Letter from Mrs. D. Mathias, 2411 Tulip street, Philadelphia:
My dear Mr. Kolb—The reason I use Bond Bread is:
"After trying almost every kind of bread on the market for a satisfactory substitute for my own baking (which I have been doing for forty-two years), and failed entirely until I tried Bond Bread, which is the best bread I have ever bought, and would not be without it."

Letter from Mrs. Elizabeth Schreiber, 3557 N. Marvline street, Philadelphia:
"Dear Sirs—Why do I buy Kolb's Bond Bread? It speaks for itself. From experience I know that a better bread cannot be bought anywhere, at any price. I was a disinterested buyer until I brought home my first loaf of Bond Bread.
"Mother's home-made bread has surely met its match."

Letter from Mrs. C. H. Beatty, Wrennah, Gloucester County, N. J., Postoffice Box No. 92:
"Dear Sirs—I buy Kolb's Bond Bread because from every possible viewpoint, I find it the best. It is delicious not only when fresh, but retains its goodness as long as there is a crumb of it. It is, therefore, more economical even than home-made bread, and certainly more appetizing and nutritious."

Letter from Mrs. C. H. Leech, 803 Cedar avenue, Philadelphia:
"We use Kolb's Bond Bread, because it is made of pure materials, under sanitary conditions.
"It is protected by a dirt-proof wrapper.
"It is tempting to the taste, very nutritious.
"It has a fine close grain.
"It does not get stale quickly.
"It gives best value for the money."

Letter from Mrs. Violet Gretsmaeker, 2018 S. 98th street, Philadelphia:
"Dear Sirs—I use Bond Bread because it is:
"The only bread with true home-made flavor;
"Thoroughly baked;
"Not doughy;
"Wrapped germ-proof;
"Moist;
"Largest loaf for money;
"Keeps fresh longer;
"Can be cut in nice slices without crumbling;
"Sandwiches can be made dainty and of uniform size;
"Is light, easily digested."

Four months ago 2000 housewives brought us samples of their home-made bread. Committees of domestic science experts picked the best 21 loaves. We copied the taste and appearance of the best loaves—we used the same materials as the housewives used—and we created Bond Bread. Each week more people discover the wonders of Bond Bread. In four months the demand has risen to half a million large loaves per week. Four weeks ago we sent out a slip with each loaf of Bond Bread asking Bond Bread users to write a little letter on why they bought Bond Bread. Here are a few of the prize winners out of the thousands of letters received.

Kolb Bakeries

Letter from Mrs. Mary E. Lewis, 6632 Leeds street, Philadelphia:
"My reason for buying Bond Bread is because of its delicious taste, its appetizing appearance. I could not produce a loaf of home-made bread to equal it for the same price. It is closest resemblance to a perfect loaf of home-made bread. Hence home baking is unnecessary labor."

Letter from Miss Grace M. Woodruff, 415 S. 60th street, Philadelphia:
"Dear Sirs—Mother no longer is forced to stay in the hot kitchen and bake for us, but we can still enjoy wholesome home-made bread. Kolb's Bond Bread is now our mainstay, we are all thriving on it. We never more complain of dry bread, Bond Bread remaining fresh for several days."

Letter from C. Jorgensen, 4053 Olive street, Philadelphia:
"We couldn't tell the difference either in looks or taste—between Kolb's Bond Bread and our own home-made bread.
"That's why Mother stopped baking.
"Furthermore, knowing that Bond Bread reaches us absolutely clean is another reason we have it served daily.
"The waxed wrapper also keeps it fresh."

Letter from Harry H. Hutson, 5013 Willows avenue, Philadelphia:
"Gentlemen—Kolb's Bond Bread is best baker's bread because it tastes like 'home-made,' is always fresh, never soggy, browned, but never burned. Absolutely germ-proof, due to wax paper wrapping, thereby safest and best bread for children. Cheapest, because one 12 cent loaf goes further than two ordinary 7 cent loaves."

Letter from Mrs. Thomas Sloane, 1407 S. 58th street, Philadelphia:
"Dear Sirs—I had been baking my own bread with varying results. One day between bakings I served Bond Bread. The family were unanimous in their approval and said: 'Your bread is fine tonight, why don't you make it like this every time?' A word to the wise—
"We use Bond Bread."

Letter from Mrs. J. D. Van Vliet, 5435 Locust street, Philadelphia:
"I buy Kolb's Bond Bread because it is compact, close-grained and wholesome. It is tasty and nutritious. Its paraffine wrapper protects it from contamination. Last but not least—I get my money's worth. A twelve-cent loaf of Bond lasts me as long as two ordinary seven-cent loaves."

Letter from Thomas J. Holden, 1106 Fitzwater street, Philadelphia:
"Sirs—I buy Bond Bread because it bears the name of Kolb; because of the attractive and sanitary form in which it is placed upon the market; and because it looks, tastes and is better than any bread I have ever eaten."

Letter from Mrs. E. V. Wemmer, Narareth, Pa.:
"Gentlemen—I bought a loaf of Bond Bread, and altho I have been baking for over fifty years, my family were so pleased with its flavor, consistency and keeping qualities that I now use it instead of baking. It is the only baker's bread I ever used that retains its moisture."

Letter from Mrs. H. L. Martin, Stamford, N. J.:
"Dear Sirs—Kolb's Bond Bread is the first baker's bread I have found to satisfy my family. It is close-grained, does not contain an excess amount of yeast and has all the other 'Stay Fresh' qualities of bread 'Mother used to bake.'"

Letter from Mrs. C. W. Ewing, 20 Ridgway avenue, Norwood, Pa.:
"Dear Sirs—One loaf of Bond Bread lasts longer than two ordinary loaves of bread.
"It keeps moist longer than other bread.
"It is a fine-grained bread like the best home-made bread.
"It makes excellent toast and bread crumbs.
"Being larger sized, the slices are better for lunch baskets."

Letter from Mrs. William T. Kruse, Presbytery of Chester, Elwyn, Pa.:
"Sirs—We buy Kolb's Bond Bread because it is well made, well baked, well served. Flavor and eating qualities fine, rich in nourishment, stays fresh so no slice is wasted. Meets all requirements of wholesome, tasty, nutty nourishing bread. Those are reasons sufficient why we daily buy Kolb's Bond Bread."

Letter from Mrs. J. J. Kennedy, 423 Harvard avenue, Swarthmore, Pa.:
"Gentlemen—Bond Bread has all advantages of home-made bread, and none of its drawbacks, being always the same, and fresh every day. When we tried another kind, our children's bread appetite decreased at once. The loaf is fine grained, a suitable size making it economical, is delicious and nutritious."
