The Young Lady Across the Way

The young lady across the way says there may have been some differences of opinion at first, but now that we're actually at war all our ex-Presidents, including Mr. Bryan, are standing firmly by the President.

Nowadays

"So it's the fifth grade for you now, Louise? Will you be in fractions or decimals?"
"Neither, sir. I'll be in beadwork and perforated squares."—Fuck.

THE TOONERVILLE TROLLEY

By FONTAINE FOX

THERE WAS CONSIDERABLE EXCITEMENT THE OTHER AFTERNOON WHEN A BUNCH OF BILL BURTON'S BEES SWARMED ON THE TROLLEY POLE.

THE PADDED CELL

MAMMA, LOOK! THEY GAVE ME A DIRTY PLATE!

MUSH, DARLING! THOSE ARE THE FRENCH FRIED!

She Will Do
Professor (in class in military science)—Mr. Brown, define a fortress?
It's a female fort, sir.
Correct! Now give me a synonym for the same word.
Well, how about Mrs. Cather?—Cornell Widgwy.

More Horrors of War

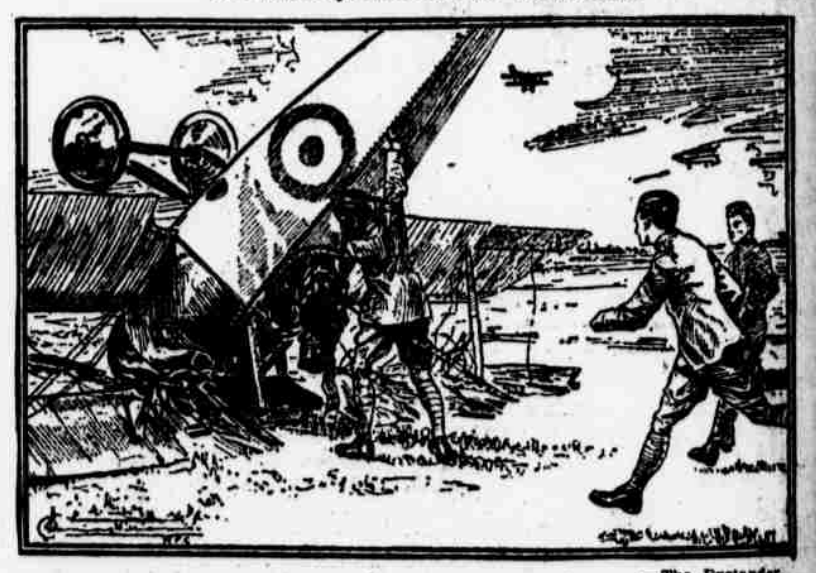

—London Opinion.
Medical Officer (to first private)—What is it you're complaining of?
First Private—Cardigan trouble, sir.
Medical Officer (to second private)—And what's the matter with you?
Second Private—Precarious teeth, sir.

More Than a U-Boat

—The Sketch.
The Pirate—Quick, Fritz—dive; she's a dreadnought!

FOOLISH QUESTIONS IN WAR TIME

—The Bystander.
Mechanic (to pilot who has crashed and is still hanging by his safety belt)—Midjudged your landing a bit, sir?
Pilot—Oh, no! My collar stud went down the back of my neck and I'm trying to get it up.

SCHOOL DAYS

Harold, your undershirt is wrong side out! I put it on you this morning and I put it on right! Come here! Lemme feel if your hair is damp!

How was the water?

Absolute Faith
"Mr. Smith has great faith in his fellow men."
"Yes. He even writes 'Personal' on a postal card."—Gargoyle.

A Link With the Past
Dr. A. S. Tibby will speak on "Shakespeare" at the next meeting of the American University Society. Doctor Tibby knew Shakespeare intimately.—Boulder Camp.

EPIGRYMES:
A writer chap called Walter Scott whose name included "Sir," said lots of things that STRIKE me right, and one that, I infer, applies appropriately now, to just this day and hour WHILE we are rolling up our sleeves to teach a foreign Power THE lesson we've made others learn With IRON, lead and steel—a lesson you might call the "International Square Deal." Let's teach that lesson thoroughly so 'twill not be forgot! The time to eat your dinner is when everything is HOT.
ROBERT RUSSELL.
"Strike while the iron is hot."

Safety First
"Say, if you're runnin' to fish your little boy out o' the millpond, you're too late."
"Oh, you mean because..."

The end of a perfect day
