

A PAGE OF PICTURES DEVOTED TO THRILLING AND NOTEWORTHY HAPPENINGS OF THE WAR

Photo from Pictorial Press
"The soldier with a friendly smile" might well be another appellation for fighting "Black Jack" Pershing, the respected leader of America's forces in France.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.
A TENSE MOMENT WHEN THE GERMAN TAUBES APPEAR OVERHEAD
Every man associated with the manipulation of this anti-aircraft gun, mounted on a motortruck, is on the alert lest the Teuton airmen escape unharmed in their attempt to make observations over the French lines.

Copyright, American Press Association
WAR, THE GREAT LEVELER
Although a banker and many times a millionaire, Bradley Martin, of New York, is enduring the rigors of trench digging at the Plattsburg encampment.

Copyright, International Film Service.
"SAMMEE" GREET'S A WOUNDED CONFREME IN FRANCE
The two brothers in arms are trying to make themselves understood at the barracks at Reully. Note the poilu and his friend behind are examining with curiosity the American knapsack, which is so much easier to carry than that of the French poilu.

Photo from Pictorial Press
Even during review the eyes of the army remain wide open. Unusual photo of an airplane guarding the heroes of this year's French offensive from an aerial attack while they are on parade behind the battlefield.

Copyright, International Film Service.
A GREAT DEAL IS EXPECTED OF A KING THESE DAYS
King George is cautiously making his way aboard one of the newest and largest of the submarines attached to his Grand Fleet. Since the beginning of the war the British monarch has held these

Photo from International Film Service
ANOTHER TRIBUTE TO THE SATANICAL POWER OF THE U-BOATS
This massive photograph showing a British sailing vessel fast burning before its final plunge following the attack of the U-boats. This is one of three pictures printed in the Berliner Illustrirte Zeitung to soothe the German people of the success of the U-boat war.