Referring to Dundee's bout with George Chanty at Shibe Park tomorrow night. Souty Monteith writes from New York:

Johnny is training in the Orange Mountains, N. J., and he is in tip-top condition. He will give Mr. Chaney, of Battipore, the liveliest eighteen minutes that young man sver encountered in his young career. Then we are going to camp on the trail of Mr. Benny Leonard until we get a chance to annex that title he took sway from old man Weish.

Dundee is emblazoned on Champion for the title as Johnny Kilbane or any one.

Four times have Dundee and Leonard boxed and results of their various contests have proved them to be equally matched, to far as limited bouts are converned. All per far as innied bouts are construct year no-decision matches, but the popular terdict in two bouts favored Leonard; one went to Dundee by a very wide margin, and their last meeting, which was staged in Philadelphia last season, ended with mether having the better of six sizzling, sensational sessions. Leonard and Pundee are boxers of two different and entirely distinct types. While Leonard is a remarkable boxer with a punch, which he has proved to be of sleep-producing powers. Dundee is a wonderfully producing powers, binaces is a wonterfully clever exponent with a wallop that couldn't knock a man's hat off. Nevertheless, Dun-des keeps flighting so furiously and punch-ing so incessantly that it keeps the other fellow on the jump almost continually; thus the opposition seldom can get set to home a telling punch.

Both Quick Thinkers

Both Leonard and Dundee are quick Both Leonard and Dundee are quick-thinking boxers, hence their apparent nerv-cueness when in action. Benny boxes in a businesslike way; he shows the specta-tors that he makes use of his gray mat-ter. Often Leonard has been set for a punch and when it appears the wallop punch and when it appears the wallop would go astray Benny can be seen shaking his head, pull back the blow and begin fenting for another opening.

Dundee, on the other hand, varies his attack. At one stage of the battle he will give a good imitation of a boxer who doesn't possess any science; he keeps tearing in with lowered head, and punches away with both hands. Then when the other fellow becomes dangerous no faster, shiftler, more scientific boxer ever hops around in the scientific boxer ever hops around in the twenty-four-foot battlefield than the same little Dundee. "As long as I was working on a salary Jones and Curley got their percentage on my earnings." Willard wrote, "but the war and had weather hurt the show business and I received notice that my contract was to be canceled. That would leave me out in the cold, so I bought the circus.

"As owner of the show and not an employe, I could not see where Jones and Curley should be entitled to any part of the gross receipts. So I discharged them" Willard confided that he weighed in the neighborhood of 260 pounds, which is about thirty pounds above his usual fighting weight, but that with a little training he would be able to defend his honors in a twenty-round contest.

"It isn't true that I have refused to box either Carl Morris or Fred Fulton." Willard's letter continued. "Why should I bar them if the public wants me to meet either of them? It is true that I do not like Morris, but that doesn't mean that he's barred."

At one time it appeared that McGovern would give Borrell a trimming as stylish as the tights he wore, but the downtown champion did some very effective work in the later rounds, yet McGovern's margin of victory was evident. Billy Maxwell, of Leiperville, attempting a come-hack, faced Jack Brady in the semi-windup and won by a shade. The shade was on Brady's body, conored a giorious and striking red by left and right handed smacks delivered by Maxwell.

Brady was too corpulent to hope for as much as an even break with the shifty Maxwell, who had little difficulty in connecting his lumbering opponent's leads with swishing lefts and right hooks that carried the steam of an Alexander curve.

The preliminaries gave Muggsy Taylor listing of practice in making change. Buggsy had to count out no fewer than three boys in his supporting bouts. Johnny Smith catapulted to Whitey Holmes in the afth; Reddy Beil didn't last so long against Reddy Welsh, going out in the third, while Knockout Siggle, may his tribe decrease, captured the booby prize. Tommy Sharkey put him away in the opening round.

The big Kansan has amassed a fortune since he became champion. It is said that he has between $400,000 and $500,000 planted away in Chicago banks.

REFORM RULES DUE IN COLLEGIATE SPORTS NEXT YEAR, OWING TO WAR

New Regulations Will Be Necessary When Athletics Are Resumed-May Prove Revival in Competition for Rah-Rah Boys

WHILE college athletics are expected to universities next autumn, it is generally conceded that prevailing conditions will be vastly different from those governing sport at these institutions in recent years.

To some extent new regulations will be necessary, and a number of close followers of varsity athletics are of the opinion that the time is opportune for certain reforms in both the spirit and play of the game.

This belief has been voiced in several localities, and in some cases where small house of a general revival of intercollegiate sport is held out for the next few months. An editorial in the Harvard Alumnt Bulletin touches upon this point in a manner which may be said to be typical of other leading institutions in the East.

In part it is as follows: t these institutions in recent years.
