Brighten the Corner Where You Are

NOT long ago a poor little rich girl could do with all your money. She gave brought me her story. She was one of the so-called society leaders of the town in which she lived. She was popular of the so-called society leaders of the town in which she lived. She was popular, talented, and had all of the material things others. You are rich in the eyes of the world, but your soul is poverty-stricken. That is the secret of your unhappiness. While you are living in luxury physically, you are starving spiritually. There is only one remedy for hunger of any kind-proper

"It isn't difficult to know, if you reall; want to," I answered. "There are hundreds of other girls like you, reared to have everything that their bodies may crave, who never know anything but a pampered, petted, sheltered life. They have absolutely petted, sheltered life. They have absolutely no part in the world's work, or progress, or service. Yet they wonder why the joy of life means so little to them. You are one of them. What you need is to forget your beautiful home and your servants and your motors, and give yourself to others. So far in your life all of the service has been given to you. You need to reverse the process and apply some of that service to your neighbors."

"But I do," she protested. "My money is always at the disposal of every worthy cause. I am always writing out a check for some charity." Smeat Lorllard, Mrs. Marcus A. Hanna, Colonel Creighton Webb, Arthur Train, soled short story writer, and many others.

And when she nodded I told her the story of the song, "Brighten the Corner Where You Are," and its author:
"That song, which has literally sung its way around the world from the heart of the crowded city to the jungle, was written by a woman in Ohio, Ina Duley Ogden. She was a genius as a writer, and ambitious to use that gift in a great way, but chromostances were such that it seemed tious to use that gift in a great way, but circumstances were such that it seemed impossible for her to do so.

"The words of her song, 'Brighten the Corner Where You Are,' were suggested to her by her own life. Today the result has literally gone around the globe, and we have heard of that song being sung even in faraway Siam and in the trenches of France. In her way that woman has done more of a real, genuine service to humanmore of a real, genuine service to humanity and the kingdom than you have done or

There were tears in the eyes of the poor

She was popular, of the material things that could minister to happiness. But in her home of much beauty and much beauty and much beauty and much money she was unhappy. Just why, she didn't know, and it was plain to me that she was really sincere in her doubts. I made up my mind to speak frankly to her even at the risk of hurting her sensitive tride.

"You are suffering from the most insidious of all discussed." I told her even as the risk would make an interesting book.

Also, she was instrumental in securing a woman police officer for the express purpose of all discussed and the stories of the poorest girls in town. It was a club that followed its name exactly, and the stories of its practical help in hundreds of different personal, intimate ways would make an interesting book.

America must take a leading part in the reconstruction of the world. Products of our factories, farms and mines, raw materials and finished products will be needed in enormous quantities. Physicians and sanitarians must be supplied to aid the wounded and to restore sanitation.

War is not only fought at the front. And if you cannot serve there you should train yourself technically to direct production of clothing, chemicals, food, munitions and machinery of war. And then in the days of reconstruction to come you can help to repair the ravages of war.

Men who hold the beim of the Ship of State voice this appeal. Let them convince you that if adapted for applied science you are urgently needed in that field. Read and beed their words. Do not allow the supply of trained engineers, chemists, biologists, metaliursists, agriculturists and physicians to be depleted. Egter or continue in a technical school if qualified for such a career. You will thereby be performing a patriotic duty and will help the industrial progress of America and of the world.
