ENGLISH CAST APPEARS IN STANLEY FILM PLAY

"Mary Jane's Pa" at Arcadia. Dessauer Orchestra Returns to Victoria for Third Year

By the Photoplay Editor

STANLEY—"Second Mrs. Tanqueray," Vita-sraph London Studio, with Sir George Alex-ander and Hilda Moore. From Stage play by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero. Fred Paul, director. ere we have another example of a stage Here we have another example of a stage play made into a photoplay for the edification of those who may never have an opportunity to hear the spoken version. It is not the success, however, that has marked screen adaptations of other stage plays, for much is lost by not being able to hear the lines of the players. One striking feature of this production is the lack of comedy relief that is to be found in many of our American dramas. This makes it a tragedy instead of just keeping the interest tensely dramatic. Mrs. Patrick Campbell was the filming it has made an artistic sucthat is often lacking in foreign production. The work of Sir George Alexander is contribution to the screen and is at all times an artist. Hilda Moore has the difficult role as Paula, the "second" Mrs. Tanqueray, and gives a very credi-table interpretation of this character.

A novelty that is to be commended is the printing of the name of Ferdinand Earle, the artist whose work made the titles so attractive. Al-though Mildred Manning is the featured feminine player, she does not have a part at is sufficient to bring her before the mera as a star. Here is another case where a member of the cast literally is the main player. That person is Eulalie Jensen, as the mother of Mary. Her work was good at all times. What little acting was good at all times. What little acting the role of Mary required was capably done by Miss Manning, and her ability to portray a youthful girl is to be commended. Marc MacDermott, as the father, gave a faithful portrayal of a type that required very little theatrics, and it was his knowledge of the actor's art that made the character so realistic. The opening scenes. acter so realistic. The opening scenes where the children are brought into the picture, as well as their little mannerisms, was faithfully done by several of them. The supporting cast all deserve special mention for their ability to not overact their roles. This may be due to Directo Earle's work, which shows a thorough ap preciation of the limits of the motion-pie

Dessauer Brothers' Orchestra returned for their third season, and it was just as much this fact as it was the return of Dustin Farnum in a screen production that brought out such large audiences to welcome them. The music at this theatre is just as much a factor with the regular patrons as is the picture. In this story of western is the picture. In this story of western life we have an outlaw wanted for a crime he did not commit. There is the love in terest and the thrills, so popular with cer-tain types of Western stories. Dustin, brothtain types of Western stories. Dustin, broth-er of William, makes a typical man of the West; not of today, however, but of the past; while Winifred Kingston, who will be remembered for her work for the Mo-rosco studios, plays the sweetheart with a delightful touch of naturalness. Then, too, Tom Mix, who has played in many comedies, is seen as the Sheriff. Another player whose pliable acting makes her an able acquisition to the studios is Amy Jerome, who heretofore has appeared in comedies. Others who contribute to the

Furthermore, they have personality, which, after all, is the greatest asset when it comes to pleasing the public. Jean Bedini wrote and produced the show, and the music and lyrics are the combined work of Irving Berlin, Gus Edwards and Ernest Ball. In the cast are many well known in the fun-making line, including Clark and McCullough, Bob Harmon, Syd. Malcolm, George Brooks, Mike Morris, Helen Lorraine, Ella Golden, Marie Sabbott and Jeon Bedini himself.

Thrills are furnished by the Mishka Pipik Troupe and the Five Aerial Dolls, and there's a kitten chorus of twenty pretty girls.

MEISTERSINGERS HEAD CLEVER BILL AT KEITH'S

Artistic and Comedy Numbers, With New Lines, Make Well-Balanced Program

Harry Holman and Company offer the funniest number on the bill at B. F. Keith's New Theatre this week; the Meistersingers offer the most artistic.

Holman has the assistance of Miss Allene Durano and James J. Mulry in presenting a comedy playlet that is full of droll lines— most of which are new—delivered in a pleasantly dry fashion. The plot of the thing doesn't amount to much, being rather commonplace and lazily devised, but that make the number good

The Melatersingers, from a rural railway station setting, offer beautiful harmony of male voices. There are ten numbers, of which "Songs My Mother Used to Sing," by Arthur F Cole, tenor, assisted by the company, and "Neptune," by A. Cameron Steele, are the best. Steele has a wonderful bass voice. It is almost a perfect in-strument. Harold S. Tripp has a good tenor solo. "The Garden of Your Heart." Dorothy Toye, "the girl with two grand pera voices," sings soprano beautifully and enor ably, closing an unusual number with the duet from "Il Trovatore." whole, but it is not exactly pleasant to witness her tenor because it is impossible for Misa Toye to conceal, even with a fan, the fact that singing in the unnatural voice

The Kanazawa Boys have a number in which they do amazing things with barrels and tubs with their feet. They are better educated in the feet than many folks are Jimmy Lucas and Company offers a funny Jimmy Lucas and Company offers a finny number called "A Crazy Quilt Pieced With Harmony and Smiles." Lucas did most of the fun-making last night. One of his assistants helped very little by playing the piano, and exhibited his temperament by "hawling out" the stage hands because they didn't move the piano fast enough. The audience doesn't care for that. They were probably as good at their business as he was at his. Altogether, though, the Lucas number is good, but it would be improved by elimination of the imitations of ef-feminate men, which are disgusting to a good many persons.

Those for the originality of its efforts. Those who have gotten this show together have tried to keep away from the stereotyped dances and hackneyed business of the ordinary buriesque show, and they have accomplished their purpose. There is a "difference" even in the wardrobe changes. "Delivering the Goods" is the name of the two-act vehicle which Jack Stinger has written for this show. The piece is full of surprises. In fact, even the program is not a sufficient guide to warn the audience what to expect in the matter of innovations.

Shows No Signs of Great Responsibility Being Borne in World War

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14 If you have pictured President Wilson careworn, haggard and breaking under the strain of his tremendous war problems, change the portrait. It's way wrong.

On one of his unannounced strolls from the White House to Secretary's Baker's office in the State, War and Navy Building.

Swinging out from Baker's room and down the tiled corridor, the President had more the manner of a man who had just concluded a pleasant chat with an old crony about nothing in particular than of a nation's leader who had just discussed a vital world problem whose solution he must

SMITH FOR SMITH AS CITY TREASURER

Mayor Indorses Common Councilman (No Relation) for McCoach's Place

FILLS ORGANIZATION LIST

Mayor Smith has openiy indorsed Comnon Councilman Robert Smith, of the Thirty-sixth Ward, to succeed William McCoach as City Treasurer. The Mayor and the Councilman are not related.

The Mayor's action puts an end to the boom that was launched several weeks ago to land the place for the Mayor's brother and private secretary, Joseph C. Smith, and completes the list of Organization candi-dates on a "fifty-fifty" ticket for the four row offices to be filled next November.

Many of the residents of Overbrook are getting hot under the collar on account of the proposed increase in the price of steam heat on account of the increase in the cost of coal. The plant, owned by Lewis Jones, Jr., announces an increase of 70 per cent.

It was learned today that the increase can hardly be helped despite the fact that the citizens held an indignation meeting last night and vented opinions which warmed the atmosphere of the Overbrook public school.

Mr. Jones answered the complaint of the nsumers today with figures. "Bituminous coal at the mine," he said. "is three dollars a net ton plus twenty-five cents for the agent's fee. This price of $3.25 a net ton is equivalent to $3.61 a gross ton. Two or three years ago we were able to obtain the same coal for $1.15 or The freight rate has also increased fifteen cents a ton, and the cost of labor is almost double. Our costs therefore have nereased generally more than 300 per cent, and an increase in the cost of heat cannot be helped. The cost varies accord-ing to the size of the house. We have filed a statement of the proposed increase with the Public Service Commission."

In spite of the wave of indignation over the higher rate, many persons in Overbrook believe that it will cool off when the con-sumers are aware of the figures and facts

Many are hoping that some action by the Government against the mine owners may yet forestall the extra levy.

The Mayor indorsed "Bob" Smith without having discussed the matter with any of the Organization leaders, he said, but his indorsement is regarded as at least the opening move toward an indorsement of Smith by the Vares.

The Organization slate for the four principal offices to be voted for this fall now stands as follows:

District Attorney—Samuel P. Rotan.

Receiver of Taxes—W. Freeland Kendrick.

City Treasurer—Robert Smith.

Register of Wills—James B. Sheehan.

The Mayor has indorsed them all. His announcement of his selection of another Smith for a position in City Hall was made in answer to a question as to how he regarded Robert Smith," said the Mayor, "and I would like to see him nominated for City Treasurer. Will Washington Help Farmers Plant Winter Wheat?

Asks James H. Collins in Sunday's Public Ledger

THE plot begins to thicken! Everybody is signing the food pledge to economize on wheat. We are now approaching the season when winter wheat should be sown, and there should be as much activity about it as there was over war gardens last spring.

In Sunday's Public Ledger James H. Collins says the American farmer is as patriotic as anybody, and there is every reason why he should plant wheat up to the capacity of his land this fall; but four obstacles stand in his way, viz.: First. Congress with its interminable discussions, fears and shifts; second, the farmers are in a state of suspicion in the matter of food prices and control; third, shortage of labor, and fourth, the very serious shortage of farm implements.

Truly Mr. Collins has sensed the difficulties that beset the grain farmer. His article is a revelation regarding the Government and its attitude toward farming conditions. Read it in
