Wanamaker called for help. It required the united strength of six big policemen to subdue the Frenchman.

"Now I know why the Germans didn't capture Verdun," said one of the blue-coats, mopping his brow after the struggle. Mouton, who is forty-six years old, is under observation at the hospital, where it is believed that the incessant gunfire of the terrific battle has impaired his mind.

A graduate of the architectural school of Drexel Institute, Mr. Hill remained at the institution as an instructor in architecture for four years. During the last year he was a practicing architect. He was unmarried. Besides his father and mother a brother and two sisters survive him.

BENCH AND BAR FELICITATE JUDGE F. AMADEE BREGY

More Than 100 Well Wishers at Reception Marking Thirtieth Year in Office

More than 1000 persons, including judges of the various courts, attorneys and personal friends, today flocked through Room A of Common Pleas Court No. 1 to congratulate F. Amadee Bregy, the venerable President Judge of the court, on the thirtieth anniversary of his elevation to the bench. Judge Bregy is in his seventy-second year.

As Judge Bregy stood at the bar of the court to shake the hands of his hundreds of well-wishers, his wife and two daughters, the Misses Katharine and Edith Bregy, occupied seats in the jury box. One of the first to compliment Judge Bregy was ex-Chief Justice of the Supreme Court D. Newell Fell. Present members of the Supreme and Superior Courts also participated in the reception.

Other courts represented were the United States District Court, the Orphans' Court and the Common Pleas and Municipal Courts. It was estimated that about 500 lawyers personally congratulated Judge Bregy, who is still active in his judicial labors in the Common Pleas and Criminal Courts. The public reception was under the directions of a committee of the bench and bar.

DOUBLE ROBBERY IN STORE

$200 Worth of Stickpins Taken in Second Theft—Man Nabbed

Removal of a board from a plate glass window in the store of I. Press and Sons, 809-11 Chestnut street, which had been broken by thieves Saturday night, permitted a second robbery in which $200 worth of stickpins were taken, early today.

A man accused of having committed the second theft was arrested after a chase of a block on Chestnut street by Policeman Murray, of the Eleventh and Winter streets station.

Murray saw Joseph Butler, of Eddystone, Pa., standing in the doorway of the store, and recalled that one of the show windows had been broken and boarded up. He called to Butler and Butler ran. Murray overhauled him at Seventh street and found jewelry valued at $200 in his pocket. Returning to the store he saw that one of the window boards had been pried off.
