

LEARNING TO LAUNCH AND HANDLE LIFEBOATS
Photo by Kadel & Herbert.
This is one of the most important elements in the course of instruction that is making officers for the great American merchant marine now being built. Captain Robert Huntington, of the Seaman's Institute, is in charge.

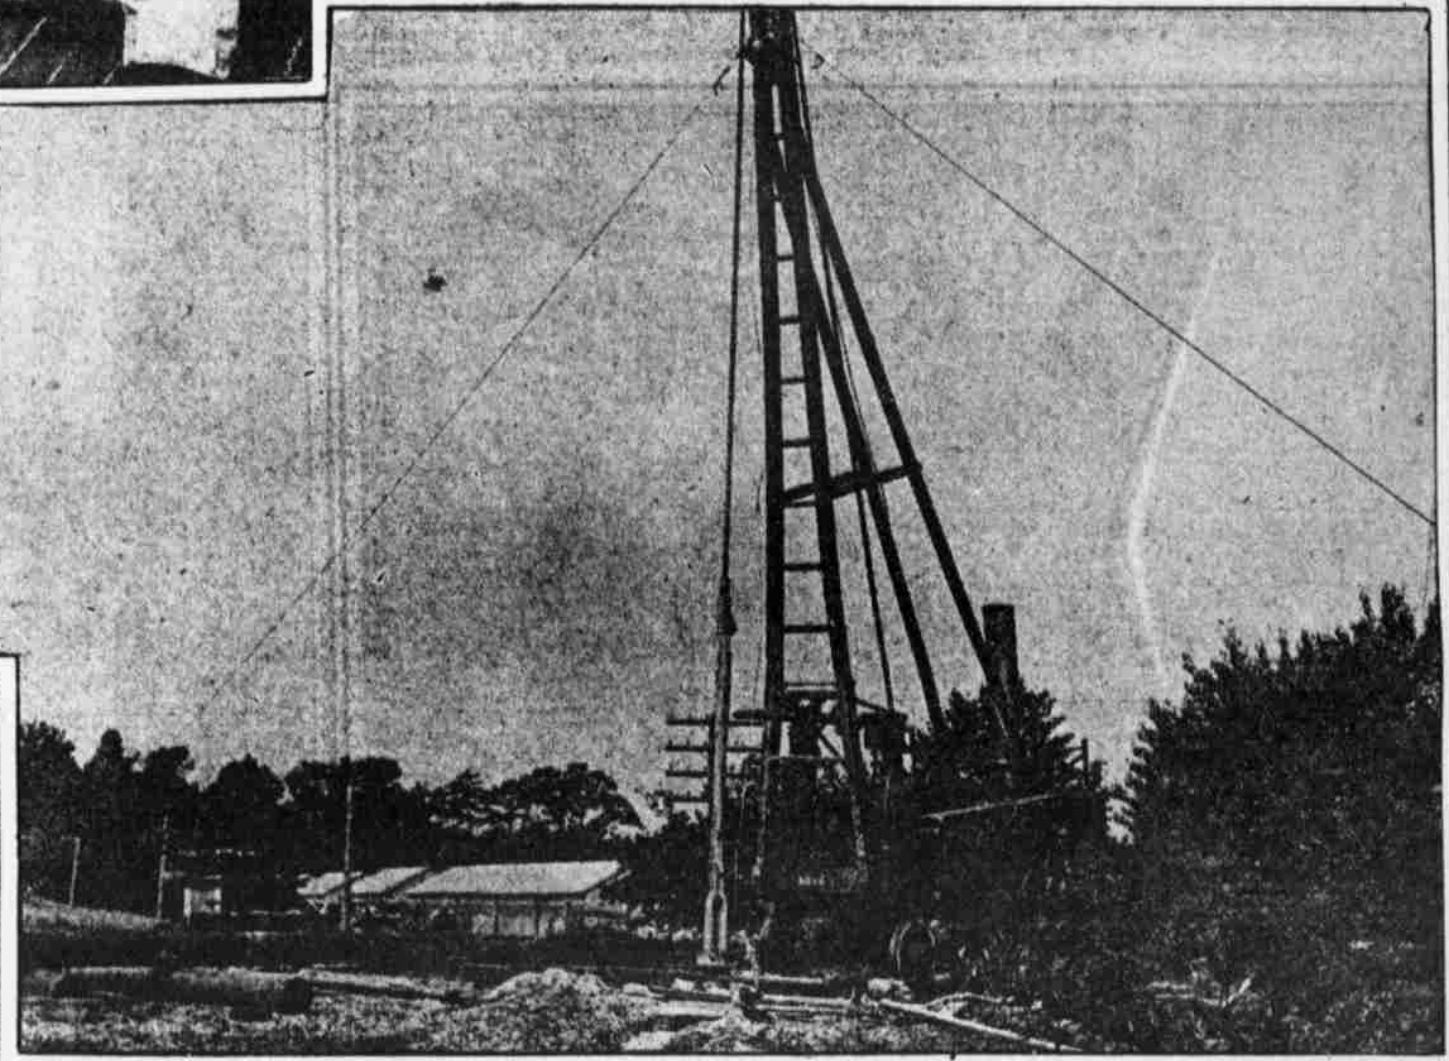

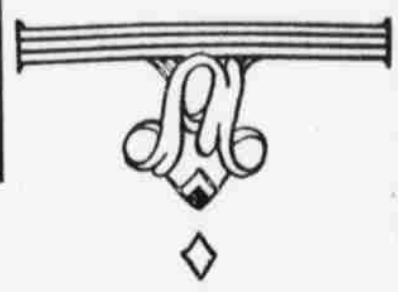

TAKING HER COURSE BY THE SEXTANT
Photo by Kadel & Herbert.
Captain Robert Huntington is instructing a future commander of the American merchant marine in the mysteries of navigation.

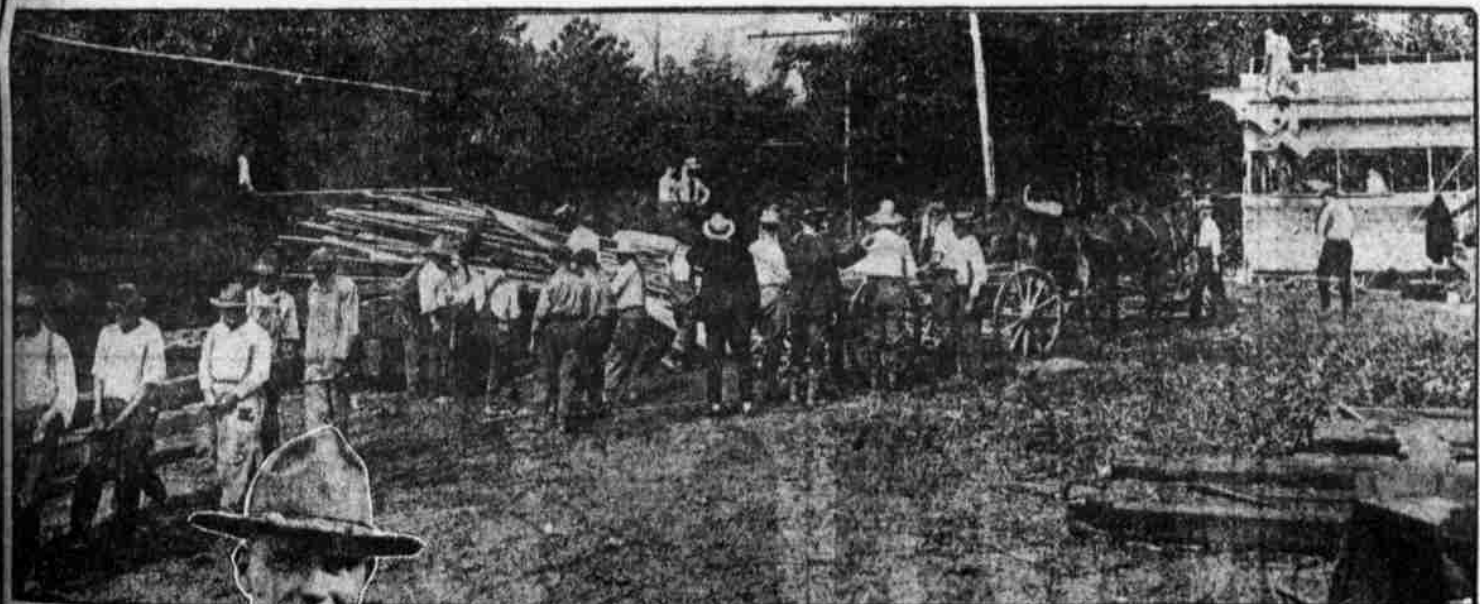

ADMINISTERING FIRST AID ON THE BATTLEFIELD
Herman Torchenky and Miss Rose Goldberg, of Snellenburg Red Cross Unit No. 104, demonstrate how assistance is rendered to wounded soldiers by the angels of mercy.

PREPARING CAMP FOR PHILADELPHIA GUARDSMEN
Copyright, International Film Service.
Army engineers building a road through the woods to the cantonment at Admiral, Md., where Pennsylvania troops will be quartered.

MAKING A MILITARY CITY OUT OF AN UNCULTIVATED WASTE
Copyright, International Film Service.
The Federal cantonment at Admiral, Md., is being built with wonderful rapidity under the direction of army engineers for occupancy by guardsmen from Pennsylvania and adjacent States. At left lumber is being unloaded for barracks. Above a well for the water supply of the camp is being drilled.

SPEAKER'S SON AT ARMY POST
Among the candidates for officers' commissions at Fort Myer, Va., Bennett Clark, whose father is the famous Missouri Congressman, is conspicuous.

COLLEGE BOYS PREPARE FOR WAR DUTIES AT ALLENTOWN CAMP
Copyright, International Film Service.
Among the most active of the many units drawn from American institutions of learning now in training for duty at the front is that of Fordham University, New York. It is one of the largest in number and is second to none in the interest displayed by its members in the requirements of their new service.