JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Many Features Are in Readiness for the Sporting Carnival to Be Held in Bryn Mawr Next Friday and Saturday

Valley Forge section, will lead to Bryn Mawr next week for the gigantic sporting carnival which is to be given or Friday and Saturday in aid of the Main Line branches of the Red Cross.

A host of attractions, all different, and all having for their single object the raising of funds to buy bandages, will be installed on the Bryn Mawr polo field and on the horse show oval, where in the daytime a real horse show, in which hundreds of entries will be exhibited, will be the attraction and where, at night, will be staged a most picturesque pageant.

The pageant is surrounded to great extent in mystery, because each of the Main Line towns is going to be represented, and each, as far as possible, is concealing what it intends to do from every other branch. The general committee, headed by Mrs. Otis Skinner, is maintaining supervision and has taken care that there will be no duplicates, so that the pageant will be a constant succession of surprises.

It is definitely known that Captain Edward B. Cassatt will head the pageant with his four-in-hand coach filled with pretty girls who will throw confetti over the spectators. The girls will be dressed in Red Cross costumes and will all be members of prominent Main Line fam-

T A meeting of the executive commit-A tee of the carnival at Inver House, Wayne, the home of Mrs. Archibald Barklie, general chairman, recently, it was decided that every aide participating in the carnival will appear in Red Cross ostume. Tickets for the affair have been sold by the thousands, according to reports which have been received. The various branches which are to participate in the proceeds will have the cards of admission on sale this week at their beadquarters.

The horse show, which will be presided ever by Mrs. David B. Sharp and Mrs. Rebert E. Strawbridge, will be the biggest single event in connection with the carnival. It will be held on both days from arly morning until sunset. Every box has been taken and the show promises to be almost as good in every way as the Bryn Mawr show which it supplants this season, so far as dates are concerned, at any rate. A dog show, in which great interest is being taken by hundreds of dog owners ir this vicinity, and many from other sections, will be a feature of the carnival on Friday. A hound exhibition will be held on Saturday. In connection with the dog show Clarence H. Clark, 3d, will exhibit the Radnor beagles, which are famous in the annals of beagle trials and chases along the Main Line.

ONE of the principal departments of the sffair will be the restaurant, which will be conducted by Mrs. John C. Groome and a committee of prominent women, and a lunch counter, which will be going from early morning until the fete closes each night, and which will relieve every one of the necessity of leaving the grounds after their arrival at the beginning of the day. The restaurant will be set up around the picturesque clubhouse of the polo club, and the lunch counter will be nearby. Mrs. Charles Custhe Harrison, Jr., vice chairman of the restaurant committee, will be in direct rge of the lunch counter, and her arrangements for providing sandwiches, hard-boiled eggs, ice cream, milk and things like that would prove interesting and instructive to the new National Army The Main Line Citizens' Association is co-operating with the carnival and will tender assistance in every way possible. Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, numbering 200 each, will give drills each afternoon. Arrangements have been made for the installation of a children's playground. where amusements will be provided and where there will be two experienced women from the first-aid department in charge.

ALL roads on the Main Line, from mur in a faint voice, while holding her purple allken and including the Oh, what shall I do?"

Now comes the truly romantic part of the tale. A certain young officer who had lately won his stripes at Nlagara was passing that way, and seeing a damsel in distress, like knight of old, dashed forward in between automobiles, policemen and pedestrians and forthwith returned triumphant with the small, but alas, no longer spotless slipper in his strong hands. But the story does not end there, oh! no; not content with rescuing the fair lady's slipper, our hero dropped on one knee before her and placed in snugly where it belonged. Then like the Prince in the fairy tale he smiled at the lady and disappeared into the wilds of the crowd at that corner. And the "ladys fairs" looked a bit wistful as she recounted the story to her bosom friend at luncheon at Sautter's a bit later and remarked. "Oh, if he only hadn't disappeared so quickly, I should so have liked to thank him, but I was so embarrassed, I never said a word."

I'm afraid she would never have got commission if she had been at Fort Niagara, because one of the first principles of being a good officer is the ability to keep one's head. Perhaps, however, this may not be the end of our little tale, for the "lady. faire" and the "knight of the slipper" will probably meet in the future, and love has been known to grow from smaller seeds than gallantry.

DID you know that Margot Scull Fiddie is staying with the Francis I. Gowens at their home in Chestnut Hill? She is visiting Mariana while making a few arrangements before joining her young husband at Fort Meade, in Admiral, Md. I hear she will spend the winter in a bungalow near the camp, as so many other young wives are doing. NANCY WYNNE

NORRIS SQUARE IS CARNIVAL GROUNDS

School Children and Teachers Work for Red Cross Fair

"Oh, yes; this is a school office, although "Ob. yes; this is a school office, although it resembles a three-ting circus at present," said Mr. Robert McLaughilln, principal of the Weish-West School, when discussing the Red Cross carnival which is to be held today at Norris Square by the teachers of Wards 17, 18, 19 and 31. He was examin-ing a donation of lanterns of which the bases were missing, and remarked philo-sophically that it was not good form any-how to criticize a gift. A score of teach-ers were packing up articles of various descriptions, getting them ready for sale.

how to oriticize a gift. A score of teach-ers were packing up articles of various descriptions, getting them ready for sale. "It's lots of hard work." Mr. McLaughlin said, "but it isn't so bad as the trenches, you know, and we want to show the boys that we appreciate their sacrifice." The president of the carnival is Mrs. Charles P. Mercer, a person with enough enthusiasm and energy to make anything go. Norris Square was secured through the courtesy of Mr. Cumminsky, and then the committee proceeded to rouse the interest of teachers and pupils. Fourteen schools joined the movement, all working, although some went at it just a little harder than others. One school has sold 1400 tickets: The teachers were not allowed to sell others. One school has sold 1400 tickets: The teachers were not allowed to sell tickets to the pupils, but the next-door neighbor was. Each school almed to secure a minimum of 500 donations. At this writ-ing, though, every school had not attained this goal; one reported two donations, but its principal was encouraged to tell the pupils that she needed only dos

Donald, corresponding secretary St. Francis's House is one of the worthlest charities of its kind, as it cares every year for women and girls recuperating from IInesses and operations. Here they gain strength to resume their work again. Since it was established, in 1913, more than 2400 patients have been cared for. Those persons interested in St. Francis's House are especially anxious to make this fair the largest they have ever given, as they expect many more breakdowns this year among working women taking places of their "men who have gone to war." Among the many other tables planned for the fair are the following: Mrs. James A. Mundy, who is in charge of the res-taurant, where delleious old-fashioned New England dinners will be served on the wide verandas, assisted by Mrs. M. McMichan, Mrs. A. Nush Burke, Mrs. J. LANSDOWNE HOME DEFENSE STARTS AGAIN

Mrs. Strawbridge will act as vice chairman of the Horse Show, which will be one of the features of the Sporting Carnival at Bryn Mawr, on September 28 and 29.

Young People Off to School and College-Club Meetings

Start

The Lansdowne Home Defense League, which stopped its drills and was rather quiet during the summer, has resumed said drills, and they are held every Friday evedrills, and they are held every Friday eve-ning. Also, the men took examinations for officers on September 17. And, to prove that they are still "there" and don't intend to be quiet any longer, the Home Defense men gave a minstrel show at the frehouse last Thursday evening, to which all their friends were invited. The entertainment was the best ever, for, besides the regular program of fun, several distinguished guests were there and made speeches. These men were Colonel St. George L. Steel who hea

There is scarcely a family that has not said "good-by" to some one dear, and last-minute parties and dinners have helped to brighten their leave-taking. So many around Twentieth and Chris-tian streets were in the first draft, it was decided to make their departure one to be remembered, and so on Thursday evening, there was a party for them, given by their there was a party for them, given by their friends in the immediate neighborhood. Mr. Edward J. Sanner was chairman of the committee who arranged the affair, and he had the help of Mr. Martin Manion, Mr. John Lynch and Mr. Andrew Shields to see that everything was in keeping with an affair worthy of the guests. There was a bers. plendid entertainment, talent having been

This is the last night of the carnival and street party that has been going on all week on Moore street between Twentieth and Twenty-first streets, the proceeds of which will be donated to the Red Cross fund. Despite the fact that there are two other carnivals going on in the immediate neighborhood, the pretty aides have worked asingly for the affair and the houses and booths are so attractive in their patri-otic red, white and blue decorations that there has been every promise of success. Most of the sides are members of the Red Cross, and they look so attractive in their white headdress, with its simple little cross white headdress, with its simple little cross —a privilege that only goes with member-ship in the main body.
