MAORI QUEEN'S PALACE QUARANTINED BY POLICE

Chickasaw Indian Woman's Dream of Fortune-Telling Parlor Chain Shattered

The Tenderloin, which has its breakfast when others are sleeping, got up early today.

Bleary-eyed, pale, disheveled and blinking from the unfamiliar glow of nature's incandescence, it tumbled out several hundred people, called forth by the weirdest alarm that has ever shaken it from its bed, to witness one of the strangest scenes ever enacted in the vicinity.

It was an Indian matron registering the fact that Mr. Kipling had it right when he asserted that "East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet."

Also that Mr. Whycor's "East is East and West is West" was entirely correct.

Up to now she declared that "hell hath no fury like a woman scorned."

To passers-by in the neighborhood of 210 and 229 North Ninth street, the Indian matron is the Maori Queen, fortune teller, born in New Zealand, educated in Jerusalem, and it may be added, soon evicted from Philadelphia.

In reality, however, the Maori is a genuine United States product. With her possessions, other household goods, and a few of fortune-telling members of her tribe—the Chickasaw—she came from Oklahoma about a week ago in a huge touring car. At the above address she set up two fortune-telling establishments, one in the daytime and one in the evening, brought out the family jewelry, consisting of coin necklaces and many gaudy bracelets, and prepared to prove how easy it is to fool most of the people of the time and add a good living thereby.

But ever since last March, when the police, as the result of a campaign conducted by the Evening Ledger, ran hundreds of fortune-telling nomads out of town, anything resembling the second cousin of a gypsy has been as welcome as the smallpox.

Today, just as the Queen and her relatives were predicting rosy futures than ever emerged from the bowl of an opium pipe to a group of Chinese visitors, a detail of policemen, acting under the orders of William Brown, of the Eleventh and Water streets station, surrounded the place and put it under a fortune-telling quarantine.

When the regent of the Maoris saw the blue-coated "bitting bulls," who had taken quarters outside their quarters and were deliberately interfering with her business, she let out a wild war whoop that summoned her clan around her and brought forth a mob of about a dozen of her relatives. Then each several paces in various niches, she loosened her clothing and took down her hair, to permit the freer play of her arms, and jumping out from the crowd, executed a frenzied war dance, hurling blood-curdling imprecations at the cops and paler faces.

The lady passed maledictions around with the liberality of a savannah man giving out literature. According to a mid-manned little Indian boy, who stood on the sidewalk and acted as interpreter, being too accustomed to such repel behavior to be moved by it, the square surrounded ten yards of insurmountable bad luck on the City of Brotherly Love. She followed this with a whirling dervish dance, characterized by long days of rain upon us. Then, despite the Mayor's recent order rescinding the darkening of the municipal tower, the enraged woman swept Philadelphia into an era of total darkness.

At this point, when the combination which held the lady's clothes on threatened to break, Policeman Farber ordered her inside with a little kindly advice as to least-rugged, best-oiled roads that led elsewhere.

Thomasas Buchayost, described as the "advance man" of the "tribe," appeared at this moment and decided he would "step round for the car," which he did.

And the tenderloin, like an excited ferret, crawled back into its lair again.

U. S. WILL LEAD WORLD, SCHWAB'S PREDICTION

Leaps and Bounds in Progress Coming, Says Steel Magnate

DETROIT, June 11.—"A new era for the United States in which American methods and American ideas should be carried to all parts of the world" will follow the great war, according to a prophecy made here today by Charles M. Schwab. Mr. Schwab's declaration was made in the course of a speech before the annual meeting of the World's Congress of Salesmanship.

"This war is going to result in the world moving forward in a few years as much as ordinarily would require centuries," said Mr. Schwab. "Of this vast expansion of world effort and energy I predict that the steel business will form the basis just as it has been the basis of our own national development in the last twenty-five years."

"Up to now we have been largely concerned with our domestic problems, both in politics and in business. The end of the war will find us engaged in world politics, in international trade and in world affairs on the largest possible scale."

"Forty-five million tons of steel probably will be produced in the United States this year, according to Mr. Schwab. Last year's production amounted to 40,000,000 tons, as compared with 1,000,000 tons in 1880," he said.

ITALIANS URGE GREAT RECEPTION TO MISSION

Prominent Members of Colony Visit Mayor to Insure Rousing Welcome

A committee of prominent Italians, headed by Giuseppe Donato, noted sculptor, called upon Mayor Smith at noon today to ask his full co-operation in plans to give the Italian war mission a rousing Philadelphia welcome when it visits Philadelphia.

The Mayor is enthusiastic over the proposed visit of the distinguished visitors, and it is expected that he will open wide the gates of the city's hospitality so that the occasion will be a memorable one.

Donato, Constantino Constantino and Cavalier Frank Travascio went to Washington last Friday and received assurances from the State Department and from prominent members of the Italian war mission that the mission's visit here would be extended from five hours to twenty-four.

The committee's visit today to the Mayor is considered particularly important, as the mission has announced that it will leave Washington this week for a tour of the country. The Prince of Udine has nearly recovered from his illness, and it is expected that he will accompany the mission or at least join the party in a few days.

"Enthusiasm is growing daily in 'Little Italy,'" said Donato, "over the proposed visit of the mission to Philadelphia. Italians, young and old are rejoicing over the prospect of seeing these great men of their native land."

GIRLS HELP POLICEMEN CATCH NEGRO BURGLAR

Young Women Give Alarm When They Are Wakened by Intruders

The heroism of two girls, sisters, who were undaunted when they awoke to find two negro burglars ransacking their home, brought about the capture of one of the intruders by the police. The girls are Bella and Sarah Halimovitz, daughters of Abraham Halimovitz, a trunk dealer, 1921 South street.

When the girls discovered the intruders they screamed for the police and Sergeant Levy and Policemen Rosenblatt and Butler, of the Twelfth and Pine streets station, who were attracted by their cries, were directed by them to the third floor, where the men had fled on hearing the cries.

The negroes jumped from a third-story window to a shed adjoining at 1026 South street, with the police after them. One of the negroes fired a revolver at the police, but an instant later Policeman Butler, with his bullet felled the man who had fired. The other escaped by vaulting a fence, after he had jumped from the shed.

The wounded negro was taken to the Pennsylvania Hospital, where he gave his name as Samuel Carson, Rodman street near Tenth. One bullet pierced his chest and the other his abdomen. He is not expected to recover.

The two men got into the house by leaning a ladder against a rear window. Nothing was stolen.

NORWOOD GUARD DEAD; SHOT BY COMPANION

Wesley Cross, on Duty Near Pittsburgh, Killed by Accidental Discharge

PITTSBURGH, June 11.—Private Wesley Cross, 18 years old, of Norwood, Pa., a member of Company I, Third Pennsylvania Infantry, on guard duty in this section, died at the Southside Hospital here at 11:25 o'clock last night. Shock, as the result of a gunshot wound in the chest, caused the death of the infantryman.

Cross was in camp at Willow Grove, near here, with other infantrymen, guarding railroads in that vicinity and the accident which cost his life occurred May 22.

The discharge of a rifle in the hands of another guard, his identity unknown, sent a ball through Cross's leg. Cross was removed to the hospital soon after the accident, but, being considerable blood being reaching there, he suffered severe shock, from which he failed to recover.

Deputy Coroner John P. Black, unable to learn the identity of the guardman whose rifle was discharged, summoned Lieutenant Charles Pierce, of Company I, and instructed him to mail a report of the accident to the coroner.

Cross is the second member of the Third Infantry in this section to die from accidental wounding within the last forty-eight hours.

NORTHCLIFFE ARRIVES AS AGENT OF BRITAIN

Here to Co-ordinate Work of Allies in War—Praises Balfour

NEW YORK, June 11.—Lord Northcliffe, noted British publicist and publisher, arrived at an American port today ready to take up his work as head of the British war mission in this country.

In a statement issued upon his arrival Northcliffe said:

"The war Cabinet has designated me head of the British war mission to the United States, and I have been instructed to try to co-ordinate the work of the various admirable British organizations already established here. We are charged with the task of supplying our war and other needs. Until I present my credentials at Washington it is impossible for me to make any further statement."

"I can, however, express my very great pleasure at being again in America, which I have so often visited, and which has many delightful associations and friendships for me."

"Nor is it saying too much when I add that the whole British people have a profound sense of grateful appreciation of the magnificent welcome accorded Mr. Balfour and his associates and the complete success of his mission."

NOOSE FAILS TO CLEAR UP KEET KIDNAPPING

Iron Nerve of Suspect, Thrice Hanged, Convinces Mob of Innocence

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 11.—With Claud Pierrel and Clotus Adams safe—supposedly in the jail at Kansas City—and Taylor Adams, his wife Alice and son Maxie, and Sam McClinton in the jail here, the mystery surrounding the death of little Lloyd Keet remains as dark as ever today.

Springfield's vigilantes failed in their mission early Sunday morning. The lynching of the Missouri mob clamored for did not materialize and the confession that the grim men sought to wring from the lips of Pierrel was not forthcoming.

Three times they strung the smiling suspect to an oak tree outside of Stockton and twice he came down with the same smile on his lips.

"You're going to kill me, anyway, so you might as well have it over with," he said. "They tightened the rope the third time."

Any final messages he asked the leader of the mob as he slipped Pierrel in the face.

"Just tell the old folks back in Springfield that their boy knew nothing about the Keet baby," he answered, the smile still playing around his lips.

The rope tightened and far as the prisoner was concerned he had "shed" game. When they cut him down he was unconscious, but revived.

Clotus Adams—a spectator of the ordeal—was subjected to completely but his nerve. Striking his forehead, he pleaded with the mob for mercy.

The failure to force a statement from Pierrel had dampened the ardor of the

The other army is composed of troops loyal to the Government. Complications with foreign countries over the withholding of railway revenues are threatened.

He was tickled to death!

Quarter of six when he breezed in at the door—said hurriedly to the first man he met—

"What time do you close? Six? Think I can get a Suit before then? Been rushed to death on this Liberty Loan proposition—and won't have a minute tomorrow, either!"

And at closing time, he was surveying himself in a Suit that he said was a peach for good looks!

"You know," he continued, "I was told you could do the trick! Wasn't so sure about it in my own mind, though, because, as you see, I'm not exactly a show model! But you've done it, and I'm tickled to death!"

He was a forty "short stout"—but a cinch for Perry's, when it came to making him look ten to fifteen pounds lighter because of right lines in his suit of clothes!
