

ARROW MARKS PROGRESS OF CITY TOWARD ITS QUOTA OF LIBERTY LOAN

Don'ts to Be Remembered in Liberty Loan Campaign

DON'T say you will subscribe for the next Liberty Loan.
Don't say your finances will not permit you to buy a Liberty Bond when that can be done for $1 down and $1 a week.
Don't say that your money is not needed this time because the loan will be over-subscribed.
Don't delude yourself with the thought that words will defeat Germany.
Don't postpone your Liberty Bond purchase another hour. Buy a bond today and put yourself on record as a real patriot.

RICH MUST RALLY TO SUPPORT LOAN

Only Nine Days Remain in Which to Raise $135,000,000

COMMITTEE IN APPEAL

Unless men and women of means volunteer at once for service in Philadelphia's Liberty Loan campaign the city will be subjected to the humiliation of having failed to raise its allotment of $250,000,000.
Today the committee faces such a situation and admits it. There are only nine days of the campaign left and in that time the committee must raise in the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank district $135,000,000.
Despite the successes of the campaign—and they have been notable—there is but one thing that will save the day and spare Philadelphia from defeat.
The wealthy must make big subscriptions—subscriptions that compare in size and spirit with the thousands made by workers in the commercial and industrial plants.
To drive them into line the committee launched its fighting logs today and planned a vigorous offensive on their strong boxes.
Today's subscriptions swelled the total, but not to an extent to cause jubilation among the campaign workers. The biggest subscription, one for $2,600,000, came from the banking house of Montgomery, Clothier and Tyler. R. K. Cassatt subscribed for $50,000 and employees of the Chilton Publishing Company, $10,000.
Banks report a lively business in Liberty bonds, but, like the campaign committee, report that the subscriptions represent the small investor. Few big subscriptions are recorded by the banks. The result of the bank activities are contained in the following table, which contains reports from several institutions.

Table with 2 columns: Institution Name and Amount. Includes Franklin National Bank ($4,370,000), Citizens Trust Company ($4,054,000), Farmers and Merchants National ($4,000,000), Central National Bank ($3,000,000), Third National Bank ($2,500,000), etc.

PATRIOTISM ON TRIAL

"Our problem," says Janney, "is the present loan. The patriotism of men of means who are acting restrictively is on trial. Will they respond?"
The "little fellows," as small bond buyers are styled, are responding nobly, but their subscriptions do not swell the total, unless they are augmented by big subscriptions. This morning the campaign committee laid particular emphasis upon the fact that it takes 20,000 $50 bond buyers to add $1,000,000 to the loan. The committee is getting the "little fellows" in groups of 20,000, but they alone cannot put the loan over.
Boy Scouts continued their activity today and not only sold bonds but bought them. Troop 126, of the William Penn Charter School, bought a $50 bond when twenty-five scouts contributed $2 each.
Troop 130, under command of Scoutmaster Nelson A. Ozden, met at 1303 Columbia avenue and bought a bond in the same way.
Troop 30 met at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Fifteenth street and Baltimore avenue, and did the same.
That is the spirit that animates the "little fellows," and the committee is anxious to have this spirit passed on to the wealthy.
The Philadelphia Electric Company has organized a Liberty Bond Club for its employees and is urging every man and woman connected with the company to become a member. This morning the company circularized every employe, and among the arguments employed in behalf of the loan were these:
When war and nigardliness go hand in hand the fight is a losing one.
The man who can give and does not, the man who sits back indifferently and is disposed "to let George do it," is as guilty in his nigardliness as would be one of our fighting men should he throw down his gun and run away when the enemy is charging. To be able to contribute and not to do so is the attitude of a "slacker"—just as much as "slacker" as the man who dodges his military duty.
If you are too old to shoulder a gun, or if your dependents require your presence at home, you can still "do your bit" handsomely and to the full measure of your duty if at this time you pour out your savings in a generous way for liberty and the preservation of your country.
Enlist or invest!
Can any American refuse?
Your subscriptions will be received by any bank, banker or trust company.

GIRL GOING TO FRANCE TO DRIVE RELIEF TRUCK

Miss Ruth Richards, of Motor Messenger Service, Will Sail Saturday

"I hope I get to the front!"
This is the expression of the dearest wish of Miss Ruth Richards, a member of the motor messenger service of the Emergency Aid, who will sail for France next Saturday to drive a war relief truck. Miss Richards will make the trip with Miss Letitia McKim, of Chestnut Hill, who recently resigned from the directorship of the motor messenger service of the Emergency Aid to become ambulance driver for a hospital in Soissons.

Miss Richards, who is not a Philadelphia as is generally understood, but a native of Colorado, Cr., has become so identified with Quaker City relief work that the Emergency Aid claims her for their own. During her stay in the city she has made her home with Mrs. John Sinnott, at 1277 Spruce street.
Miss Richards, who does not attempt to conceal her enthusiasm about the trip, does not think it is at all unusual that a girl should measure up to a man and drive a big heavy truck. The lady from California knows all about carburetors and transmissions and the rest of the things that go to make up the business of a truck. She can change a tire with all the nonchalance of a man.
"I have done all these things before," she said in the office of the Motor Messengers today, "and I don't see why there should be any difference when I get over on the other side. The work for the present will consist in hauling hospital supplies."
"But," she added, "I'd like to get to the front. I think every one who gets over there wants to get into the thick of things."
"What about the bullets?" she was asked.
"Well," was the reply, "I guess you never can tell what you'll do until you face one, but somehow now, just thinking about them, I'm not afraid!"
Miss McKim also achieves a very dear hope in going abroad. She served for eight months in a hospital in France earlier in the war.
"It is the thing," she said today, "that interests me more than anything else in the world."
Miss McKim will not go empty-handed to the little hospital in Soissons that is so badly in need of funds. It is housed in a convent that has been so badly riddled with shells that the walls are filled with gaping holes. By means of a "greenback shower" arranged by her friends, $250 has been collected for her to take to the hospital.

TO TAKE UP RELIEF WORK IN FRANCE

passports, naturalization papers, marriage license records and other documents show the men to be within the age limits.
Garbarino's men today dismantled a wireless telegraph station which they found hidden in a West Philadelphia house. No arrests were made and the secret service men refused to give the address of the house or the name of the wireless station owner. They found the place by following out one of the anonymous tips which have come to them in profusion.
Part of the aftermath of registration day was a great increase in the number of applications of foreigners for first and for final naturalization papers. Aliens thronged the Federal Building today.
Swelling the crowd were 700 alien enemies, who sought permits to enter the half-mile zone placed by law around armories, arsenals, munitions factories and like places. An extra force of clerks was at work in United States Marshal Noonan's office to take care of the applicants. Permits are being granted as fast as the applications are investigated.
A complete list of all men who have registered in each division of the city will be posted in the division polling place as soon as the lists can be compiled.
Meanwhile the district registration boards are busy with the task of copying the more than 172,000 individual cards that were filled out in yesterday's poll. From seven to ten days will be necessary to finish the work, it is estimated.
The original cards are to be placed on file, permanently, in the various police stations. The duplicates will be sent to Harrisburg for the use of the Adjutant General. The State Registration Bureau is located in the Adjutant General's headquarters.
When the district boards sit as courts of exemption they will work from the original cards filed in the police stations. The copying work is being done by a large force of extra clerks working under supervision of the district boards. Some of the clerks are volunteers, serving without pay. Others will draw wages from the Government.

STEAD-GRANT WEDDING NEARLY PREVENTED BY UNCLE SAM

Bridegroom, Who When He Procured License Said He Was 21, Permitted to Marry on Producing Birth Certificate, Which Exempts Him From Draft

The wedding of two socially prominent young persons narrowly escaped interruption today by agents of the Department of Justice because the bridegroom to expedite the matter of obtaining a marriage license falsified his age, giving the impression that he was twenty-one years old, and therefore eligible to the draft.

The principals of this little near-drama of the draft are Mitchell Stead, Jr., son of Mitchell Stead, superintendent of one of the mills of Polwell Brothers & Co., manufacturers of dress goods, 625 Chestnut street, and Miss Mildred Grant, daughter of P. W. Grant, president of the Equitable Beneficial Association. The couple were married last night at the home of the bride, 2112 West Venango street.

Young Stead will not be twenty-one years old until August 21. Several weeks ago he visited the Marriage License Bureau in City Hall and applied for a license to wed Miss Grant.
He was much chagrined to discover that as he had not attained his majority he would have to obtain the consent of his father before a license could be issued. According to Stead's sister, Stead senior was attending an important directors' meeting, and the son did not wish to disturb him.
"So to expedite matters," said Miss Stead, "brother said he was twenty-one years old and the license was issued to him."
The next day the names of Stead and his prospective bride were published among those who had obtained licenses to wed.

Sugar Futures Are Quiet
NEW YORK, June 6.—The sugar futures market opened quiet and unchanged to a decline of 2 points on first sales, transactions amounting to 1460 tons. There was nothing in the general situation to cause any particular change in sentiment, ring traders being more or less nervous and waiting developments in actual sugar. It is difficult to forecast the trend of the market, refiners showing little interest in raw sugar and at the same time Cuban holders holding steady and not forcing sales.

Drowned Man's Body Found
READING, Pa., June 6.—Steelworkers coming home along the Schuylkill River found the body of Newton Obenhausser, forty-nine years old and a widower, standing in a steeped position just under the surface of the river near the bank. Obenhausser, an ironworker, had been drowned for several hours when found.

First Slacker Here Arrested by Agents

place, upstair furniture and barricading the doors for two hours.
CHANCE FOR "SLACKERS"
Men who did not register yesterday still have a chance to do so voluntarily. How a laggard should act to save himself from prison was told by Frederick J. Shoyer, chairman of the Registration Board. He should report immediately to the police station in his district, and there make application for registration by the district registration board of that territory. The police stations are headquarters of the district registration boards, which now take up the work where the division registrars left off with the close of registration day polls.
Figures tabulated today by registrars showed a total of 172,502 men enrolled. The number will grow, however, because cards sent by Philadelphians who registered in other cities are being received constantly. The eventual registration for Philadelphia may reach 175,000.
As soon as the Department of Justice offices in the Postoffice Building opened today, telephone tips began to stream in, telling Secret Service operatives of men of army-draft age who had failed to register yesterday. The mails brought anonymous tips of the same kind. Instances of shirking were reported by these means not only in Philadelphia, but also in various parts of Pennsylvania and New Jersey.
Every one of these tips will be run down, Frank Garbarino, chief of the local bureau of the Department of Justice, said. The number of them is likely to keep the agents busy for many days, they said.
MANY EVASIONS TRIED
Frederick J. Shoyer, chairman of the Board of Registration, pointed out today another condition which secret service agents are studying.
"Many foreigners," said Mr. Shoyer, "evaded registration by stating that they were either just a little under or a little over the registration age of twenty-one to thirty. In many of these cases, it is asserted,
