M'KEES DEFEAT MEEHANS AT GOLF

Des Moines Family Victor Over North Hills Golfers in Family Match

FATHER McKEE SHOOTS 76

The famous golf match between the mem bers of the families of J. Franklin Mechan president of the North Hills Country Club, and Bert McKee, a hanker of Des Moines, Iowa, which was played sometime between August 31 and September 2, has been won by the McKee family. Some time ago Mr. McKee issued a challenge to play my other golfing family in this country. Ac he stated in big challenge: "Why teach your family Latin and Greek? Teach them golf and by these parts of the country than the country to the cou and jet them furnish the home."

clear in one city and raining in another it was decided to let the players have three days in which to make their scores. From St. Louis failed to raily to the athletic days in which to make their scores. From the scores there were wonderful rival sport attractions, but because St. Louis is not an athletic city. In this sense it is announced that athletics and all of its child. Incidentally it was decided that the child. Incidentally it was decided that the for golfers over fifty-five years will be youngest children should play only nine played next Tuesday over the St. David's han could do was 21 strokes worse. The youngest McKee boy made 75 for the nine holes, while Miss Jeanette Mechan, a year younger, was 50 strokes worse.

The Misses Sarah and Heien Meehan played better golf than the Misses Lucille and Frances McKee, there being a difference of 34 strokes between the two twelve-year-old girls and in favor of the Philadelphian, while the eider Meehan girl was 7 strokes lower than her rivat.

The basic principle of golf is honor, and are it was not possible to play the match over a neutral course, each family was per-mitted to play over its home links and the correctness of the score was left to each family, so there will be no profests and the Mechans will take their beating like men and women should It is the first time that Mr. Meelon and phians were easy victors.

COMMISH AS PHYSICAL TRAINER IS AMBITION OF CHARLEY WHITE, WHO MEETS JOHNNY TILLMAN TONIGHT

Left-Hook Phenom and Puncher of Knockout Powers Seeks to Teach Soldiers the Manly Boxing Pastime as Recreation

TWELVE years ago Charley Anchowitz. | Charley" in 1915. This was the year be before he became Charley White, never | started out to bring the lightweight chain dreamed of being able to walk into a boxing dub for the simple reason of being a spectator; that he would ever be a ring gladiaor was too sweet a nightmare; yet Philadelphia fans will see one that may prove to be Benny Leonard's conqueror when the 'hicagoan answers the bell against Johnny Tillman at Shibe Park tonight,

Back in 1905, a year before White made boxing his profession, he was an anemic youngster, whose ambition was to gain the strength and health of other boys of his age. Thanks to training stunts of a boxer, while conditioning for a match, Charley gradually built up his fragile constitution. He found the rope-jumping, puties and bag-punching exercises so beneficial it was only a few months before young Anchowitz was out on the mut ducking and sidestopping another fellow's wallops while endeavoring to connect with blows himself.

After a Commission All of which leads to White's present army as a physical instructor. Hefore coming to Philadelphia to finish training for his till with Tillman, White and his immager. Nate Lewis, stopped off in Washington for the purpose of getting some information about entering the service. The lafter part of the week White will make another visit to the capital and then he hopes to finish definite arrangements for a Government job and sign the papers. White, an Englishman by birth but American by adoption, says men of other professions, must have recrention," said White today, "and nothing

It is White's greatest arraiety to get into the army and teach the boys in klinki how to get and keep themselves into condition so that they wouldn't let a little worry like a five or twenty-five mile hike trouble 'em when they get over there. Charley himself is a conscientious trainer and does his daily gymnasium stunts whether he has a bout on or not. He is a wonderful specimen of manhood and gives credit for his fine physique entirely to his workouts in the gym.

While squaring off with the glaves in his umerous physical bouts White showed a lot of stuff, and some of his friends told Charley he would make good in the ring. He believed them. One dark night in 1906 White jotted down his first professional victory when he won a mix-rounder from a little fellow named Marty Kane. At that time Charley was a boxer; he couldn't hit hard enough to knock any one's hat off. For three years White boxed around the West and then during the fail of 1999 he visited Philadelphia. After boxing at the Broadway club against Sammy Willis in one of the prelims, two weeks later he tried to take the featherweight championship away from Abe Attell in an eightcounder at Memphis. Takes on Weight After his match with Attell, White went along, outpointing some and being out-pointed by other leading featherweights in the country. By 1913 White matriculated into the lightweight division and ine dentally discovered that he was improving his punching powers. He knocked out Jos Thomas, the lightweight star of the South.

started out to bring the lightweight championship to Chicago. Beginning with a pionship to Chicago. Beginning with a ten-round no-decision bout against the then titleholder. Freddy Welsh, Charley went off on a knockout rampage. He came here on St. Fatrick's night and polished off Sam Robideau in a round. Sammy then was in his prime and looked like one of the leading lightweights in the East, so Philadelphia fans began to believe that "Left-Hook Charley" White was a regular fighter. Shortly after White was a regular fighter. Shortly after White competed in five bouts in quick succession, and five quick knockouts were credited him. He treated Eddie Murphy to a cure for insomnia at Boston, then knocked off Hai Stewart, Frad Yelle, Charley Thomas and Young Brown

Boxes Bigger Opponents While Charley is a legitimate lightweight, being able to come in at 183 pounds with case, he has been forced to go out of his class time and again. He can get few men with his own weight to box him. By meeting the state of the ing Tillman tonight at 10s pounds, weigh in at 3 o'clock this afternoon, the Minne-apolls pride of Muggs Taylor really will be around the welterweight limit, 142 pounds. Speaking of Taylor, Muggsy says Till-man should not be forgotten at all when figuring on the winner. Muggs admits White should be rated the odd man in betting, but at the same time because one is made the favorite it doesn't necessarily mean that he will uphold the doesn't mean that he will uphold the dope.

"Tillman is in fine form," said Taylor this morning. "What I mean by fine form is that Johnny is in shape to get into the ring with White and make Charley

Out in Globe, Arizona, one of my brothers has just made a record that fills me with justifiable pride. I'll tell you the story and you be the judge.

E. P. Widner, a stage driver out there, replaced his lumbering old style relay stage with a Velie Light Six, making regular trips over mountainous roads, averaging 100 miles daily.

The other day my brother's master took a party from Globe to Los Angeles, 811 miles in forty hours. That's only twenty miles per hour average and ordinarily nothing to boast of, but when you picture the route, over rough mountain trails, through Arroyas and Buffalo Wallows and across the most barren desert on the American continent, it's time to prick up your ears because that feat represents stamina and performance equal to the average driver's requirements in 10,000
