MISS BROWNE WINS AGAIN FROM MOLLA

California Tennis Star Trounces Miss Bjurstedt in Single Set

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—In a match that was altogether unsatisfactory because it was no brief, Miss Mary K. Browne, of Los Angeles, three times national champion, scored another victory over Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the present holder of the title, on the courts of the Crescent Athletic Club today. Only one set was played, which went to the California girl at 6—3. In the previous matches between these players it has been evidenced that a single set is hardly a measure of their relative ability, and in view of the fact that Miss Bjurstedt was rallying superbly when an overwhelming lead the abrupt ending proved a keen disappointment. It is generally agreed that the women, whose matches have aroused great interest, should have at least one set, for they have engaged in much competition recently that it is believed another grueling encounter, as well as that at Southampton Saturday, would prove too great a tax on their strength, particularly in view of their approaching matches at the national doubles championship tournament, which starts in Boston today.

There was a suggestion in the brief engagement that Miss Bjurstedt is much overrated. She hardly did herself justice in the opening games, and Miss Browne, who seems indefatigable when on the court, jumped into such a commanding lead that the Norse girl was under a tremendous handicap. Against this she fought with courage and a marked degree of success as the match drew to a close, but she could not quite bring the contest to deuce and the verdict rested with Miss Browne.

The Norse girl was out of stroke in the first few games and she made repeated errors on shots that ordinarily she would have sent hurtling into her opponent's territory with speed and precision. It was a case of well-intended strokes dropping outside of the lines by the smallest margin or drives that barely caught the net. Miss Bjurstedt drove outside the court when she did it with a completeness that left no room for doubt, and the strokes that netted never had a chance of crossing the barrier. Miss Browne was not overpowering herself, for she did not have to.

In the first six games Miss Browne had only one placement aces. At this stage the American was leading at 4 to 2 on her own service, breaking through Miss Bjurstedt's service on the next game she made it three to two against this handicap by brilliant rallies, and with a

INVESTMENT MARKET VERY DULL; FARM LOAN BONDS SCARCE

Hot Weather and Lack of Interest Keep Customers Away—Gossip of "the Street"

"HOW'S business?" asked the manager of one of the oldest established bond and investment houses in the city of a member of another firm in the same line. The reply was, "There is no such thing." And judging by the appearance of the offices and board rooms of the leading brokers he was very nearly right. The public is not in the market at present.

* * *

And yet when the same question was put to the local representative of a large house which has made a specialty of Federal farm loan bonds he said: "Business has been fine. I haven't had as busy a month as July for a long time." When asked how the Federal farm loan bonds were taking, he said: "I have an order lying on my desk for some time past that I can't fill and I am refusing any more commitments until November. It's strange," he continued, "how the public didn't take to those farm loan bonds at first, and now we can't get enough of them. They are a 4½ per cent bond and were sold to net about 4¼. So far as yield is concerned, they are more attractive than the Liberty Bonds, as they are also tax free. But the people did not buy the Liberty Bonds on account of their yield; they bought through patriotism."

Short-Time Notes Have the Call

The principal member of a firm which deals largely in high-grade investments was asked what class of investments are most in demand at present, and replied that any business that is being done is in short-time notes with a large yield or in exceedingly good gilt-edge long-time bonds, but very little of the latter. "It would be impossible," he said, "to finance any new proposition today except with short-time notes with a very large yield of more than 6 per cent."

* * *

There are some exceptions to this as far as the interest rate is concerned. It is reported that the issue of $20,000,000 three-year 5 per cent notes just offered by the Great Northern Railway through the First National Bank of New York at 98 and interest to yield 5¾ per cent has been largely oversubscribed. They are issued in denominations of $1000, $5000 and $10,000 each, callable at any time before September 1, 1918, at 101 and interest.

Easy to Sell Liberty Bonds

One of the most active canvassers for Liberty Bonds in the recent selling campaign, who was successful in placing a large number of the smaller denominations, represents an out-of-town house. He has had many years of a wide experience in soliciting among all classes. He claims that the next issue can be sold on a 3½ per cent basis as easily as on a 4 per cent basis.

"When I was going around with my 'gang,'" he said, "selling Liberty Bonds, and we would arrive at industrial plants or street-car barns around the lunch hour, the boys would ask me to address the crowd. To my mind there was no occasion to address these men. They were intelligent and read the papers and knew all about the bonds, and when I addressed them I said so. In a general way they knew that Uncle Sam had a big war on hand and was going to see it through and needed the money, and they were prepared to loan it to him. All we had to do was to take their subscriptions."

Mahoning and Shenango Valley Prosperous

Early purchasers of the issue of $500,000 5 per cent bonds of the Mahoning and Shenango Valley Railway and Light Company, which were brought out at par about six months ago, are complaining that these bonds are now being sold on a 6 per cent basis, and blame the brokers for not sustaining the market. Under ordinary circumstances that is a difficult matter to control, and under present conditions it would be impossible. Any one who knows anything of the recent phenomenal growth and development of population and industries in these two valleys, which extend from Youngstown, O., to Sharon, Pa., and which has been somewhat on a par with recent developments at Chester, Eddystone and surrounding territory, must know that the future gives abundant promise for the success of the company, which supplies that whole territory with traction, light and power.

A Detachable Stock Warrant

A unique feature in financing is the detachable stock warrant option attached to each of the $1000 three-year 7 per cent notes of the Sinclair Oil and Refining Company. This option entitles the holder to buy from the corporation twenty-five shares of stock at $45 if purchased on or before August 1, 1918, and at an increased price if purchased later. The proceeds from these warrants must be applied to the retirement of the notes through purchase in the open market or on call. The stock is now selling around 43.

The Danger of an Oil Famine

One of the best informed brokers in this city on the oil situation takes very little stock in the much-heralded boom in the Wyoming oil fields. "The safest way to get a correct line on new development in oil," he says, "is to follow the Standard Oil pipe-laying. If they are active in any particular field you may conclude they have looked it over thoroughly and have convinced themselves that it has staying qualities, and any pipes they put down are intended to do service until they rot in the ground.

"There was a lot of talk a while ago," he continued, "about big pipe lines being put down in Kentucky, but I have seen nothing about it recently. That State is a poor man's field, just as California was a poor man's field for gold mining in '49. A man could go in there with a pick, a shovel and a pan and get pay gold from the placers. In Kentucky a well can be drilled and cased for $3500, while in some parts of the Texas fields it costs $35,000 to drill and case a well. There is no particular activity in any field just now," he said, "and in such isolated spots as there is drilling going on it is purely speculative."

* * *

In this connection, the recent purchase of the Big Creek Development Company, of West Virginia, by the South Penn Oil Company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil, is significant of further extension and development of that field. The consideration for which this property changed hands was reported as $5,500,000.

The enormous increase in consumption of light-grade oils, both for the demands of the war and domestic purposes, is causing a serious situation and making new development imperative.

* * *

Recently A. C. Bedford, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, called attention to the seriousness of the oil situation in this country in a statement where he said that the country was producing 300,000,000 barrels per year and using 335,000,000 barrels per year. With only 165,688,700 barrels in reserve, it can easily be seen that this source would soon be exhausted. Although three times as many wells have been drilled in 1917 as in 1915, the initial production is less than in 1915. The public, in the interest of the Government, which must have all it needs to prosecute the war successfully, is warned to economize, especially by cutting out joyriding altogether.

A Valuable International Connection

"The Investors' Service," in the Morris Building, is shortly to make a valuable connection with an old established English house which has been giving a similar service since 1883. This connection will very widely enlarge the scope of both concerns. Although the fundamental lines on which both services have been conducting their business have been similar, their methods of carrying them out have been very different. No doubt the English house will adopt many of the American ideas as soon as it can get English investors to adapt themselves to more advanced methods.

* * *

This extended service will be very valuable to financial and commercial houses in the development of foreign trade after the war. In the past only one or two banking houses in the United States could properly conduct a foreign banking business. A great deal of this business had to be carried on through London houses that for hundreds of years have been adding to their experience and facilities along these lines, and through this new connection the "Investors' Service" expects to be in a position to place these advantages at the call of financiers and business men of the United States.

Allies Dumped Public Utility Bonds

It appears that in the recent financing of the Allies large blocks of public utility and other securities found their way into the market here at prices which, if not judiciously manipulated, would have knocked the market for such securities "galley west," but by careful marketing they have very generally been absorbed without affecting local prices beyond a point or two. It is said that these securities had been held in Europe as collateral for Government bonds.

September Too Early for Liberty Issue?

"If Mr. McAdoo had decided to issue the second Liberty Bond issue on November 15 instead of September 15, as reported, I believe he would have met with greater success, especially in the West," was the remark of a banker who took a very active part in the first issue.

"September 15 is too early," he said, "for the western farmers, but by November 15 they will have sold their corn and wheat and will be prepared to pay cash down for the bonds. Of course," he continued, "the selling on the instalment plan will meet this situation to an extent, but when a man has the money actually in his possession he feels he can afford to buy more than if he has to go into debt even for a short time."

* * *

"It is not so much the diverting of future savings from the savings banks and such institutions to purchase Liberty Bonds that I am considering," said a well-known investment banker, "as what may happen if the clients of such concerns should make wholesale withdrawals to invest in these bonds. It will necessitate liquidation of the high-class 6 per cent bonds held by these institutions, as there will be no market for any other class of investments."

* * *

"My advice to investors is, as soon as the second issue of Liberty bonds is placed on the market to forget right in and buy everything on the board. I never
