BYRON AND QUIGLEY ARRIVE WITH CUBS

Wm. J. Proves as Scrupy as Ever—Does All in His Power to Hold Stage

Something blew into the Phillies' park yesterday.

During the days before the old Phil went out and won a National League championship it used to be called a jimx. It wasn't a jimx yesterday. It was a visiting ball club with a horseshoe, a slatpated pitcher with a prayer and the "Weber and Fields" of baseball.

President Tener each year selects a corps of umpires who are assigned to ball games in various cities on the National League circuit. They should be clean of body, sound of mind, possess a clear and perfect vision and be all in the power of a human to assist eighteen athletes in deciding a box score.

Yesterday Evers was put out of the game, Leslie Mann said enough to be banished to Siberia and even quiet little Milton Stock had to turn around and see if Byron really meant a strike when he had to dodge to avoid the ball.

Byron is of the opinion that the ball fans go out to the games to see him umpire. They don't. Quigley is not as bad as Byron, but the fact that they are teamed together makes one look as bad as the other. It used to be fun to think of Byron pointing his finger toward the clubhouse or telling some ballplayer where to make quick connections for the shower, but it isn't fun any more.

Wm. J. Doesn't Lose Chance to Shine

They started to umpire a game at the Phil's park yesterday and as somebody must be blamed for the first defeat of the home stay the blame might just as well be placed on the shoulders of the umpire. Byron is of the opinion that the ball fans go out to the games to see him umpire.

FOOTBALL TO GO BIG THIS YEAR

Fourteen Leading Colleges to Keep up the Gridiron Competition

Football as usual is the slogan of college with few exceptions, in the East and West this year. Nearly every one of them will have a football team, an intercollegiate schedule of games and will combine with the general instruction in sports for students.

War's hand, while it has crushed some of the teams that represented the big universities, has not squeezed the spirit out of them. Four first-string freshmen will be on hand to help out. R. H. Smith, graduate manager of athletics, wrote that 75 per cent of last year's team have joined the army or navy.

Remains Undecided

The University of Southern California, one of the big western schools that play one of the American gridiron, still will announce a football team.

Colgate University, champion of the East last year, falls in the statement that Colgate is going to play its football schedule unless all dates are cancelled.

Washington and Jefferson College, a strong supporter of football, despite the fact that ten of last year's squad are in college, have announced that they will not play football this year.

Sir Horace Plunkett

Representative of Ireland as Convention Head

"THE selection of Sir Horace Plunkett as the presiding officer of the Irish conference augurs well for the success of the assembly," says Sydney Brooks in Sunday's Public Ledger.

In his usual interesting manner, Mr. Brooks tells something of the life and thoughts of this famous agrarian leader who has been chosen as the chairman of the Irish convention.
