

PHILADELPHIA'S AMATEUR ATHLETES TURN TO FOOTBALL, SOCCER AND CROSS-COUNTRY RUNNING

JOHNNY DOUGHERTY
Acting captain St. Joseph's
High School eleven.

MEMBERS OF A POWERFUL AMATEUR SOCCER TEAM
The Hungaria Club presents a line-up that gives it prestige among Philadelphia followers of that branch of sport.

PILOT OF PENN CHARTER ELEVEN
Captain Sitley and his team played West Philly High to a scoreless tie in their first game of the 1917 season.

A WEST PHILLY STAR
Hewitt, at left end, is a lively linesman in the High School League.

CANDIDATES FOR ST. JOSEPH'S HIGH Thirty aspirants are striving for places in the line-up which will represent this team on the gridironed field.

LEADS WEST PHILLY HIGH Captain Swing is rounding his team of school athletes into championship form.

NORTHEAST'S SOCCER COACH
O. E. Gerney also is physical instructor at the uptown high school.

CANDIDATES FOR NORTHEAST HIGH SCHOOL'S CROSS-COUNTRY TEAM
Coach Gerney (at right) is developing a likely bunch of turf-burning amateurs, who are rapidly ripening into speedboys. Rodebaugh, their captain, wearing a Northeast Jersey, is in the middle of the group

GUARD RIGHT END FOR W. P.
Monroe, one of the liveliest members of the over-river high school eleven.

A HUSKY LINESMAN OF WEST PHILLY HIGH
Mortler, at tackle, is playing a game that stamps him as aggressive and an all-scholastic possibility.

THE FOOTBALL SEASON IS INAUGURATED DOWN AT CAMP HANCOCK
Members of the 108th Field Artillery, Philadelphia's own "Second Regiment," are ready for a scrimmage on the gridiron, as a preliminary training for encounters with German antagonists.