New Workroom of Independence Square Auxiliary of the Red Cross to Open September 20. Various Matters Discussed by Nancy Wynne

STOPPED in at 608 Chestnut street yesterday afternoon to see the new headquarters of the Independence Square Auxillary, No. 276, of the American Red Cross. They had the second floor of the Washington Building last winter and summer, you know, and now they have moved downstairs to the front office and have all their paraphernalia arranged on the great shelves at the back of the room and great long tables placed in rows for cutting out the dressings and all the other things they are to make. The new rooms will be open on September 20.

Mrs. George Horace Lorimer and Mrs. English were there yesterday and Mrs. Busby McCormick, who will be in charge of the room all day. I rather like the room downstairs, for it gives them a wonderful chance to display things in the great show window. Already they have war relics-a cartridge belt and sword taken from the field at Verdun and a geer greenish globe of glass which was used to show the position of mines in the 1/10h Sea. Such an innocent-looking lit-th globe and really quite beautiful in or! What greatly interested me was color! What greatly interested me was was of wrought iron and the words "Gott mit uns" were raised on the smooth sur-

To us who are far from the scene of strife it is hard to realize that that cartridge belt and sword mean anything more than a curiosity to add to the swords and armor in our museums, but when I thought how short a time before it had been used by a living, breathing human being, who had without doubt lost his life in one of those terrible slaughters outside of Verdun, it made me feel pretty sad,

AND Tuesday when I watched the from 3:45 o'clock until after 10, and after retiring awoke to hear the cheers of departing troops as late as 11:30 o'clock, I realized what it means and what it meant to every woman I saw in the crowd who had come to say good-by to her nearest and dearest. I saw one young girl, whose sweetheart was going, tear herself from his arms and smile a good-by to him, and then when he had passed out of sight half fall on a nearby step and ery her pretty eyes out. I saw one Italian mother surrounded by several little ones raise her eyes to heaven and beg God to take care of her "Tony" and then leave him while It was yet light to get her other little ones home and to bed, while the tears poured down her cheeks. To be sure, they were only going to Fort Hancock, but who knows how soon they will start for New York, for acute appendicitis and is France, and who knows when they will return, those brave, bright, cheery boys, who sang as they waited hour after hour for the cars which were to take them to Georgia. They did not get impatient nor complaining; they were all brave, strong men, ready to do and die for a great cause, and my heart went out to them, for they are the hope and strength of the

The world is simply sick with sorrow these days," she added, and it seems to me very true.

RS. BENJAMIN MILLER, of School MRS. BENJAMIN MILLIAM, bas taken House lane, Germantown, has taken over the entire Garrick Theatre, where "The Italian Battlefront" pictures are entinuing their sensational success, for Thursday evening, September 20, Mrs. Miller, you know, is president of the Comitate Pro Italia of the Emergency Aid of Pennsylvania, and she has very appropriately selected Italy's national holday as the date for this monster benefit for the relief of the Italian wounded.

OUT on the Main Line the preparations grow with greater vehemence and intensity for the great sporting carnival which will be held at the Bryn Mawr polo grounds on September 28 and 29.

The whole thing is to be given for the benefit of the Red Cross, you know. Mrs. Emory McMichael, I hear, is to be in charge of one of the departments, though my informant did not know of just which one. Associated with Mrs. McMichael will be Mrs. Charles O'Donnell Lee, Elisabeth McMichael, Ellen McMichael, Katharine Hancock, Lorraine Graham, Virsinia Heckscher, Anne Ashton and Ruth

HAVE you noticed the number of engagements and weddings lately where the bride has not changed the initial of her last name? They seem to have outgrown the old superstition, and it's good. Superstitions are silly things, anyhow. Let's see, what was that old thyme? "Change your name and not your letter, change for worse and not for better." Well, I most assuredly hope there's to be no worse in the many cases which have occurred lately. Take Jean Thompson and Ed Thayer, just ansounced on Saturday. All through the spring I have noticed it, too. There was the Heckscher-Hopkins alliance, the Wetmore-Watriss marriage and the Clark-Conger nuptials. Then Ned Waters married Margaret White and Elizabeth dyers married Jack Meigs. Here Monay Bessie Sinnickson married George aportas, of New York, and I can't bein to remember all there have been this spring and summer.

Out on the Main Line there was the ovekin-Lippincott wedding at Overopk, Brodhead and Brown up in the Tayne direction, and there was Babcock Srown, Howson and Holmes, Sargent Shreve and Ball and Buchanan. It

Many Members of Baptist Temple in Service of Their Country

Now that the ministers are home from their vacations, and the young men who supplied the pulpits have returned to college, and the congregations of stay-at-homes who spent the summer trying to reduce the high cost of living, will go on trying to solve that at present pusolcable problem it may be interesting to quote the quaint records of a church of 125 years ago: 'Resolved, That whatever is collected at meetings be paid to the supply, unless the sum collected be over two dollars, and in that case only two dollars shall be paid hip, and the balance be piaced in the basis. So you see even sermons have advanced in price. Post Mr. Supply of ye olden time! I wonder what your thoughts would be if you could come tack and see all the Red Cross work going on in the charches in addition to the cetalar work of the church organization.
