CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR SOLDIER BOYS

Now's the Time to Prepare Them for Use by Santa Claus in France

'DO YOUR SHOPPING EARLY

Postoffice Men Sound Familiar Slogan and Warn of Uncertainty in Ship Sailings

By M'LISS

Just because your boy has gone from you, because he went marching away in khaki you don't know where, except that you address the letters "American Expeditionary Force, Somewhere in France; just because he is provided with his trench mirror and military brushes, and all the comforts of the comfort kit, is no reason for you to sit down and mope, because there's nothing more you can do for him.

There is, too. How about Christmas? It seems almost as long a way to Christ-mas as it is to Tipperary, but already the postal authorities are buzzing around with their incessant "do your Christmas shop-their incessant "do your Christmas shopping early" mutterings.

It's a long, long way that the American Santa Claus will have to go this year—and a devious one—to deliver gifts to the boys most deserving of them. How devious only a few persons in high places know. The Philadelphia postoffice officials are frank in their ignorance of the route the mail takes after it leaves their hands.

"We don't even know what ships it We don't even know what shins takes, when it sails or where it goes," they tell inquirers. But they do know that all caution will be taken to safeguard Santa and his heavy sack of presents from submarines and air-raids and Boche interference in general. And they do know that now is not a bit too soon not only to be thinking about, but actually to be purchasing the gifts that you are going to send to your boy who will be hanging his stocking up in a for-eign land, for the first time, perhaps, in his young life. his young life.

"A gift ought to arrive if mailed thirty days before Christmas." the official in charge of the postal service of the Expeditionary Force said. "but conditions are so abnormal that one cannot safely set an accurate date. Certainly the wise people will mail their gifts just as soon as they can get them ready. The packages might be marked 'not to be opened until Christmas.' so as not to spoil things should they arrive too soon. But it would be far better to have them get there beforehand than to have a lot of disappointed, homesick boys spend a giftless day.'*

Of course, no really human boy fr normal

Of course, no really human boy ir normal times could resist a package marked "Do not open until Christman." But the times aren't normal and the discipline of an armytrained lad is something marvelous to con-template. And so if you write it in a big, bold handwriting that looks as fearsome as a gold-braided general's rebuke, perhaps for once the mandate will be regarded. But some discretion in the choice of the gifts will have to be exercised.

You cannot send an automobile or a motorcycle, or all of your love, even, if he weighs more than twenty pounds. This is the maximum weight permitted. The regulations are precisely the same as those laid down for the domestic service, which means that you will be able to send Christmas are codies. goodles, such as fruit cake and cookies, which are bound to keep, even though the distance is thousands of miles.

Year after year the question, "What shall I give him this Christmas" agitates.

This is the year to give him the best, most thoughtful present you have ever worn out shoe leather looking for. And the time to look is now.

BACHMANN CASE GOES TO JURY UNDEFENDED

Charges Against Nissley Abandoned-Other Accused Rest on Government's Evidence

Developments came with such rapidity this morning in the Government's prosecu-tion of men charged with fraudulent sale of the stock of the International Gas and Electric Company that the case was con-cluded and is now in the hands of the jury. eluded and is now in the hands of the jury.
One of the developments, which was not unexpected, was the abandoning by the Government of charges against Amos H. Nissley, of Steelton, Pa., of complicity in the alleged fraud. Other features were the closing of the Government's case shortly after court opened today, followed by the announcement of former Congressman J. Washington Logue, counsel for the other two defendants, Clawson Bachman and Joseph T. Hayden, that no evidence would be offered by the defense, which would rest upon the Government's evidence, convinced that it had failed to prove the charges.

Bachman and his codefendants have been

Bachman and his codefendants have been on trial since Tuesday of last week before Judge Dickinson, in the Federal Court, charged with conspiracy and using the malis to defraud in misrepresenting to investors the value and assets of the stock of the International Gas and Electric Company.

The International Company and its subsidiaries went into the hands of receivers in December, 1915. The company's failure, declared Mr. Logue, was due to a money turnoil about that period.

Nissley was included in the indictment because he was a member of the firm of Bachman & Co., but as the trial proceeded the Government authorities became convinced that he was not culpable.

It was declared by counsel that Nissley had obtained subscriptions for about $50,000 to the International Company stock from members of his family, and had put all his own money into the securities.

FAMILY GROUPS RULE AT CITY HALL

Director Hasskarl Joins Majority by Getting Appointment for Brother

MAYOR LEADS, OF COURSE

Happy family groups, with Mayor Smith setting the example, are the rule rather than the exception in the city government. The latest addition to the various family circles came today when William S. Hasskarl, 643 Commissioner street, a brother of Joseph Hasskari, Assistant Director of the De-partment of Wharves, Docks and Ferries, was appointed to the position of inspector. The new appointee will be under his brother and will receive $1000 a year for his services.

Naturally the Mayor, who not only placed all his available relatives in fat jobs but his ice man as well, leads as a family head, Other departmental neads and bureau chiefs, however, are not far behind their leader, and the only thing that prevents the publication of a semplete family roster is the difference in Abmes, due to widespread family trees.

Among the more notable recent additions o family circles was the appointment of Harry Davis, Jr., to a place in the office of his father, Assistant Director of the De-partment of Public Safety. This was a particularly fortunate case, as all fathers are not able to have their sons so directly under their care. In some instances, father and sons are separated the length of City Hall or by many flights of stairs. Family names, with the Smiths well to the fore. are to be found on both city and court pay-

STATE CHARTERS FOR OIL AND GAS COS. ON INCREASE

Strong Demand for Both Products as Substitutes for Fuel and Lighting

HARRISBURG, Sept. 28.—Oil and gas companies are commencing to divide honors with coal companies in the chartering of new corporations in Pennsylvania. For months there have been more coal companies chartered than anything else, some of them having as high as $50,000 and $100,000 capital and some merely to buy lands underlaid with coal.

Lately oil and gas companies have been ncreasing, notably in the northwestern section of the State. The reason given at the Capitol is that the demand for oil and gas for fuel and lighting is increasing so rapidly that operations which were not deemed profitable a few years ago are being taken up again.

OSTEOPATHIC COLLEGE OPENS

Student Body Is Cut Down Because of National Army Draft The Philadelphia College of Ostcopathy, Nineteenth and Spring Garden streets, was formally opened today with an enrollment of about eighty-five pupils.

Owing to the War Department's refusal to recognize osteopathic practitioners, about fifteen students of the upper classes were lost through the draft, according to Dean Arthur M. Flack. The freshman class, however, he said, was the largest for several years.

The Pennsylvania State law requires the matriculating student to have an education equivalent to a standard four years' high school course, according to Doctor Flack, and the course is four years. The Philadelphia College is the only osteopathic insti-tution in the United States whose graduates will be permitted to practice in New

The gross value of the order is $4,860,000. The trucks will be needed for the reconstruction of roads in France, and for road building in and about the canton-mants for the National Army. Final deliveries are to be made in six months.

ASK LAWYERS' AID ON DRAFTED ALIENS

Local Boards Want Their Attorneys to Take Up Involved Question

STUDENTS STILL IN CAMPS

Judge Thompson Awaits Decision of Military Authorities on Acceptance of Convict

Lawyers for the different local draft boards are to be brought into the controversy over the status of allens which is agitating Provost Marshal General Crowder, United States District Attorney Francis Fisher Kane, the Federal Court, Philadelphia District Appeal Board No. 2 and the various foreign consuls.

The local draft officials maintain that the burden of proof is with the allen as to whether he is a bong fide subject of a foreign country, and that the boards should not be called upon to substantiate whether the draft subject has taken out naturalization papers or has voted in this country. They want their attorneys, appointed by Governor Brumbaugh, to look out for their interests, to defend their position.

Telegrams were received by the local coards from the State headquarters at Harrisburg advising them to be on the alert for persons who looked like aliens, and to take time to explain to them carefully just what they should do to prove that they were citizens of a foreign country and in the nature of filing exemption papers.

WOMEN BESIEGE APPEAL BOARD Dozens of women, many with children besieged the chief clerk of District Appeal beard No. 2 early today. Their husbands had either been sent to training camp re-gardless of the fact that their family was dependent upon them, or the men had failed o file claims through neglect or ignorance These women in many cases appeared with tears running down their cheeks, without a single idea where their next meal was coming from, being solely dependent upon their husbands. One woman had been ejected from her house by the landlord because she hadn't paid the rent. One woman was a stranger to this city and had no

The district board in virtually all of thes destitute cases communicated with the local draft boards, advising them to reopen the cases. It is expected that this action will result in bringing the husband back from Camp Meade; otherwise their families will become public charges, W. G. Murdock, connected with the State draft headquarters, came down from Harrisburg today and paid off the two district appeal boards and their clerical forces. He remarked that if these boards had filled out the proper blanks they could have received remuneration before.

District Appeal Board No. 2 opened its new quarters in the Record Building, 917 Chestnut street, today. The new rooms are spacious and adequate for the complex work connected with the filing, certifying and following up draft subjects. The board has a room suitable for its hearings, the cierical force has another room equally fitted for its particular work, and there is a third re-ception room where the chief clerk may receive applicants for appeal decisions.

Exemption of medical students and in-ternes will not be effective until some time ater, when the Adjutant General at Wash ington will have arranged with draft boards to provide for discharging these men. Many now with the initial contingents, and probably those soon to go, will have to be patient, awaiting arrangements for sending them back to their studies, the Adju-tant General's office states.

The seeming contradictory action follow-ing the order of the President exempting medical students and internes has been caused, it is said, through failure of the Washington draft officials to send necessary blanks to the draft boards to permit of the proper exemption claims being filed in time to prevent going to the training camps.

Decision of the military officials as to whether they will accept for military service a person convicted of violating the Federal laws is keeping Albert "Buck" Meyers in suspense between jali and the trenches. He pleaded guilty to two indictments before Judge Thompson in the Federal Court yes-terday charging him with possession of opium and its smoking accouterments and with having opium in his possession as a denier. Judge Thompson is waiting to hear from the militray officials.

If Judge Thompson receives a favorable answer from the military officials, he will impose a nominal sentence, in order that Meyers might soon be released to report for duty. He was supposed to report last Saturday to entrain for Camp Meade, but he was surrendered by his bondsmen on Friday on the charges preferred by Revenue Agents Oyler and Beach.

PATTERSON ASKS EXEMPTION

Joseph M. Patterson, son-in-law of George H. Earle, Jr., is seeking exemption from military service on the grounds that his wife, formerly Miss Hansell French Earle. and child are solely dependent upon him for support. His local draft board in Montgomery county has asked him to submit statements from Mr. Earle and from his father as to whether either one is prepared to support Mrs. Patterson and her child if her husband goes to war.
