CHANEY AND DUNDEE BOUT SAVED FOR TONIGHT AT SHIBE GROUNDS WHEN GUNNISS OUTTALKS HARRIS

Baltimore Knockerout Was to Have Boxed Rocky Kansas Tomorrow Night at Buffalo, But Match Here Is Given Preference

By LOUIS H. JAFFE
GEORGE CHANEY, his knockout wallop carefully tucked in his left sleeve, nervously paced the lobby of the Dingham yesterday afternoon looking like a guy who had been just in time to miss the last train.

Harris vs. Gunniss
An interesting little scene was enacted in the Dingham all the while Chaney, nervous and his left arm itching, paced the lobby and his right arm itching, paced the lobby.

Harris Weakened
As both Harris and Gunniss had splendid arguments, and knew their lines well, the spectators, or rather listeners, including Jake Freedman, Phil Glassman, Fred Sears, Colonel Morse, Willie McGuigan, Joe Connel and others, enjoyed a fine debate.

Evening Ledger Decisions
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Johnny Griffith stopped early tonight, and he decided to spend the night—and nothing else—before his own hearth.

Both Title Seekers
Also, Dundee and Chaney are two dangerous contenders for the crown that none admires the well-combed locks of Benny Leonard.

asset to any club. Everybody knows he is a wonderful player and his aggressiveness keeps the other members on the team constantly on their toes.

In 1903, he remained with that team, which won four National League and two world's championships, until 1913, when Charles Murphy dismissed him. This was considered so unfair that Murphy was forced to retire from baseball.

BASEBALL CLUBS ONLY KNOWN BY NICKNAMES BY THE FANS

Uniforms in Main Responsible for Pet Names of the Big Clubs—How McGraw Came to Call the White Elephants

EVERY day during the baseball playing season and with more or less frequency at other periods of the year the major league clubs, not by their regulation titles but by their official nicknames, are on the tongues of thousands, nay, millions of fans.

Uniforms Largely Responsible
Now there comes a query concerning the origin of the various nicknames. On the face of it, it is obvious why certain clubs have acquired a distinctive name apart from that one appearing in the official formal records of the league wherein they represent a big city.

How the Braves Were Named
There are the Braves. Their name is with them to stay because they made it stick after it had been fastened on them by their owner, Jim Gaffney.

McGraw and White Elephants
In the case of the Athletics the tale carries interest. It appears that in the earlier days of the American League John J. McGraw, of the Giants, made the characteristic remark that Connie Mack had a white elephant on his hands in the Philadelphia club.
