

Alexiev, Russian Chief, Kills Himself

Continued from Page One of state have been entrusted to M. Kerensky, Premier; M. Terestchenko, Minister of Foreign Affairs; General Verkhovskiy, Minister of War; A. I. Dvornikov, Minister of Marine; and M. Nikitin, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs.

The plenary session Friday of the Petrograd Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Deputies, which was attended by soldiers who were absent from the previous meeting, was devoted to the adoption of the Maximalist resolutions, adopted Thursday, putting forward an extremely radical program demanding exclusion of all representatives of the propertied classes from power, abolition of private property, the immediate declaration of a democratic republic, etc.

The delegates also adopted a resolution setting forth that the tragic situation of the country made necessary the constitution of a strong revolutionary power free from all compromise with the counter-revolutionary bourgeoisie elements, and announcing they had decided to convene immediately a general conference of representatives of the whole organized democracy for the settlement of the question of constituting a power capable of leading the country until the time the constituent assembly assembled.

Asked regarding the hetman of the Cossacks, General Kaledines, who with the forces on the Don has not yet surrendered and who is reported to be attempting a revolt, Premier Kerensky said: "Kaledines is still at large and making trouble, but I hope this incident will soon come to an end. If not, the provisional government has the means and the will to end it."

General Kaledines may have a considerable number of adherents among Cossack officers, but he and they in no way represent the rank and file of Cossacks, who are very democratic and entirely devoted to the revolution and the provisional government. In proof of this I have just had here a deputation from the Cossack Council, which expressed absolute devotion to us and promised support.

It is impossible yet to analyze the full import of Korniloff's rebellion, but in some respects it is a great misfortune. It may prove to be a blessing in disguise because it shows the strength of the provisional government and the revolution.

Further, it is a needed lesson to our parties and individuals to abstain from violence, extremist policies and demands for manifestations. Whether the lesson is learned or not, you may be assured that a counter-revolution will never succeed. It commands no support worth mentioning either from the population of the army, both of which have a thirst for security, discipline, tranquility and for the settlement of the distracted country's tangled affairs.

Questioned in regard to his views on the war, Premier Kerensky said: "I can at present only say that the Korniloff revolt has not weakened the army. The spirit of the troops is undiminished and quickly bettered at any time since the big retreat in Galicia. Whatever differences there are in the nation about the war, it is universally recognized that defense against the foreign foe is imperative in the interests of national freedom and the survival of the revolution."

Asked what was likely to be General Korniloff's fate, the Premier replied: "I cannot say definitely, as that matter does not rest with me. I can say only that no departure from justice is intended or will be tolerated. In myself I believe and sincerely believe in the ally no vindictive feeling or desire to add more tragedies to those we recently have suffered. I believe in the necessity of anything to prejudice the revolution, we intend to handle this grave matter in a fair and equitable manner according to the present program and according to law. Korniloff is put on trial; you may be assured that he will be tried and punished to the extent permitted by the Government to bring pressure on his judges one way or another. The Government will not pressure from other quarters be tolerated."

SLAV NATION UNIFIED BY KORNILOFF REVOLT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The Russian Republic has emerged from the shadows of the counter-revolution stronger than ever before. The entire nation has been unified by the attempted Korniloff rebellion. Increasing military pressure against the Germans on the Riga front may now be expected.

This is the situation in Russia as outlined in dispatches from Petrograd to the State Department and the Russian embassy today. The complete breakdown of the Korniloff movement is confirmed in these dispatches. The Cossack movement has not been quelled in all districts, but it is not regarded as serious by the Petrograd government.

General Alexiev has been placed in command of all the Russian armies. No confirmation of the report that he had committed suicide, following an interview with Kerensky, has reached either the Russian embassy or the State Department. New generals have been appointed by the Petrograd War Office in an effort to restore confidence among the troops. Stern discipline will be exercised everywhere under orders from Premier Kerensky.

Cablegrams dealing with the military situation assert there are more German troops on the Russian front than ever before, but that the Russians are beginning to exert new pressure against them. On the Riga front the Russians have advanced several miles in the last five days.

Russian diplomats believe today that the Kerensky government now is in position to quell quickly any new uprising. Allied diplomats asserted today that the Korniloff revolt had demonstrated the strength of the Kerensky government, and that the result would be to allow Russia again to take an active part in the military operations against Germany.

Eggs Sixty Cents a Dozen, Prediction HAZLETON, Pa., Sept. 17.—The price of eggs will go to sixty cents a dozen, and possibly more, this winter owing to the high price of corn and other feed, according to predictions of farmers in the surrounding valleys. Hundreds of farmers are disposing of their poultry because, they say, the business is not profitable.

Pottsville School Loan Paid POTTSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 17.—The Pottsville school district has just paid off $12,000 representing the balance of a temporary loan floated early in the summer. The board has voted $300 per month maintenance to the city's free public library and has raised the salaries of about forty of the teachers.

REVOLUTIONARY OUTBREAK IN SPAIN

Civilian, Underarm & Underarm. First photographs received in America showing arrest of rioters during the recent disturbances in Madrid. Spanish troops have been kept busy quelling disorders in Barcelona and other cities, as well as the capital, where general strikes are causing general unrest among the laboring classes.

Allies Expect War to Last Another Year

Continued from Page One and the United States is at present holding the money bags.

SOME FRUITION SHOWN There are, of course, some evidences of friction here and there. Italy feels that she is not getting the aid she needs and complains that her offensive against Austria, which promised so well, is being weakened and nullified because of this lack of aid.

The conferences which have been in progress in Washington between officials of the American government and the Japanese War Mission, headed by Viscount Ishii, are expected by American officials to bear results in the near future in the way of increased facilities, transportation of needed railway supplies from the United States to Russia and an increased form of naval participation in the war by Japan.

Though no announcement has been forthcoming as yet, it is understood that a working arrangement was tentatively approved by the conferees here, under which Japan would supply ships to carry the needed supplies to Russia, in return for which service the United States would lower the American steel plate embargo in favor of Japanese shipyards.

Every expert who has professed to diagnose the weakness of the Russian armies, aside from the weakness that is produced by the internal dissensions in the Russian revolutionary government, has located the trouble in the disorganized Russian railway system. Indeed, it has been the poor railway service that is responsible for much of the food shortage in Petrograd and other centers where counter-revolutionary intrigues have flourished.

Thus, if the United States is able to organize there are many officials here who believe that the Russian bear can again be made a factor in the war by the time the supreme crisis of the war arrives.

There is only the slightest mention here of Germany's reply to the Pope. Attention is centered at present on prosecuting the war.

THREE GERMANS ESCAPE

Interned Sailors Get Away From Fort Oglethorpe in Hailstorm

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 17.—A trio of interned German sailors escaped from the Fort Oglethorpe prison camp here during a violent hailstorm.

They are Gustav Hartwig, who escaped several weeks ago and was captured at Trion, Ga.; Paul Neimann and Carl Hentzell.

Two Deaths at Camp Mills

CAMP MILLS, Hempstead, Sept. 17.—Two deaths in National Guard units camped here took place today. Wilbert Riley, a private in the 167th Alabama Infantry, of Ozark, Ala., died of a complication of measles and pneumonia. George Neff, New York, a private in Company E, 165th New York Infantry, accidentally shot and killed himself while at drill with his company.

CAMERAS PROMPT FILM SERVICE MAIL ORDERS

DELICIOUS PRINTING & ENLARGEMENTS SEND FOR PRICE LIST F. J. CURRY 812, CHESTNUT ST. 812

FINAL SLASH IN PRICES A most unusual opportunity for the man who is on the lookout for REAL BARGAINS. POSITIVELY LAST WEEK OF FINAL CLEAN-UP SHIRTS $1.50 & $2 Shirts... 75c $2.50 & $3 Shirts... $1.50 3 for $4.00 $3.50 & $4 Shirts... $2.95 3 for $8.50 $5 to $10 Shirts... $4.65

BECKERS' At These Addresses Only 926 Chestnut St. Widener Building Arcade 1338 & 40 S. Penn Sq.

ITALY AIMS BLOW AT SAN DANIELE

Flanking Movement to Cut Off Austrian Stronghold Under Way

RAIDS ON WEST FRONT German Advance Guards Driven Back by Russians East of Riga

Following the capture of Monte San Gabriele, the Italian forces operating in the Gorizia sector are attempting to isolate Monte San Daniele, another strongly fortified peak, lying south of San Gabriele. Cadorna's troops are fighting their way eastward along the heights south of the Chiapovano Valley with a view of cutting off this Austrian stronghold.

West Front Successful raids east of Epehy and in the neighborhood of the Avesan-Danil Railroad are reported by Field Marshal Haig.

The French War Office reports that the Germans were temporarily successful in violent attacks in the Apremont forest, northwest of Verdun, but were subsequently driven out of the captured trenches by counter-attacks.

East Front East of Riga the Russians are continuing their counter-offensive and have driven the German advance guard back southwest of Pskov. Indications point to a new German drive against the fortress of Dvinsk and Minsk, 160 miles further south.

Clemenceau Sees Sammees in Camp

Continued from Page One hurrahs re-echoing from the surrounding hills. It was a perfect September day.

ARMY ENGINEER TROOPS TO JOIN PERSHING FORCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Every phase of army engineering is to be represented in the American troops that are now or soon will be in France. The army engineer corps, following cables requests from General Pershing, already has organized numerous regiments of engineer troops and in three training camps spreading-up processes are in effect to whip into shape the kind of engineer organizations sought by General Pershing.

The recommendations of General Pershing already filed or in the process of completion, include the following engineer organizations: Five railroad construction regiments, four railroad operating regiments, two shop regiments, four road-building battalions, eight construction battalions, six topographical sections, three map-reproduction detachments, ten supply depot detachments, six water supply companies, six forestry regiments, six mining companies, four fortifications battalions, five inland waterways companies and five electrical regiments.

CADORNA AIMS ISOLATION MOVE AT SAN DANIELE

ROME, Sept. 17.—An "isolation movement" against the Austro-Hungarian position on Monte San Daniele in under way along the southern edge of the Bainsizza plateau and dispatches from the Italian front today reported further progress in that sector.

While part of General Cadorna's victorious Italian troops are at work constructing new roads along the mountainside, others are dragging heavy guns up the rocky, battle-scarred slopes of Monte San Gabriele.

Meanwhile, detachments of picked troops are fighting their way eastward along the heights flanking the Chiapovano valley, to get in the rear of the Austro-Hungarian forces on Monte San Daniele. The capture of this fortified summit, towering 1800 feet in the air, is expected soon.

Prisoners are still flowing back to the Italian rear and most of them show traces

ITALY AIMS BLOW AT SAN DANIELE

Flanking Movement to Cut Off Austrian Stronghold Under Way

RAIDS ON WEST FRONT German Advance Guards Driven Back by Russians East of Riga

Following the capture of Monte San Gabriele, the Italian forces operating in the Gorizia sector are attempting to isolate Monte San Daniele, another strongly fortified peak, lying south of San Gabriele. Cadorna's troops are fighting their way eastward along the heights south of the Chiapovano Valley with a view of cutting off this Austrian stronghold.

West Front Successful raids east of Epehy and in the neighborhood of the Avesan-Danil Railroad are reported by Field Marshal Haig.

The French War Office reports that the Germans were temporarily successful in violent attacks in the Apremont forest, northwest of Verdun, but were subsequently driven out of the captured trenches by counter-attacks.

East Front East of Riga the Russians are continuing their counter-offensive and have driven the German advance guard back southwest of Pskov. Indications point to a new German drive against the fortress of Dvinsk and Minsk, 160 miles further south.

Clemenceau Sees Sammees in Camp

Continued from Page One hurrahs re-echoing from the surrounding hills. It was a perfect September day.

ARMY ENGINEER TROOPS TO JOIN PERSHING FORCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Every phase of army engineering is to be represented in the American troops that are now or soon will be in France. The army engineer corps, following cables requests from General Pershing, already has organized numerous regiments of engineer troops and in three training camps spreading-up processes are in effect to whip into shape the kind of engineer organizations sought by General Pershing.

The recommendations of General Pershing already filed or in the process of completion, include the following engineer organizations: Five railroad construction regiments, four railroad operating regiments, two shop regiments, four road-building battalions, eight construction battalions, six topographical sections, three map-reproduction detachments, ten supply depot detachments, six water supply companies, six forestry regiments, six mining companies, four fortifications battalions, five inland waterways companies and five electrical regiments.

CADORNA AIMS ISOLATION MOVE AT SAN DANIELE

ROME, Sept. 17.—An "isolation movement" against the Austro-Hungarian position on Monte San Daniele in under way along the southern edge of the Bainsizza plateau and dispatches from the Italian front today reported further progress in that sector.

While part of General Cadorna's victorious Italian troops are at work constructing new roads along the mountainside, others are dragging heavy guns up the rocky, battle-scarred slopes of Monte San Gabriele.

Meanwhile, detachments of picked troops are fighting their way eastward along the heights flanking the Chiapovano valley, to get in the rear of the Austro-Hungarian forces on Monte San Daniele. The capture of this fortified summit, towering 1800 feet in the air, is expected soon.

Prisoners are still flowing back to the Italian rear and most of them show traces

Slavs Expect Smash by Enemy at Dvinsk

LONDON, Sept. 17.—German troops beyond Riga have been driven back by the Russians to a point where serious counter-attacks have become necessary to maintain the enemy's main positions. Petrograd reports that a battle is now in progress near the Pskov road, in the region of the Znamensk farm, and that the Russian troops are successfully repelling the hostile thrusts, exhibiting great firmness and stability.

The Russian General Staff, however, believes that the Germans will not remain content with the capture of Riga, but are making ready to smash the whole Russian front, both at Dvinsk, which guards the line to the bend of the Dvina River, and at Minsk, about 160 miles to the south.

General Valuyev, newly appointed commander in chief of the Western Russian front, under General Alexiev, has issued the following order of the day to his army: "The success and the reliability of the Russian formation, preparing attempts to break through the Russian front at Dvinsk and Minsk. Should he succeed, the liberty secured by the revolution will be lost."

F. and M. Sophomores Arrested

LANCASTER, Pa., Sept. 17.—While plastering the western end of the city last night with proclamations for the freshmen, a score of Franklin and Marshall sophomores were swooped upon by the police, and three men, whose names were withheld, were arrested.

The finest custom-made $5 boot of rich Mahogany calf with welted soles and Louis Heile, priced here this week below the retail price of an ordinary boot at only $5

Are You Going to Save $2 to $5? Your imagination cannot picture more suitable patterns in more lovely soft fall shades and better than these combinations. We can't be more descriptive, for it's not possible to do them justice in type. You must see them! That costs nothing, and it costs you $2 to $5 the pair less to buy them than shoes of equal quality at ground-floor shops. By comparison our boots are at Wholesale Prices

If you don't act first others will, and you'll not only lose your chance to obtain the season's smartest Boots, but $2 to $5 in good money besides. No matter what style boot you want, YOU'LL FIND IT HERE. This week the widest choice of Philadelphia's best styles in Cordovan Calf, Brown Kid, Gray Buck, Black Kid and innumerable combinations. All $8 to $12 values at our prices of $5, $5.50, $6 and $6.50. ROYAL BOOT SHOP 2nd Floor Women 1208 & 10 Chestnut St.

Verdun Watch Tower, Recon by French, Is German Charnel House

HELLS UPTURN HORRORS

Prussians, in Sullen Rage, Fill Air With Drone of Hurling Bombs

By HENRI BAZIN

Continued from Page One

With THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD (by official courier to Paris post), Aug. 29.

On my way back to American field headquarters from Paris, where I had gone upon a special professional errand, I made a wide detour and went by way of Verdun. I knew Verdun of old. I have seen it in all weathers this last year, and it is to my infinite regret that circumstances prevented my being there in the days when "They shall not pass" was first incorporated within the language of the world. Now, I have been compensated. I could write a book about the experiences of the last sixteen hours. From the spot news perspective, there are newer records than I could make, records flaked but recently, and records, too, long past and ancient in the history of this war.

Here there is but the attempted portrayal of an impression—an impression of Hill 304. All night it had been raining, and this morning, when the rain ceased, the leaves upon nearly all the trees bordering the Meuse stood as if by miracle a yellowing tinge of autumn. For during the most of August the rainfall had been constant and the atmosphere, thick with water and mud is as if soaked with water and the mud is as slippery as if soaked in oil.

We were but two, a French officer and myself. With every step there was the sucking sound of boots and the sucking suction. We had been walking a full hour silently through a bayou with nothing but mud before us, mud under us, and a gray, gray sky overhead. A turn in the trench, and its slightly higher elevation permitted a sudden view of a familiar yet always unreal landscape, a landscape of nothing else but shell craters partially or completely water-filled, new craters and old craters, one displacing the other.

Beyond our objective, Hill 304, the Hill of History, the Hill surrounding the city that a million years from now will rank higher than Thermopylae. Months ago I had looked upon 304 through the glass while the Boche still held it. Now, I was in an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the red of a dried, congealed mass of blood. We were still half a kilometer away when I detected something else—the indescribable odor of decaying human flesh. For Hill 304, the Hill of Death, and of hideous death. Out of the bayou we now made our way, still in alliance through the cratered earth, for it was an hour's range, it was lower, and it was red, the