Many Preparations Under Way for Midway Lane Market to Be Held in Germantown October 17. Germantown Hospital to Be Beneficiary

SCHOOL HOUSE lane between Wayne Savenue and Greene street and the old Germantown Academy grounds will be Mr. Saportasome changed place on the alternoon of October 17, let me tell you, friends and fellow citizens. It won't be your old School ane; not a bit of it; it will be all roped off and it will be all dressed up like a cheese or billy goat, as you choose; but it will be dressed up anyhow and you'll never know it for the same. In fact, I greatly doubt if the staid old street will ever be the same after the happening of that day. And the happening is that the whole block is to be changed into a Midway Lane and the party is to be given under the auspices of the board of omen visitors of the Germantown Hospital, of which Mrs. Charles Penrose

Keith is the president. Mrs. Charles Pancoust, of Germantown, sating as chair, ian of the affair, and, selieve me, it is going to be some affair athout the least doubt in the world. The street is going to be turned into a atry market, where ducks and chickthe and fresh eggs sent from farms of seminent and well-wishing citizens may be bought for much less than the usual awful cost of the present day.

Speaking of cost, what on earth do you think the butcher told me yesterday when I was buying the family meat-that sition steak would probably go up to $1 pound this winter, and with that remark he proceeded to charge forty-five cents for three weeny chops. And 1 deelded that steak would be another NO on the list of the possibilities for Nancy's household, ch wot?

Well, maybe we will be able to get it for ninety-eight cents at the Midway Lane. So cheer up; we can have it for dinner on October 17.

The farm department will be under the care of Mrs. Norton Downs, Mrs. Edgar Baird and Mrs. Frank Gummey.

Then the two Morgan sisters, Mrs. Billie Warden and Mrs. Charley Wister, will have charge of the lingeric booths. while the pretty things in cretonne will be sold by Mrs. Daniel Carstairs and Mrs. Herbert Warden. Mrs. S. MacCuen Smith will have the household supplies and practical things which one must have with or without war. Mrs. Morgan Churchman is planning a tobacco booth to entice the money from the men, and Mrs. Dougherty will be associated with her. The sports booth will be under the direction of Mrs. Albert Whiting and several others, and silk socks and sweaters will be sold by Mrs. Rufus Scott.

Mrs. Edgar Baird and Mrs. Redwood Wright will have the flower shop, and all sorts and kinds of bags will be sold by Mrs. Frank Wirgman and Mrs. Sidney Mason. Besides all this there will be a grocery shop, which will be presided over by Mrs. Frank Burton Reeves and Mrs. William J. Turner.

Mrs. Morris Wistar and Mrs. Stevenson Crothers will guard the vanity booth and Mrs. George Harris, Mrs. Harold Sill and Mrs. Tom Stenhouse will have the grab table, and last, but by no means least, the children are to have all kinds of things planned just for them, for besides a wonderful doll booth arranged by Mrs. Arthur Haines. Mrs. Francis Strawbridge and Mrs. Alfred Weill, there will be refreshments and pony rides and fortune telling in the able hands of the hospital auxiliary, with Mrs. William K. Beard as chairman.

Many other prominent women are busy making this affair a success, amon first wife in October of 1915. His daughter Regina married Fred Alexandre, of New York, a little more than a year ago, and his sister is Baroness Gabrielle de Wardener, of Paris.

Mr. Saportas has been a well-known figure at the various horse races and hunt meets in this country and in France. and is a member of our Racquet and Radnor Hunt Clubs. He has lived in New York most of the time, but had a country place, Bonnie Brook Farms, in Saratoga. When the country declared way, Mr. Saportas disposed of most of his horses to the Government.

UP IN Dark Harbor, or Isle boro as it is called equally, there will be great doings today, for Margot Scull and Aleck Biddle will be married at the Sculla' summer home, and any number of Philadel phians will attend. The Sculls gave a dinner last night for the bridal party, and Mrs. Drexel Paul gave a luncheon yesterday. Mrs. Paul is Aleck's sister, you know.

I suppose it will be another case of a very short wedding trip, and then the wife will return to her parents' home. Come to think of it. I guess that's one reason why so many of the fathers and mothers have given their consents to all these hasty marriages, when, really, you might expect them to counsel waiting especially when the girls are very young. as so many are. It's because they do not expect to lose them for any length of time, anyway. It's a sort of going away for a week-end or a ten-day trip at the most and then back to the maternal nest. But a day of reckoning will come, and they will suddenly realize that Friend Husband is likely to show up at any time and claim her, and there won't be the reception and wedding excitement then to help keep them up over the part-I'm sure they'll welcome them as heartily as their daughters, however, when they come home for keeps, safe and sound, and oh, how we hope they all

WELL, it has seemed to me that in these days when men seem to be needed in the world more than ever, i have never heard of so many small daughters as have arrived in town lately, but the spell has been broken and the William Chatfields are being congratulated on the birth of a son. Mrs. Chatfield was Elizabeth Henry, you know, and was married last summer up at her mother's home in Maine. They have been living in Cincinnati, where Mr. Chatfield was in business, but little Master Chatfield came to town at his grandmother's home in Chestnut Hill. Mr. Chatfield is at Fort Myer, Va., training at an officers' camp. The Oliver H. Perry Peppers are also being congratulated. On the birth of a littie daughter. Mrs. Pepper was Eulalie Willcox, you remember, the daughter of

DANCE GIVEN FOR SAILORS

Century Club in Lansdowne Entertains Boys Blue-Novelty Dance With Prizes Is Feature of the Evening

Massachusetts, though there were some from the Indiana, the lowa and the Von Steuben. And, yes, there were fifty pretty, eager girls to dance with them and do their best to give the boys a good time. The affair was chaperomed by Mrs. C. H. Eppelsheimer, the president of the club: Mrs. Thomas G. Cooper, Mrs. Fishert McLean, Mrs. William A. McEwen, Mrs. C. Mercer Bailey, Mrs. Charles S. Musser, Mrs. Robert Hall Ander-son, Mrs. Frank G. Burrows, Mrs. Henry S. Baker and Mrs. Benjamin Carskaddon ; and there were lots of other older persons there, who had almost as good a time watching the dancers as the dancers had themselves. But they couldn't have had quite so good a time, for if you were a sailor boy, and hadn't been to a regular dance since you couldn't tell the day when, or if you were a girl atticous to do a very or if you were a girl auxious to do a very pleasant bit by dancing with all the boys in blue-well, in either case you were bound to have a mighty good time. Every bound to have a mighty good time, one there was in the gayest and happlest of moods, and the little orchestra played splendid dance music, and gave a nice big. But generous encore after each number. But then, they couldn't do otherwise, when, at the end of each dance, every boy in blue clapped his loudest, and that was pretty buol. Each girl was introduced to a sallor lad with whom she danced the first dance, and then she introduced him to another girl, and thus it went until everybody knew everybody else. There were two Paul Jones, and they surely were fun, as they always are But, speaking of fun, there never was anylating function than the novelty dence they had. You see, it was this way in each corner of the big half a large square was had. corner of the big hall a large square was challed off. Then the music started, and the couples marched around the room in a long line. But the music didn't continue very long. Oh, no' Every two minutes if would stop, just when you were parfectly athen it wasn't going to stop, and if either you or your partner were caught in any of those challed squares, then you both had to drop out of the march. Weil, such scram-biling and laughing and sliding over the line just in time there there was. One wee miss, who had ventured forth too quickly, slipped right in the middle of a fatal square just as the music stopped. So she and her partner had to proceed to the sideand her partner had to proceed to the sidelines. At last, when there were only six couples left on the floor, each of these courageous individuals was presented with a funny little prize. One sailor-man received a small toy ship, which he immediately named after his own ship, the Von Steuben. Another one was presented with a tiny au tomobile, and there were other silly little things which everybody laughed over. During the intermission, which, by the way, wasn't very long, as the boys had to way, what it, he cream and good little home-made calles were served. Several joily little kroups got together and sang the songs that everybody knows, and one boy in blue throunned away at a ukulele, which he

Well, all too soon 11 o'clock came, and the last fox-trot and the very last encore were danced. And, oh! the boys didn't want to leave at all; they had such a good time, but at last they all went after giving these rouging cheers for Langdowne that

THERE was a picture in the paper A quite recently, indeed on this very page, of a certain girl we all know. It was a very charming picture. She was swinging a tennis racket in one hand and smiling the nicest of smiles-with the other I feel like saying, so as to follow out the customary sentence, but you can't mile with anything but your face, so that sentence must go down to posterity unfinished.

Well, what do you suppose happened? A marine who is also an aviator happened to open the paper that selfsame day and behold THE GIRL, almost the girl of his dreams. Didn't he wish he knew HER. But, of course, there was no hope of ever meeting her, for he did not know any of her friends. You see he was a stranger here, and so had not met many of his kind as yet. So he thought. cloomily, "that can never happen. I shall never meet that girl; but, gee swiz, in't she a peach?"

But right here is where the romantic part comes in. The very next night he went to a dance which was given for the allors-really it seems too good a story to be true, but it "posolutely" is-and right there at that dance, oh, joy! oh. oliss! at that very same dance was THE GIRL, all frilly and lovely in an evening frock and just as bewitching as in the pictured sports clothes, waiting to dance with the enlisted men.

Well, he finally got an introduction, my dears, and to say he had a wonderful ime would be some mild saying. I wonder if it will all end there? Something tells me it-may not.
