

fuse to report out the bill of its own accord and an effort should be made to force out the bill by discharging the committee. The entire statement of the Speaker, it was said, was hased upon the assumption that the committee would decline to report back the bill. Chairman Isadore Stern, who handed the bill to Max Aron just be-fore the latter carried it to this city, has given assurances, however, that his com-mittee will report the bill favorably. There are two ways in which a bill may

There are two ways in which a bill may be brought out of committee, it was ex-plained today. The first is to report the bill on the floor of the House. This can be done with the Salus bill on Monday night and the bill can then be called up imme-diately for first reading, provided no one offers objections and there is unanimous consent to the bill's taking priority over other measures technically ahead of it on the calendar.

ONE MAN CAN BEAT IT

An objection from a single member of the House is sufficient to keep the bill in complace in the calendar. And if such an objection is offered to the Salus bill its place will be so far down the calendar that any action upon it before the Legislature adjourns on moon Thursday will be im-normible possible.

The second way by which a bill may be brought out of committee is to pass a mo-tion to discharge the committee from further consideration of the bill, whereupon the bill automatically comes before the House. It was of this method that Speaker Baldwin was talking when he said he would be compelled to rule out of order any such motion as affecting the Salus bill.

The Speaker's point was that a bill must be The Speaker's point was that a bill must be in a committee ten days before a motion to discharge the committee from further con-sideration of it will be in order. The falue bill went into the House committee on Thursday last, June 21. According to the Speaker, a motion to discharge the com-mittee will not be in order before July 1. But four days earlier, June 28, the Legis-lature will have adjourned. Consequently. lature will have adjourned. Consequently, by that method, the bill will still be in comof 1917 has gone into history.
