ITISH NAVY HEAD UNA NUOVA MISSIONE INCE B. AND O. EMPLOYE

Vice Admiral Geddes Also Worked for Carnegie Steel Company

SPLENDID RECORD IN WAR

Has Proved of Notable All-Round Efficiency in Conducting Large and Varied Operations for British

By LOWELL MELLETT

LONDON, Aug. 18. LONDON, Aug. 18. They used to say that the fastest thing on he Baltimore and Ohio was the Royal lue Limited. They were wrong. The satest thing on the Baltimore and Ohio has a young hired hand named Eric addes. Naturally, it wasn't known then, ut the appointment of Vice Admiral her Eric Geddes—the same young hired and and not a whole lot older—to be ruler the navy that rules the ways output to The navy that rules the wave ought to ove it. If the new First Lord of the fitsh Admiralty had a middle name it uid be Speed. If he accomplishes the me results in the Admiralty that he has me results uplished in other branches of the Govment this much is certain, British naval ters will cease to marvel at the hustle of the American navy; they'll be too busy ding up their own. Ir Eric was born in India forty-one years

He was educated at Edinburgh Acadmy and Oxford Military College. When seventeen years old he went to America. He worked in southern lumber camps a bit, then for the Carnegie Steel Company in Pittsburgh and became a switchman and afterward a station agent on the Baltimore ind Ohio in West Virginia. Four years later he left to go back to India. In India he entered the service of the Schilkund and Kumaon Railway, building railroad through the jungle, a job that nade him something of a reputation. Thir-

made him something of a reputation. Thir-teen years ago Sir George Gibbs, general manager of the Northwestern Railway, cabled him asking if he was prepared to accept a place on the railway staft. "Starting Monday," Geddes replied. In a short time he was appointed deputy general manager. Lord Kinchener saw him in 1915 and enlisted his aid in speeding up munitions. When the Ministry of Munitions was created, with Lloyd George in charge, he made Geddes deputy general director. Early in 1916 he was transferred to the War Office as Director of Military Rail-ways.

ways. Called on to assist in the preparation for the Somme campaign, he was transferred, at Sir Douglas Haig's request, to France as a member of the Commander-in-Chief's staff, with the title of Director General of Transportation and the rank of major genoral

Lord Peel raised the question of the pro priety of replacing a military officer with a dvillan

. "But," said Lord Derby, "the civilian in this case is Sir Eric Geddes."

That settled it. In May of this year it was decided his energy was needed in the Admiralty. The post of Controller was created, a little job that called for meeting the combined re-quirements of the Admiralty, the War Of-fice, the Ministry of Shipping and other Government departments with respect to de-sign, construction, alterations and repairs of warships and other vessels of all classes of warships and other vessels of all classes and the requirements of the Admiralty with respect to armaments and munitions. So he ceased to be a major general and became a vice admiral.

But Lloyd George came to the conclusion that Sir Eric didn't have enough to do, and now has made him First Lord and the real ruler of the Queen's navy.

For more than a year the ambulance and its auxiliaries have been caring for an av-erage of foore than 1200 patients daily, it was announced, and the annual budget is approximately $400,000. Up to August 1 like American committee had sent $1,300,000 to the hospital, and since the transfer $263,-500 has been forwarded.

The personnel will remain largely the same, with Dr. James P. Hutchinson, of Philadelphia, as surgeon-in-chief. The statement says:

"The American committee will continue to obtain funds for the support of the hos-pital and to solicit endowment of beds and money for general maintenance. The Amerimoney for general maintenance. The Ameri-can Red Cross will have supervision of the administration of the hospital; will take care of the shipment of supplies and will stand ready to make up any deficit in the funds needed for maintenance which the American committee may be unable to ob-tain."
