SINCEREST FLATTERY RULES PHOTOPLAYERS

House Peters, Olive Thomas and June Caprice Compliment Fellow Actors

SHOW PERSHING FILMS

By the Photoplay Editor STANLEY—"The Heir of the Ages," Pallas-Paramount, with house Peters and Nina Byron, Stors by William Addison Letters' Directed by Edward J. LeSaint, Photographed by Allen Davey.

David W. Griffith, who starts everything n the movies and then drops it just as his competito.s' are waking up to the fact of its discovery, made a then-remarkable onereel affair, "Man's Genesia," in 1911 or 1912. It pertrayed the conflict of primeval men, and was so popular that he later directed a two-part sequel, "Brute Force," in which people of the stone age were reincarnated in the twentieth century. A perfect ocean of imitations followed, and the craze leaped, until Pallas, evidently wanting picturesque material, released "The Heir of the Âges". Those who thrilled at Bobbie Harron, Wilfred Lucas and Mac Marsh in the Griffith film will probably thrill at House Peters. Eugene Pallette and Nina Byron in this one. It's very much the same sort of yarn, with, of course, more footage and variety of lighting than were prevalent in 1912. The author disdains suspense. His characters in the primitive prologue have experiences that are repeated almost without change in the play perfect ocean of imitations followed, and proper almost without change in the play proper. Mr. Peters is an actor of maniy dignity and unaffected reserve power. But he is not very vivid here. Miss Byron, an attractive girl, whom one doesn't seem to have seen before shows fine promise. The leaders are well written, without superfluous flowers of speech.

ARCADIA—"Madeap Madee," Kay-Ree-Triangle, with Olive Thomas and Charles Gunn, Story by R. Cerli Smith. Directed by Raymond West. Photographed by Charles Stumar. Supervised by Thomas H. Ince.

Supervised by Thomas H. Ince.

When you see the word "madcap" or "hoyden" or "hussy" or "vixen" in a title, you know just what to expect—midnight "feeds" in girls finishing schools; sweet young things in pajamas; venerable teachers atruck on the head with dumbbells; coquettish chatter. It a nil in "Madcap Mindra." The only neverty is the presence of Olive Thomas, whose fame as an artists.

model and member of the merry-merry seems to have carried her into dramatic depths over her head. Miss Thomas is vivacious and pretty in a cornflower sort of way. Neither the elegance of the lily nor the rich beauty of the rose is hers. When she has learned not to grimnes nor to look at the camera, she will be very piquant, indeed. Her vehicle is light enough to please a lot of people these hot days, though its comic possibilities aren't many. To be sure, the good line lighting and camera work and the "Three Twins" twist that has been given the script are highwater marks.

PALACE... "Patsy," Fex. with June Caprice and Bases Builted, Story by Joseph F. Poland. Directed by John G. Adolf.

Directed by John G. Agein.

This seems a week of "the sincerest flattory" for other members of their craft by actor folk. House Peters is Wilfrediucasing.
Olive Thomas is upholding the nobly tragic traditions of Billie Burke, but June Caprice's latest imitation of Mary "Rags" Pickford is the faithfulest of the let. Here is no crafty attempt to pawn old goods off for new. The naked ancientness of "Patsy" is only equaled by the quite-covered youthfulness of Patsy. The plot deals with country girl who, after meeting city ladie nuts vanilla on her handkerch of it amilition of their perfumes, big specs on the family good and pity into the heart of he-paw. So he sends her to the city where lives a dissipated but ever so good-at-heart rich young man. No prizen are effected latest imitation of Mary "Rags" Pickford is the faithfulest of the let. Here is no rich young man. No prizes are effered readers who foretell the rest of the story. It will be a popular picture with a good many persons, especially those who still think a fat man sitting in a pan of dough a convulsive sight. The lightings are bright;

the acting hysterical.

speedy things. One of them is the trans-portation to this country of films depicting the arrival of General Pershing at Boulogue and his reception in Paris. These exceed-ingly timely and well-"shot" pictures were xhibited at the Stanley, Arcadia and Palace theatres yesterday. They got a tremendous "hand" at all three
