GOSSIP OF THE STREET—PHILADELPHIA MARKETS SOUTH MAKING GIGANTIC STRIDES IN BUSINESS AND INDUSTRIES

Philadelphia Banker Enthusiastic Over Railroad and Other Conditions There-Gossip of the Street

WELL-KNOWN Philadelphia banker who has given more than a passing study A to conditions in the Southern States is most enthusiastic over the future of that section, and in support of his opinion calls attention to the condition of the outhern railroads as compared with those of any other section of the country. "These who have not visited the South in recent years would be surprised at the gigantic strides which are being made there," he remarked. "I had a letter from a gentleman of my acquaintance a few days ago who owned large mill down there and he told me that he had just doubled its capacity. 'I was able to do this,' he writes, 'because I can purchase cheap power from one of the big power plants which are being erected all over the South, as water power in the South is very abundant,' and he continues to say that it would have cost him $150,000 to erect his own power plant, so that by saving that amount he was able to

"There is an important item," said this banker, "in the manufacture of cotton, which enters into the cost of cotton goods manufactured in, say, Fall River and other northern cities, which hardly touches cost in the southern mills, and that the question of heating. In Fail River and other places the factories must be heated for about five months of the year, whereas heat is rarely ever necessary in the southern mills.

"But the great water-power or hydro-electric plants which are going up all ever the South." he said, "are working a transformation."

Believes New Liberty Loan Will Be Syndicated

" Ithink the new Liberty Loan will virtually have to be syndicated at the first," said the local representative of a large New York bond and investment house yes terday. "I don't mean syndicated in the usual acceptance of the term, but I believe the banks and big investors will have to come across and take the bulk of them at the outset, and then have their holdings peddled through the succeeding months by the big army of saleamen from the various houses and banks as before.

"As I see it, about 4 per cent of the population of the United States became purchasers during the last campaign. Many of these are still paying installments on their purchases and will be for months to come. They can not be expected to buy any of the second issue, so the big drive must be made for those who didn't buy during the first campaign.

"This second campaign will be much better conducted than the first one. A great deal has been learned and the work of the second campaign will be more efficient, will accomplish far more with a less amount of energy than previously. "Besides," he said, "I think there is now a better understanding between the Secretary of the Treasury and those who will conduct the second campaign, and that means a great deal. Security Buyers Wait for Bargains

Speaking of the hesitation of the public to buy securities at present bargain prices, the head of a large local banking house said that, according to recent reports from their salesmen, there exists an almost universal feeling that by waiting a little lenger they will be able to secure greater bargains.

"As an example," he said, "we sold one year ago the notes of a certain railroad to yield 6 per cent. A little later they sold to net 61/2 per cent, then 61/4 per cent and finally a new issue came out at 7 per cent.

"Our men say that their customers when approached to buy the last issue almost invariably answer that by waiting a little longer they feel certain they will buy them on an 8 per cent basis, and as a confirmation of their belief point to the previous issues."

Investment Business Looking Up

"Business is looking up this morning," remarked the manager of a large New York investment house with a branch office in this city. "We had at least a dozen inquiries-most of them very promising-before 19 o'clock, and a few sales. Our men are sending in encouraging reports, too, and it looks as though matters financial had taken a turn for the better."

When asked to what cause he attributed the change, he said he had not had time fully to analyze it, and instead of drawing a hasty conclusion he preferred to wait and see if the favorable condition would continue.

When Pork Sold for One and a Half Cents a Pound

"Speaking of the high cost of living," said Howard Butcher, Jr., of the investment firm of Butcher, Sherrerd & Hansell, in the Real Estate Trust Building, "here is the original receipt given to my great-great-grandfather on April 24, 1785, and signed by J. W. Stanley & Co., of this cit., for $30 in full for ten barrels of pork. "Now, as a barrel of pock was supposed to weigh 200 pounds," said Mr. Butcher, it can be seen that cured pork at that time sold for about a cent and a half a pound. A few days ago hogs were selling on the foot in Chicago at thirty cents Mr. Butcher has also a receipt signed by Stephen Girard, dated October 8, 1782.

for 660 17s 4d (English money, before dollars were introduced), and given to Mr. Butcher's great-great-grandfather for coffee. A significant fact on this receipt is that the body of it calls for two pence (four cents) less than the amount at the bottom of the receipt, which, as Mr. Butcher says, proves that Stephen Girard had a care bookkeeper even at that early date.

Present Investment Outlook

George E. Roberts, assistant to the president of the National City Bank of New York, has the following to say on the investment outlook in the Magazine of Wall

The price of investment securities, like the price of commodities, depends at last upon the supply of securities on the market. The downward course of the bond market is due to the outpouring of Government securities issued to finance the war. Holders of American securities in England, France, Germany, Holland and Belgium have been selling our securities since the war began to enable them to buy their own, and now there are great offerings of our own Government bonds at home. The public is urged to subscribe upon patriotic grounds, and, moreover, on account of the freedom from taxation they are an especially attractive security to many people. It is inevitable that under these conditions other securities should be offered for sale, and that prices should decline.

I do not see how recovery can be expected so long as this outpouring of Government issues continues. The decline in good railway bonds is not because the security is doubtful but because Government issues are more attractive. I don't see anything for the holder of railway bonds to do but sit tight and draw his regular income from them, forgetting, if he can, that the market is lower and that the income is impaired by the higher level of living costs.

Aetna Explosive Company Receivers Optimistic

The Investors Service, in the Morris Building, has the following to report on the Aetna Explosives Company, Inc., which is still in the hands of the receivers: This company was placed in the hands of receivers on April 19, 1917. The receivers found unsatisfactory conditions both at the plants and in the organization. The lack of working capital had entailed large and excessive charges for interest and demurrage, and caused a shortage of raw materials. The overhead expenses also appeared to be excessive. The first effort of the receivers was to correct these conditions and to reduce expenses. The saving in salaries alone was about $200,000 a year. As a result of the efforts of the receivers, from April 20 to May 31, 1917, a period of forty-one days, the profits were $533,929, or more than twice as much as the total profits of the company from January 1 to April 19. Corresponding profits have been reported for June and July. On reviewing the receivership from April 19 to July 31, 1917, a total profit of $1,648,056 has been earned before amortization. The company has four important contracts with the French Government which have recently been modifled in favor of the company. The commercial business of the company is said to be in better condition now than it was prior to the receivership, and the receivers believe that the operation of the commercial plants will continue to show a reasonable profit. It is also believed that sufficient business can be obtained to continue the operation of the military plants during the war.

1 . . . Heavy Copper Production

Townsend Whelen & Co., report that the Cerro de Pasco copper mine had a production during the month of August of a little more than 6,000,000 pounds. This almost equals its record month of July last, when the production amounted to

The recent emergency sale of copper to the Entente Aliles at twenty-five cents a pound has naturally given color to the report that the Government had virtually decided to fix the price of the metal at that figure, but as yet no definite information on the subject is forthcoming, but it is expected in a few days,

Every Storm Has Its End

"When one can go into the open market and buy Erie 4s, Series B, at 50, and ouri Pacific 4s at 57, it looks as if the bottom had been reached," remarked Howard Butcher, Jr., "and that the worst had been passed.

"It reminds me of the story," he said, "of the woefuly seasick lady who had stood storm for some days and then appealed to the captain, asking if the storm would ever be over, and he replied that there had always been an end to every storm he had experienced as yet."

Cost of New Financing to Railroads

The cost of new financing to railroads was brought out prominently by Bioren & Co. in their announcement of participation in an issue of $4,000,000 Seaboard Air Line Railway Company two-year 6 per cent notes, dated September 15, 1917, due plember 15, 1919, issued by a group headed by the National City Bank and the Quaranty Trust Company of New York.

me notes are secured by a deposit of $5,334,000 first and consolidated mortgage 1945, and pledged at 75 per cent of their par value.

I understood those notes will be offered at $8, to rield 7 per cent.
