Celebration of Bastille Day Great Event—Various Other Things Are Also Discussed by Nancy Wynne

VIVE LA FRANCE! For today, with all pomp and splendor, we are celebrating the great French national holiday. As you know, the parade and ceremonies started early this morning, and wasn't the Jeanne d'Arc feature wonderful?

MISS ETHEL HUHN Miss Huhn and her father, Mr. George A. Huhn, are at Narragansett Pier for the summer. Miss Agnes Brockie left this week to visit them.

ALL of us are interested in the marriage of Suzanne White today in Baltimore. Suzanne has visited so much in this city it would seem as if she almost belonged here. She is an ardent tennis player and has taken part in the international tennis bouts at the Philadelphia Cricket Club in St. Martins for several seasons. She very often stays with Dorothy Disston, and has visited a number of other girls in the Quaker City.

The lucky man was Edward Whitman, another case of "change of name but not of letter," but who pays attention to these little superstitions these days? Becky White was Suzanne's maid of honor. The wedding was very small and took place in St. Thomas's Church at Garrison Forest, just outside of Baltimore. The reception, also small, was held at the Knoll, the White's place at Garrison-in-the-Valley, about fifty persons being present.

THE concert given last night at the Philadelphia Navy Yard was some success, believe me. Mrs. Phillips Jenkins and her chorus of fifty voices and soloists, members of her school of singing, gave it with Wasell Lips conducting the choruses and Vandalla Hissey playing the accompaniments.

This was no ordinary amateur performance, for the singers are very talented, and it was certainly good of them to come from the seashore and other summer homes, as many of them did, to give of their time and talent to cheer the boys at the navy yard. The program was quite long, so there were no encores, and after the singing there was general dancing and refreshments for the ladies and lasses who contributed to the evening's pleasure.

The program opened with Mrs. Jenkins's chorus, "Keep the Home Fire Burning," by Novello. Then Eva Cherry sang the cutest song, "If No One Ever Loves Me," by Lehmann, and every one present felt tempted to prowl at once. Sara Murphy sang "The Swallows," and Mary Clark and Phyllis Munsey gave Hawthorne's "Whispering Hope" in a duet.

Lorraine Stahl sang a dainty thing called "Carmeline," by Haley, and Miss Hissey played the waltz from "Romeo and Juliet" and "Philosophy."

Bessie Phillips appeared in two songs, "Until" and "Tommy, Lad," and a delightful quartet, "There's a Long, Long Trail," was rendered by Margaret Wilson, Emma Chantry, Vandalla Hissey and Josephine Rock.

Of course, there was a selection from "Madama Butterfly." No concert is complete these days without a bit of Puccini, and Kathryn McGinley sang "One Fine Day," from that opera, and Tosti's "Good-bye."

A trio which called forth much applause was "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall," which was sung by Elizabeth Devereaux, Carrie Johnston and Ann Hornback.

headquarters was told that the only place open then was that of cook. So he said he would be the cook. And, bless you, they took him.

Well, the first two days all went well, for he served all the canned things he could lay his hands on. The third day, however, he found he must buy something, so he ordered roast beef. In the meantime his mother had sent him a cook book, and that night when all hands had turned in but those who were supposed to remain on watch, a light was discovered in Mr. Cook's bunk. Inquiring officers discovered Cookie flat on his back studying the cooking of beef and repeating over and over again in a fitful sleep: "Separate the eggs. Separate the eggs. Separate the eggs, separate every fifteen minutes." Suffice it to say, Cookie and his cook book returned to mamma forthwith, and he will have to get another job, minus his chum—if he wants to go to war.

Another boy applied for a job in a camp and was told there were several open. But as the cook's place paid the most and he needed the money, he chose that.

The result was frightful. Even the hardest spoke of the awful food. Of course, the authorities found it out, and the cook lost his job also. A few days later several of the men and the erstwhile cook were sent to another camp. One of them met his father on the train and, of course, introduced him to all his pals. They talked of camp life and, suddenly, to the horror of the assembled crowd, father remarked: "Well, you must have had a time when that fellow did the awful cooking!" Tablant said as you will imagine, and then Cookie spoke up and said: "Well, I suppose it was awful, but I needed the money."

Shot and shell are, therefore, not all our boys have to contend with in this hour of suffering and war.

MR. AND MRS. JOSE EMILIO SALAZAR, or perhaps more correctly Senor and Senora Salazar, of Havana, Cuba, have been visiting here, and left on Thursday for New York. This fact, of course, means nothing to your young mind, does it? But wait till I tell you who they are, and then it will mean much.

Mr. Salazar was Eulalia Laine and is a niece of Mrs. Santa Maria, of Ardmore, and a cousin of the attractive Elena, Alberto, Oscar and all the other Santa Marias. Her grandmother was a Garschee, of that well-known old family of this city and St. Louis, and they are related to the Keatings, Norrises and other prominent families of Philadelphia.

The Salazars were married just three weeks ago in Havana and came to the States on their wedding trip. Mr. Salazar is charmingly pretty and vivacious. It is a pity they could not stay longer, but they were obliged to go on.

The name of Laine is familiar to many of us who remember the late Mrs. Dana Laine, who was first Mrs. Boulton Dixon and who married Mrs. Salazar's uncle, Doctor Laine. She died some years ago and left one little daughter, who spent last winter with her half sister, Mrs. Morris Stroud, Jr., of Villanova.

THE middle of July has arrived and with it the real beginning of the summer. After tomorrow things will surely die a natural, peaceful death here, and go bounding into life elsewhere. The Narragansett Philadelphia who entertained today was Mrs. John R. Feil, who gave a delightful luncheon. Mrs. John R. Drexel, who is still thought of as a Philadelphia, though she lives now in New York, gave a luncheon for fourteen guests at her villa in Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Page have chosen the middle of July for the beginning of their summer away, and are going with their daughters, Edith and Evelyn, to Nova Scotia for a month, where they will visit Mrs. Page's mother, Mrs. James Cox, at Lower Arisley. Evelyn Page is of next year's debutantes.

teria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Dieterle, of 4403 North Fifth street, to Mr. Harry Stokes, took place this afternoon at the home of the officiating clergyman, the Rev. Harry Myers, of the Pilgrim Church, Marlborough and Belgrade streets, and was followed by a reception for the families of the bridegroom and bride at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's father gave her in marriage, and her sister, Miss Louise Dieterle, was bridesmaid. Mr. Charles Kelley was the bridegroom's best man. Mr. Stokes and his bride will spend some time at the Delaware Water Gap and will be at home after August 1 in Olney.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Mary Maher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Maher, of 2201 North Twenty-eighth street, and Mr. Bernard McKenna, which was solemnized with nuptial mass, on Thursday morning in St. Columba's Roman Catholic Church, Twenty-third street and Lehigh avenue, with the Rev. James Guiley officiating. Mr. Maher gave his daughter in marriage and her only attendant, Miss Margaret Monahan. Mr. McKenna had for best man Mr. John Carr. The service was followed by a breakfast at the home of the bride's parents. The bridegroom and bride left for a trip to Niagara Falls and Canada. They will be at home after August 15, at 2201 North Twenty-eighth street.

FEW W. PHILADELPHIANS TO GO AWAY FOR SUMMER

Not so many people as usual have gone away from West Philadelphia this year, but lately a few more blinds have been drawn, and a few more boardings put up. Mrs. Mortimore and their two daughters, Miss Dorothy Mortimore and Miss Katherine Mortimore, of 409 South Forty-second street, have gone to Galen Hall, Westmoreland, and after two weeks will go to Eggenstein, Mrs. Daniel Webster, of 5225 Catharine street, is visiting her father, Mr. Charles T. Bowers, at his cottage in Benmar, N. J. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jenkins, of 5112 Hazel avenue, are visiting in Maryland. Mrs. John B. Fieldner, of Gainer road and Wynnedale avenue, is visiting her grandparents in Lancaster.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bizard and Miss Natalie Bizard are spending the week-end at the Chalfonte Hotel in Cape May, having just returned from Germantown. Miss Jean Spess is with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Dillenbeck, accompanied by Miss Alice Dillenbeck and Miss Genevieve Dillenbeck, are occupying their beach-front cottage in Ocean City and have as their guest Miss Alda C. Buehler.

Miss Eleanor Prosser, of Germantown, is spending several weeks as the guest of Miss L. Robinson in Old Point Comfort.

Mr. John Svensson, of West Philadelphia, announces the marriage of his daughter, Miss Gertrude Alma Svensson, to Mr. George S. Shimer, Jr., of Milton, on June 22, in New York.

Mrs. N. H. Bloom celebrated her nineteenth birthday yesterday at the home of her mother-in-law, Mrs. F. S. Bloom, at 1515 North Thirty-third street.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Sondberg, of 4130 Leidy avenue, announce the betrothal of their daughter, Miss Marion Sondberg, to Mr. Herman Freedman, of this city.

CITY EMPLOYEES TO AID IN WARTORN POLAND

Misses Anna Haines and Nancy Babb Given Leave of Absence

The Misses Anna J. Haines and Nancy J. Babb, tenement house inspectors in the Bureau of Health, are on their way to Russia to aid in the work of reclaiming war-torn towns in Poland.

They have been granted a leave of absence of fifteen months without pay. Both young women have been engaged in preventing tenement house abuses and in compelling owners to comply with sanitary and building laws. Both are members of the Society of Friends and are opposed to warfare.

Miss Babb, who has been in the city employ for the last four years, resides at 5900 Washington avenue and Miss Haines's home is at 2322 Green street. They will be succeeded in the city service by Miss Elsie H. Speakman, 2219 South Broad street, and George J. Shindler, 3221 West Berks street.

MRS. ERNEST SOPP Mrs. Sopp will be remembered as Miss Dora Wagner. Her marriage took place on June 11.

LIFE'S TRIALS

THE DAY OF WRATH

A STORY OF 1914 By Louis Tracy

CHAPTER XI.—(Continued) "You must have been a governess-companion in some German family of position. I can foresee a trying future. I must brush up my dates, or lose caste forever. Isn't there a dorgelish beginning: 'A fifty-five and fifty-four?'"

"I'll be glad when we're in the open country again, mademoiselle," he said. "I don't like this forest. One can't guess what's hidden in the trees. I'm sure you've missed the quizzical and affectionate glance which Irene darted at him. She was still smiling when next he caught her eye.

"What is it now?" he asked. "I was thinking how difficult it is to see a wood for trees," she replied. Maertz took her literally.

"I'll be glad when we're in the open country again, mademoiselle," he said. "I don't like this forest. One can't guess what's hidden in the trees. I'm sure you've missed the quizzical and affectionate glance which Irene darted at him. She was still smiling when next he caught her eye.

"You've got your hands full with the girl, Franz," said one. "What's she like?" bawled another. "I can only see a pair of slim ankles and a dirty face."

"That's all you will see, George," said Franz, believing that a scoured Belgian peasant had merely holed in his eyes. "This little bit is mine by the laws of war. Here you," he added, surveying Dalroy quite amicably, "be off to your aunt! You'll probably be shot in Oosterzeele, but that's your affair, not mine."

"You don't know my aunt," said Dalroy. "I'd sooner face a regiment of soldiers than stand her tongue if I go home without my nose!"

"He hopes to please this swaggering scoundrel by a display of good humor he failed lamentably. An ugly glint shone in the man's eyes, and he handled the soldier with a pair of slant ankles and a dirty face."

"To hell with you and your aunt!" he snarled. "Perhaps you don't know it, you Flemish fool, but you're a German now and obey my orders. Get after your pal before he catches three. It'll put daylight through you! One, two—"

"The hapless Irene committed a bold and fatal error, though it was pardonable in the face of the dire dilemma, since the next moment might see her ruthlessly murdered. To lump all German soldiers into one category was a bad mistake. It was far wiser to change her accent from the crude speech of the provinces of Liege to the high-sounding periods of Berlin society."

"The dare you threaten unoffending peace in this way?" she aimed at Maertz. "I demand that you send for an officer, and I ask the other men of your regiment to leave I cannot have done nothing whatever to warrant your behavior."

SHORE MAYOR REPEATS

Reannounces Strict Regulations to Govern Bathing and Board Walking

SLIGHT LAXITY OF LATE

Women Must Not Hereafter Appear in the Ocean Unless Clad in Hosiery

ATLANTIC CITY, July 14. Mayor Bacharach did not leave the bathing board reading magazine to go to what his attitude would be regarding the propriety of the strand this summer, now that he has assumed the duties of Director of Public Safety. So, who will lead the Atlantic City Battery of Field Artillery.

All of the strict rules laid down by Director Bacharach regarding bathing and board walking were strictly enforced, and the Mayor hinted he might make a few more rules of his own if he deems it advisable. So there is to be no retreating of the edict forbidding women to bathe in the ocean without their hosiery.

The present administration was elected to office on the strength of its propriety program, as opposed to former Mayor Middle, who often declared it was his ambition to make of this city-by-the-sea a second Monte Carlo.

The first thing the Mayor did today after assuming his added burdens as head of the police and the beach force was to call in the heads of the police department and announce to them his ideas on the proper policing of the city.

He directed an absolute clean-up of the Boardwalk of all forms of questionable reputations, gamblers and generally disreputable characters. Gambling was ordered stopped and it was instructed that cafes and saloons should not be conducted in a manner not displeasing to neighbors or the public in general. Mayor Bacharach is not starting anything new. His instructions were in keeping with the administration policy, but there has been some laxity of late, he affirmed, because Director Sooy had to give much of his time to getting recruits for his command, which will be known as the 1st Regiment Field Artillery, National Guard of New Jersey. Governor Edge was present to see the first company of volunteers from his home city mustered into service. The officers are: Captain, W. Frank Sooy; first lieutenant, Harry R. Columbus and Hiram Steelman; second lieutenant, Charles E. H. Schaefer; sergeant, Waldron McEnroe. The company will go into training camp at Sea Girt, July 25.

Pretty girls in fluffy white frocks, wearing the tricolor of France and armed with basketfuls of fragrant summer blooms which they sold for the benefit of the French War Relief Fund, added a picturesque note to the walk yesterday. Those especially interested in the French cause were George A. Zinn, Mrs. Clarence Busch, Mrs. James Forney, Mrs. Haviland Clot, Miss Eleanor Dickey, Mrs. C. Clothier Jones, Miss Helen Lawson, Mrs. Isaac Schlichter, Mrs. William Ellison, Miss Annetta Lynch, Mrs. Samuel A. McDougal will entertain at luncheon followed by bridge at the Marlborough-Blenheim on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Parsons are entertaining at their cottage at Belmont avenue, south, Mr. and Mrs. George Davis and Miss Eleanor Davis, who motored from Moorestown.

Mrs. Ralph Dalbey, of Youngstown, Ohio, is visiting her mother, Mrs. John Sinnott, at her cottage, 19 Connecticut avenue, south. Doctor Dalbey will join Mrs. Dalbey in four months.

Miss Clara Robinson will entertain at bridge next Friday afternoon at her cottage, Jackson and Ventnor avenues.

Mr. and Mrs. James Brown Potter are at the Traymore for a week.

Bathing knitters bees are now the latest diversion. After spending an hour or more plying the needles in making soldier comforts, the members enjoy a plunge in the surf and luncheon is served on the strand. Miss Ethel Maddox entertained a knitting bee yesterday for Miss Frances Miller, Miss Emily Dunlop, Miss Edith Flynn, Miss Marie Blake, Miss Hattie Eustis, Miss Marion O'Keefe, Miss Sarah Hunter, Miss Edith St. Claire, Miss Anna Sheeley and Miss Claire Young.

MORE NELLY'S ALLEYS

Garbage Men in Widely Separated Parts of City Neglect Their Duty

ONE GETS FIVE-CENT TIP

Though Not a College Graduate, He Understod Financial Inducement

Ed Vane "fired" the screamer of the street-cleaning gang who neglected Nelly's Alley. The Street Cleaning Bureau fined Ed Vane $4 for the neglect. The writers of the following letters want to know who is to be fired and who is to be fined for the neglect and indifference charged in these complaints:

To me have a Nelly's Alley in regard to removal of garbage. The garbage men do not care to come west of Oakley street, he does it and we have to bury our own garbage. EDWIN LEE, 845 East Princeton street, Lawndale.

A downtown man wrote: I am a reader of your paper. I noted you attend to complaints of side alleys in unsanitary conditions. There is such an alley on Fourth street between Dair and Wolf, that has not been cleaned for at least three weeks. I should like to see you do it. Hoping to receive your cooperation in this matter, I am S. S. DODD street.

A woman wrote: Evening Ledger: After reading your invitation to report insanitary conditions in alleys, I have had to port one in the block of Gratz street above Diamond. There is a blind alley from the main one, in back of 2143 Gratz street, and there has been garbage there for nearly two weeks. I should like to see you do it. Hoping to receive your attention you will greatly oblige. A NEIGHBOR, 2142 North Gratz street, Phila.

F. G. Bush, 5023 Springfield avenue, West Philadelphia, phoned that no city collector ever visits his block and that private collectors, some when they want to. Here is another letter: Gentlemen: Reading your valuable paper of Nelly's Alley, would like you to look at Watts street, between Cumberland and Boston avenue. It is used for a dump. The alley has been there since the first street was laid out. The alley is a private street, but I see no reason why it should not be cleaned. I should like to see you do it. Hoping to receive your attention you will greatly oblige. A TENANT.

Have a Nelly's Alley in our neighborhood—South Allegheny. The garbage men do not care to go after it. Water in the cellar, 2844 After street. S. P. MONTIEN.

WOODSIDE'S POPULARITY CONTINUES UNABATED

With nearly all of the old attractions which were destroyed in the fire rebuilt or replaced with new amusements, Woodside Park is again drawing big summer crowds. The famous Imperial Band, under the leadership of Giuseppe Rodio, which has been at the park two weeks, will continue to be the principal musical attraction during the coming week. Miss Edith M. Ellison, the soprano, will also remain with the band next week. She will receive a selection of popular numbers by request of patrons of the park, and instrumental solos will be another feature of the band's program.

Next Friday night will mark the opening of the regular weekly fireworks display, which has become a Woodside institution. The displays will be held each Friday night until the end of the season.
