NETS DOPE SUSPECTS | CAVALRY GETS ORDERS TO PREPARE TO LEAVE

for Trip to Augusta-Pennsylvania Division to Be 28th

The War Department has ordered the First Squadron, First Pennsylvania Cavalry, to be ready to depart for the training camp at Augusta. Ga., in a few days. Preparations are being made for the movement of troops and equipment. The freight cars on the siding at Thirty-second street and Laucaster avenue are being loaded as rapidly as possible.

The troops comprising the squadron are the First City Troop, commanded by Cap-tain G. P. Thayer; Troop A. Captain Arthur Calahan; Troop D. Captain J. W. Good, and Troop G. Captain Thomas B. Myers. The First Pennsylvania Cavalry is com-manded by Colond J. P. Wood manded by Colonel J. R. Wood.

The Twenty-eighth Division. United States Army, is now the official name of the former Pennsylvania National Guard organizations, according to Major Tyler, of the brigade headquarters, who received word from Washington. This order will not change the status of the Pennsylvania troops to any great extent. The Pennsylva-nia Division will not lose its individuality, because, as it contains every needed tacti-cal unit, the division will be leave to exten-

Assurances have been received that the ments will not be disturbed. Major General Clement will command the division. The three infantry brigades will be commanded respectively by Brigadier General Freder-ick W. Stillwell, Brigadier General Albert Logan and Brigadier General Christophe T. O'Nelli, while Brigadier General Wil-liam G. Price, Jr., will command the artillery unit. Brigadler General Mills, in charge of the division of military affairs, which has ex-ercised supervision over the National Guard of the country, sent each of the general officers a telegram which assured them

That it is easier to guide a horse than their own feet is the experience of Penn-sylvania cavalrymen. All National Guard cavalry units are now executing cavalry drills on foot, and the skilled riders who have no trouble executing maneuvers when nounted find their feet in a hopeless tangle. Things have come to such a pass in the First Regiment, stationed at Thirty-second street and Lancaster avenue, that Captain Arthur Calahan, Troop, A, today took a hand himself. He called Sergeant Godfrey Smith to his assistance and proceeded to intangle the cavalrymen's feet.

Partial success attended his efforts, but the progress was so slow and he found such difficulty in keeping lines straight that he requisitioned a ball of string. This was used in the drilling of two squads together. The end men of the line held the string and each man was required to be touching it at all times. This proved so successful that it will be used more extensively until the men have as good control of their feet as they have of horses.

The men have been handlcapped by inadequate drill grounds. A plot in the rear of the armory is now used. This is only large nough to accommodate a few squads at time. Even then the squads are ally interfering with one another. podies of the troops are taken to Fairmount Park, but the hike to a sultable location is

Pennsylvania Engineers, stationed at Thirty-second street and Lancaster avehad left for Mount Gretna last However, they were all there today, and absolutely denied having gone away to camp. A number of the men are being re accinated, the first one not having "taken."

MAGISTRATE LETS OFF SAILOR WHO CAN BAKE

Navy Yard Officials' Plea Brings Freedom, Less $5 Fine, to "Indispensable" Man

The value of bakers and cooks among "Uncle Sam's" fighting forces was reflected in Magistrate Rooney's court at Fifteenth and Locust streets station today.

Frank Dean, a baker at the navy yard had been held under $600 bail for court on a charge of disorderly conduct and of hav-Squadron Loading Equipment ing committed assault and battery on Policeman Bradley, of the Fifteenth and Locust streets station. Charles Z. Mallett, agent for the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice, testified that the police man had no provocation for the clubbing he gave Dean. The police, however, gave testimony to show that Dean attacked the policeman

After the pros and cons of the case had been heard and Dean had been held, officials at the navy yard appealed strongly to Magistrate Rooney for the release of their baker. He was absolutely indispensable, they explained. He was finally released after he had paid a fine of $5 and received a lecture from the Magistrate.

Policeman Bradley testified that he countered Dean last Saturday night at Thirteenth and Walnut streets. Dean, he said, was intoxicated and was indulging in vile and abusive language. He said he remonstrated with the sailor and tried to have him board a trolley car and return to the navy yard. Dean, he said, struck him on the right cheek.

SAILOR GOES TO HOSPITAL Then Bradley said he swung his club hitting Dean on the head. The blow opened up an ugly gash, which necessitated the sailor's removal to St. Agnes's Hospital, where the wound was patched up. Agent Mallet of the the sailor and could not see where there had been any provocation for the policeman using the club. He said that if Dean had hit the policeman a blow in the face, as the latter had testified, there would have surely been left a mark. There was no such mark on Bradley's face. Mallett also intimated that he believed that the sailor had been maltreated after he was taken to the station

OTHER MARKS ON FACE

"When I saw Dean at the station house after his arrest," he said, "he had marks or his face which I did not notice at the time he was arrested by Policeman Bradley. Dean was very abusive in his language, but could see no real provocation for clubbing

Four civilians who witnessed the arrest of Dean backed up the statement of the Department of Justice agent that they saw no justification for striking the sailor with a club. They are John B. Johnson, 627 South street; David Sullivan, 1625 Vine street; Thomas Ritchie, $20 Poplar street. and Frank Bennett, 1227 Walnut street.

In holding Dean for court Magistrate toney said: "If you fail to show respect for your uniform you cannot expect that anybody else will respect it."

MAYOR'S INDORSEMENT SEEN AS HARMONY STEP

O. K. Put on Sheehan and Kendrick Helps Program of "Fifty-Fifty"

Indorsement by Mayor Smith of Register of Wills Sheehan and Receiver of Taxes Kendrick for re-election is interpreted in political circles as a move for harmony and the first step to carry out the Vare program of a fifty-fifty split on the "row" offices.

Whether his program will be acceptable to the Penrose-McNichol faction has not been made known as yet. Irrespective of how the row offices are arranged, there is certain to be a bitter fight over the election of the Councilmen

The Mayor, in the course of his indorse ment of Sheehan, asserted that the Regis ter was justified in pocketing the huge feeof his office and added that any other mar ould do the rame thing.

The Mayor did not go into the candidacy of Samuel P. Rotan for re-election as Dis-trict Attorney. It is known, however, that the Mayor favors the return of Mr. Rotar a friend of Senator Penrone, along with Kendrick and Sheehan. He believes that the Vares should receive a "little considera-tion" and that they should have the nam-ing of the City Treasurce:

At present the vare are considering Senator Patton, of West Philadelphia, for that place. Considerable speculation is geing on, nevertheless, to the effect that the South Philadelphia leaders may ultimately support Magistrate Thomas F. Watson, Vare leader of Germantown for City Vare leader of Germantown. Treasurer. Senator Vare and the Magis-trate are very close and are holding daily conferences. The Senator was not in the least surprised when told of the Mayor's declaration for harmony.

WAR BRINGS SHORTAGE OF WOMEN LABORERS

Demand for Female Workers to Take Places of Men Results in Serious Condition

A serious shortage of woman labor has been created in Philadelphia by the heavy demand for women and girls to take the places of men who have enlisted or who are ubject to draft.

CHARLES E. SCHOOL

CHARLES E, SCHOOL DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Veteran Editorial Writer and Correspondent-Founder of the Evening Star

Charles E. School, a former editorial writer and war correspondent, who was widely known in newspaper circles, died today at his home, 4655 Locust street, after an iliness of more than two years. He was eventy-six years old.

With him in his last moments were his wife, Carolint McCacrey School, his daugh-ter Caroline and Mrs. Mary E. Lopez, a Mr. School was a man of remarkable fortitude. He was one of the few members of the old school of journalism who kept pace with progress. Advancing years did not in the least mar his originality or initiative. He possessed a pleasing personality and enjoyed aiding others quietly toward the goal of success. Charles E. School was born in the Tenth Ward. Philadelphia, in 1841. He went to the Northwest School and thence to the Central High School, from which he was graduated with the thirty-third class in Winslow.

In 1860 Mr. School joined the editorial staff of John Russell Young of the Press and saw service affeld as war correspondand saw service affeld as war correspond-ent of that journal with the Army of the Potomac while encamped at City Point, Vir-ginia, and also with Admiral Dupont's fleet of ironsides during the engagement between the fleet and the guns of Fort Moul-tric and the land batteries in Charleston Harbor, April 7, 1863, immediately after the battle Mr. School took a dispatch boat for aBltimore, writing up his notes en route and, arriving without delay, gave the 'ress a graphic five-column acco light a day head of that printed by any of the other local papers.

In 1865 Mr. Settonal joined the editorial staff of the Evening Telegraph. On April Star of the Evening Telegraph. On April 2, 1866, in partnership with John Russell Young and three others, he started the Evening Star, which he edited for twenty-two years, making a feature of the "Star Beam" column, which he wrote daily. In 1888 he became associate editor of the Record, originating the daily paragraph on advertising. After ten years with the Record Mr. Scheol, in 1898, ioined the Wannaker advector. in 1898, joined the Wanamaker advertising department as a writer of booklets. In 1900, at the instance of Kodman Wanamaker, he got up the Wanamaker Diary, which thereafter became an annual feature, attaining wide circulation. All news dealing with changes or other activities in the police department will hereafter be given to the newspapers by James H. Lambert, Jr., secretary to Display the supplementary of the process of t of the original Press Club and a life member of the Philadelphia City Institute, Mrs. School, who survives him, was Miss Caro-line McCaffrey, a gifted and popular contralto singer. PROBE CHARGES GIRLS MADE AGAINST SOLDIERS ville girls against three privates of Com-pany F. First Regiment, N. G. P., recently on guard duty at Coatesville, are being carefully investigated, according to Colonel Brown, commander of the regiment. "I can say nothing," said the Colonel, "other than that the investigation will be impartially made. It is now geing on, and we will learn all of the facts. Then it will be easy to determine on the proper course to follow." Other officers of the regiment, while declining to express opinions as to the truth of the charges, made it apparent that they felt the gravity of the charges reflecting feit the gravity of the charges reflecting on the regiment.

First Regiment Officers Investigating Allegations Coming From Coatesville Young Women Charges preferred by three young Coates-
