

ALPHABETICALLY HURDLED
COUNCILS HAVE TO WAIT
Councils Seek Money for Appropriation, but With Little Hope
HEAVY DEMANDS FACED
Urgent Calls for $1,300,000 Already and Only Half That Available

Ready to back the Pennsylvania nautical school program as prepared in a bill that has passed the State Senate, members of Councils today faced financial demands that they asserted would prevent any appropriation for the school until next fall. With demands totaling well over $1,300,000 and with no doubt that sum available, they said many city needs would have to go unmet.

City officials today agreed that the school which was the most important in view of the fact that the nation had embarked upon a shipbuilding program never before equaled in the history of the world. Thousands of steel and wooden ships will be built by the nation to combat the German submarine campaign. Thousands of new vessels will be needed to navigate the Government's maritime and merchant marine routes. The Pennsylvania nautical school would soon be in a position to play a large part in supplying trained officers for the new fleet.

LOAN SEEMS LIKELY
Although Chairman Gaffney, of Councils' Finance Committee, still hopes to prevent a fall loan, the certainty of the need for a temporary loan of $1,300,000 in October or November is doubted only by a very few of those larger firms which are familiar with municipal finances. This loan when floated becomes a first lien on 1918 income and must be paid within four months of creation. As such, it reduces materially the amount of money available for appropriation for the third year of the Smith administration.

SITUATION IS ACUTE
With the city bureaus demanding $1,300,000 in Public Works alone, the financial problems of the city have reached an acute stage that make planned highway improvements and other badly needed improvements very uncertain. In view of this fact Councils will not willingly assume any further financial burdens before the summer recess.

SILVER SHELL'S CAPTAIN
LIVES IN JENKINTOWN

Wife of Commander of American Ship Which Sank U-Boat Proud of His Exploit

The commander of the American merchantman which sank a German submarine in the Mediterranean, John Charlton, a Philadelphia, has the honor of being skipper of the Silver Shell, the first American craft to sink a U-boat. The captain's wife and children, who live at 239 Greenwood avenue, Jenkintown are proud of the honor which has come to him.

The pretty little wife of Commander William J. Clark, of the Silver Shell's gun crew, which sank the U-boat, is in the midst of moving into a new cottage at Jamaica, N. Y. Garbed in a gingham house dress, sleeves rolled up, and standing in the midst of the domestic turmoil of her sitting room, with a canary in one hand and a squawking parrot in the other, little did Mrs. Clark suspect that her husband was a hero. First she was frightened. Upon being informed that her visitor bore good news, she was so delighted that she dropped the parrot and cried.

"Oh, I'm so glad," she said. "But I'm not surprised. He told me before he left that he thought maybe he'd do it."

"We're all navy folk on both sides," said Mrs. Clark, her mother. "We always have been. All Will's people and all mine are fighters. My husband and all my brothers belonged to the navy, and Will's father and brothers did, and many cousins and uncles belong. My two boys, Johnnie and Willie, were in the navy and joined two months ago. Will has worked very hard to rise from the ranks, and he deserves all he gets."

DOCTORS OF STATE
WILLING TO SERVE

"Selective Volunteer System" Under Way, Listing Physicians in 3 Classes

ANSWER CALL AS NEEDED
Work Organized in Each County Will Give Army Men, Yet Protect Communities

Organization of the city's and State's physicians under a "selective volunteer" system for army medical work is well under way, according to an announcement made today by Dr. Edward B. Martin, of the University of Pennsylvania.

The work, in which physicians will be withdrawn from their practice in inverse order of their importance to their communities, is being carried on by the county subdivisions of the medical section of the State Public Safety Committee. Physicians in each county are being divided into three classes:

- 1. Those who can and should go.
- 2. Those who can be spared in great emergencies.
- 3. Those who should not go under any circumstances.

The lists of names will be sent to the State committee for approval, after which it will be forwarded to the surgeon general at Washington, who will direct the selection of doctors for the army.

For the first 1,000,000 men, 10,000 doctors are needed and thereafter each additional 1,000,000 soldiers require 1000 medical men.

Dr. Martin, who is extremely busy in his capacity as a member of the Council of National Defense, National Committee of the American Red Cross and State Public Safety Committee and ardent worker for tomorrow's military carnival and sham battle on Franklin Field, took time this afternoon to explain the aims of the census.

"The pride of the medical profession prevents us from waiting for draft," he said. "We are providing the means for physicians to go honorably and properly, without causing the needs of their communities to suffer. And when the divisions are made there will be a rush for enrollment."

The leading men of the profession have volunteered splendidly, as have the men just coming out of hospital work. But the men of between thirty and thirty-five years old have been slow in coming in. This is the type of man we want, for he is experienced, young and strong. The reason for the reluctance has not been any lack of patriotism, but a distrust as to whether or not they will be needed or used in accordance with their capabilities.

"The work of the committee will assure these men that they will be used according to their training and ability and will not be called until needed. We have every reason to believe that the Government will adhere strictly to the recommendations of the local committees, which will be guided by the needs of the army and the rights of the individual physicians."

The Philadelphia County committee, headed by Dr. J. M. Baldy, county chairman, and Dr. Charles A. E. Codman, acting chairman, consists of twenty physicians in high standing. The State committee, which acts as a clearing house for the various county committees reports, has as its chairman Dr. John H. Jackson.

ALIENS' PERMITS DELAYED
BY TARDY PHOTOGRAPHERS

Camdenites Must Get Them Today if They Don't Want to Move

Fifty aliens who applied for permits to allow them to live within a half mile radius of Government plants and shops in Camden will be forced, if they intend to obtain permits today, to go to Trenton and get them from Chief Deputy Marshal Snowden, because they did not produce photographs with their applications. It developed that these persons, when they asked for information yesterday at the Camden City Hall, were told they would have to have photographs taken. This they did, according to several, but were told that the pictures would not be ready until today.
