Belfield and Overbrook Stars Survive Semifinals in Ocean City Tennis

MISS WALSH WINNER

OCEAN CITY, N. J. Aug. 24.
Percy S. Osborne, of Belfield, and Everett
Moster, the Overbrook Golf Club star, survived the semifinal round of the men's singles matches in the South Jersey patriotic tennis tournament at the Yacht Club today. The final match of the singles is scheduled for tomorrow.

Osborne won his way to the finals by a well-earned victory over Dr. P. B. Hawk, a clubmate, while Morier came through three sets to a decisive win over C. M. Harlan. Harlan took the first set, 6-3, and the second set found the Merion player still going strong. Mosier having to go twelve games to win at 7-5. The third set was a revelation of Mosier's reserve. In the first three games Harian was never able to get more than two points, and the last three were love games for Mosier. Harian only scored four points during the lone set. Mosier's service and terrific back-hand drives send-ing his amountains. his opponent to back court at frequent intervals, where he was caught out of posi-tion time and time again.

Kerr and Rhoads, the University of Pennsylvania pair, won their way to the final round of the men's doubles by defeating F. R. Gillender and Dean Johnson, 6-1, 2; by Rixey, 3; by Ragan, 3; by Ring, 1.

title in the men's doubles, In the first match of the day, the first round of the mixed doubles, Mrs. B. G. K. Bailey and Earle Humphreys defeated Miss Ruth Smith and A. J. Batty in three sets 5-7, 6-2, 6-3.

Another of the mixed doubles matches which attracted the applause of the gallery was the two-set match between Miss Gwendolyn Plass and H. Dornheim and Mrs. G. F. Betz and B. Walsh, the latter pair winning at 6-2, 6-2. Walsh and Dornhelm gave a great exhibition of cross-court voleying, but Mrs. Betz' returns of Dornheim's her partner for an easy victory.

In the women's singles, Mrs. David Stern defeated Mrs. J. D. Strebig, 6-8, 6-3, 6-4. Mrs. Stern and Miss Phyllis Walsh are favorites for the finalists in women's singles Summarles:

Californian Gets Lead on Lindley Murray Through Latter's Wildness

WOMEN'S MATCH OFF

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 24.

John Strachan took the first set from R.
Lindley Murray, 6-4, in the semifinals in the national patriotic tennis tournament here today. Murray's wildness virtually handed Strachan the set. Murray made bad returns and frequently served double faults.

Murray won the third set, 6-3. Strachan appeared to be tiring. His opponent showed speedy work at the net. He returned Strachan's service with fast drives. Murray displayed spectacular style. Rain fell during the third set, but the crowd stuck to the strade.

The match between Miss Mary Browne and Miss Mollie Bjurstedt went over until tomorrow because of the rain. Miss Bjurstedt won the first match, 6-4.

The greatest reversal in the tournament came vesterday when Richard Norris Williams 2d, holder of the national singles championship, was defeated in the semifinal round of the event by Nathaniel W. Niles. of Boston, in a four-set match with the score, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4, 6-3. Although the result was foreshadowed somewhat by Williams's lack of practice and erratic play earlier rounds, the victory was none the less amazing when it was indelibly recorded among the achievements of the tournament. Niles deserves cerdit for a great victory which should be one of the brightest mem-ories of his tennis career, yet for all it was not convincing of his superiority to the same extent had the title been at present event. He attained heights of ten-nis which showed him at his best, probably stronger than at any time in the last two years, but Williams was far from being at his best. The skill which carried Williams his best. The skill which carried Williams to victories over Maurice E. McLoughlin in the championship of 1914 and William M. Johnstone in the championship of a year ago showed itself only in fleeting gilmpses. The Williams of old was on the court for only about one-fifth of the match, for the rest of the time there was a player of lesser skill,

HEINIE GROH MAY NOT BE KING OF THIRD SACKERS, BUT HE IS EASILY AMONG THE TOP-NOTCHER

Learned on the Sand Lots and Finally Land With Giants, Who Traded Him to Cincinnati for a Failure

WHEN the critics select the king of the National Lengue's third basemen, Heinie Groh is sure to receive much consideration. The diminutive infielder, whose playing her third basemen, the critics select the king of the Russian and to 233 while covering shorter for Buffalo in the Eastern League in 18 His best batting mark while in the National Russian and the Russia playing has been an important factor in the success of Matthewson's club, may not be the greatest third baseman in the pastime, but he is one of the best. Recently many experts have compared his work with that of Heinie Zim, who this season is conceded to be the peer of all third eackers.

Getting back to this little tale about Groh. Helnie has developed rapidly in the last few seasons. Not only have his batting and fielding been of assistance to the Reds in their drive toward the top, but his generalship has figured prominently in the "inside play" of the infield, the other members of which are Hal Chase, at first; Davey Shean and Bill McKechnie, alternating at second, and Billy Kopf, at shortstop.

Learned on Sand Lots

The little star of the Reds was born in Rochester, N. Y., in 1889, and acquired his early baseball training on the sand lots of that city. Groh played with many clubs in the neighborhood during his youth. He in the neighborhood during his youth. He took up the game because he preferred baseball to any other line of endeavor.

"I didn't become a ball player because I liked a life of ease." he remarked in a company of his enrecounting the circumstances of his en-trance in to the game. "As a matter of fact, a ball player's life is not a bed of roses. It entails hard work.

"As far back as I am able to remember As far back as I am able to remember I loved to play baseball. In my youth I dreamed of becoming a great pitcher like Amos Rusle, but my small stature prevented my ever becoming a pitcher. I did pitch for some of the clubs I played with in my youngsterhood, and made a pretty good showing at that, but when I got into faster semi-professional circles I abandthe pitching and became an infielder. Since then I have played every position on the infield, even getting a chance at first base on one occasion. "My favorite position, however, is third base, and I am doing my utmost at that post to help the Reds keep up in the race this seasonff I am confident that our club this seasond I am conndent that our club will be in the fight all the way. I do not say it is a great club, but it is a well-balanced team, the boys are hitting and the pitching is beyond the average. Nobody can laugh at the Reds today. We are all can laugh at the Reds today. We are all playing for Matty, and I will go on record now as saying that he is the finest manager for whom I ever played. He is desti to become one of the really great leaders of the game."

Played First in Oshkosh

Groh's first professional engagement was with the Oshkosh club in 1908, when that team was a member of the Wisconsin and Illinois League. Although he batted only 161 in 119 games, he played such a smart fielding game at shortstop that year that he was retained, and the next season he jumped his batting average to .285 for 113 games. Ever since then he has managed to keep his mark well above the .250 notch, raising it to cousins, 297 in 1910, while still playing with Osh-present.

In 1916 Cleveland put in a draft for Groh, and he left Oahkosh, only to sent to Decatur, of the Three I League which club he was sold to the Giants. New York team had plenty of infielders season, and August 3 he was sent to Bu on an optional agreement.

Giants Traded Him

In 1912 he was recalled by the Giants, be still the team was overstocked with in-fielders, and as it was thought Grob's batting wasn't quite good enough for the need of the club he was traded May 22 to Use

Groh has been with the Reds ever since and often regret has been expressed that it was nermitted to get away from the Gism He developed rapidly after joining the Requition of the developed rapidly after joining the Requiril today he divides with such players Zimmerman. Penn Champion Here From Aviation School for Title Meet Tomorrow

EVENTS FREE TO PUBLIC

Ted Meredith, recognized as the world's createst middle-distance runner, arrived in this city this morning to compete in the Middle Atlantic track and field champion-bins which will be a second or the middle of t ships, which will be staged at Franklin Field tomorrow afternoon. The renowned University of Pennsyl-Vania champion came all the way from Mount Clemens, Mich., where he was in corps. Ted received a furlough extending from yesterday until September 5. Besides showing in the district title games, he will compete for the Meadowbrook Club in the national championships, which will be held at St. Louis next week.

Meredith is in wonderful physical con-dition after the hard drilling of the aviation service. His eye is a bit clearer and his brown skin is a trifle darker than usual from the outdoor life which to has been eading for the last two months. He states that he is in great shape and is going to do his best to land the first district title

The sporting public will have a chance to see this champion and several other title and record holders in action free of charge.
